B.C. Closing 'Dead Loss' U.S. Offices

The provincial government plans to close down B.C. House operations in both San Francisco and Los Angeles within a month or two, Attorney-General Alex Macdonald said today.

He said he has no comment to make on the possibility of B.C. House in London closing, adding he will be talking to Travel Industry Minister Ernie Hall, who has just visited London, about the operation there.

Macdonald, who also holds the portfolio of trade minister, described the two U.S. establishments as "a dead loss to the taxpayers of B.C." and said the closings will result in a saving of about $75,000 per year.

B.C. House in San Francisco and Los Angeles have been intended to promote trade in B.C. as well as encourage tourists to come to the province. The establishments are shared between the trade department and the department of travel industry.

Macdonald said the lease on B.C. House in San Francisco expires Dec. 31. That operation will close down at that time. He said the Los Angeles establishment will be phased out shortly thereafter.

The attorney-general said there are Canadian consulates already situated in both Los Angeles and San Francisco, with trade commissioners attached, so that B.C. businessmen wanting to export into the large California market will be able to deal through the consulates and commissions.

Four employees will be relocated because of the closings, Macdonald said, and will be given preference for jobs within the civil service.

PENSION WENT UP . . . BY 3 CENTS

TORONTO (CP) — Frank Dewell, a retired carpenter whose monthly Canada Pension cheque was increased by three cents, said Monday the increase is an insult to people who really need the money.

Dewell, who worked for a Toronto borough, retired three years ago "so I don't get a great lot anyway but it's just the fact of the three cents a month . . . why anybody would come up with that amount."

The three cents came as a result of a percentage increase in the cost of living.

Dewell said the government "must have someone from an insane asylum thinking these things up. Nobody in their right mind would bother with three cents."

We'll Fight On—Thieu

Times News Services

While U.S.-Hanoi negotiations proceeded at a stepped-up pace in Paris today, South vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu continued to take an uncompromising stand in his opposition to any settlement of the war not on his terms.

"The Republic of South Vietnam will have to continue the war for peace and this is the only way for survival," he said in his first speech to the National Assembly in more than two years.

Thieu also proposed that North and South Vietnam and the Viet Cong begin separate peace negotiations during the annual Christmas truce.

He said the truce "could be extended for a further duration as agreed by all parties if consultations progress in an encouraging way."

In his speech, he made no direct reference to the Paris talks and his comments were interpreted here by Western diplomats and journalists as an effort too little and too late to "Vietnamese" peace negotiations.

First reaction to Thieu's speech from the Viet Cong delegation to the Paris peace talks called it "obstinate, absurd and arrogant."

His comments "serve only to expose still more his intention to oppose a correct peaceful solution of the Vietnam problem," a delegation statement continued.

The fact remains that "Thieu is a major obstacle on the road to peace, reconciliation and national concord," it added.

Henry Kissinger and Le Duc Tho resumed their secret negotiations at unprecedented triple meetings today.

Two meetings of experts were scheduled before Kissinger and Tho conferred for their eighth secret session since they resumed their search for peace one week ago.

In keeping with the total news blackout observed by both the United States and North Vietnamese delegations, there was no official explanation for the accelerated pace of the meetings.

Moonmen's New Target A Mountain

Times News Services

HOUSTON — Apollo 17 explorers Eugene Cernan and Jack Schmitt ended a long, triumphant workday in space early today, capping a near-perfect lunar landing with a more than seven-hour tour of a canyon they dubbed a "geologist's paradise."

Veteran astronaut Cernan stashed their first rock samples, brushed the coal-black dust of Taurus-Littrow valley off his spacesuit and followed geologist Schmitt back into their landing craft Challenger at 2:05 a.m. EST for some much-needed sleep. They had been on the surface a record 7 hours, 12 minutes.

Their plans for today, the second day of a record 75-hour stay on the lunar surface, call for a visit to the mile-high South Massif mountain and a rockslide at its base, beginning about mid-afternoon Victoria time.

During their excursion Monday, they found evidence to suggest the floor of the canyon is one of the moon's youngest features.

NFB CHIEF CANS OVERTHROW FILM

MONTREAL (CP) — A National Film Board documentary called Vingt-Quatre Heures ou Plus — Twenty-Four Hours or More — has been cancelled because it "advocates the overthrow of the entire political and economic system as it operates in Canada," Sydney Newman, government film commissioner, said Monday night.

"I maintain that if Vingt-Quatre Heures ou Plus, as it is, was released, the NFB would never be forgiven by the majority of Canadians who uphold the Canadian democratic system," Newman said.

An official of a union representing NFB production personnel disagreed, however, saying the public has a right to see the results of money spent.

The cancellation was announced last Friday by Yvon Leduc, director of French production at the NFB, who said the film, directed by Gilles Groulx, is a documentary depicting events in our society and analysing the "state of the nation."

Newman, chairman of the NFB and the federal government's chief adviser on film, said the NFB was created by Parliament and is paid for by the Canadian taxpayer.

"For these reasons, the filmmaker . . . is limited in his freedom by the terms of the place he works for."

Trudeau Buys Barrett Bid For Cash

By IAIN HUNTER
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — B.C. Premier Dave Barrett announced Monday that he has persuaded the federal government to pay a larger share of his province's $200-a-month guaranteed income to its pensioners and handicapped.

He could not say what the change in Ottawa's attitude means for other provinces — "I'm not here to negotiate for the rest of Canada," he said — but called it a major step forward.

Barrett obtained the verbal agreement from Prime Minister Trudeau after a luncheon meeting at the prime minister's residence.

"The prime minister has agreed that the exempted fixed assets level will be increased as was requested by British Columbia," he declared.

When Barrett first proposed that Ottawa share with Victoria, 50-50, the cost of providing the $200-a-month guaranteed income for senior citizens, blind and handicapped, Trudeau retorted that B.C. should use its own tax money to pay for it.

Asked if he found Trudeau more flexible in his attitude after his setback in Western Canada Oct. 30, Barrett would only say that he is "just as new as the government is" and that he's not qualified to say.

Barrett said he is not afraid that the B.C. scheme will result in a heavy influx of old-age pensioners to his province.

It is one of the myths of the welfare field, he stated, that people are "after the welfare buck." He also said that recipients will not be hoarding the money or taking it to Bermuda with them, but will be spending it in B.C., thus helping the economy of the province.

Barrett's second announcement on emerging from his meeting with Trudeau was that the prime minister has agreed to accept a B.C. application to reopen the Columbia River Treaty to provide more

Prices Climb 5.1% in Year

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Although food prices eased downward in November the over-all price index was up for the month, pushing prices 5.1 per cent higher than November last year.

Most economists speak of a three-per-cent annual increase in prices as the most that should be permitted without inflation.

Statistics Canada, surveying more than 300 consumer goods and services, said today its consumer price index rose to 142.3 in November from 142.0 in October. This was a smaller increase than usual between these two months, the bureau said.

Food prices declined in November over a wide selection of commodities, except for vegetables. Both canned and fresh vegetable prices were higher.

The main increases for the month were in rents, the prices of new houses, and in foofwear and winter clothing. The latter usually command higher prices as winter approaches.

In dollar terms, the new indexes mean that it cost $14.23 last month to buy the wide variety of consumer goods and services that could be had for $14.20 in October, or $13.54 in November last year. That is based on a parcel of goods and services that would have cost only $10 in 1961.

In the food component of the over-all index, last month's bill was $14.51 for what $14.53 bought in October or $13.30 in November last year.

In percentage terms, the over-all increase last month was two-tenths of one per cent. Food prices were down one-tenth of one per cent.

The change was too small to affect the purchasing power of the consumer dollar to any measurable degree. What $1 bought last month could be had in 1961 for 70 cents, the same as in October. A year ago, $1 bought 74 cents' worth of 1961 goods and services.

Food prices account for 27 per cent of the total price index, and housing 32 per cent. The cost of home ownership, Statistics Canada said, rose 1.2 per cent last month. Other increases were in rents, fuel oil, furniture, floor coverings and textiles.

Clothing prices account for only 11 per cent of the over-all index. The main increases last month were in footwear and men's and women's clothing.

TV Seen As Brain Destroyer

MADRID (Reuter) — Television is damaging the brain cells of millions of children throughout the world, one of Spain's leading pediatricians says.

The sight modulation of most children under the age of five is not equipped to cope with the dazzling brightness and vibrations of a television program, says Dr. Manuel Suarez Perdeguero, president of the Spanish Pediatrics Association.

"Parents who allow their youngsters to sit for long hours in front of the television screen are committing a form of mental aggression," says Dr. Suarez, also dean of medicine at Seville University.

Suarez says that tests in his pediatrics department at Seville have shown that a child's brain cells and vision can be permanently impaired if he is exposed to television at an early age.

"The damage to the cells is both structural and chemical," he says, explaining that the cells undergo a change in their structure and chemical makeup which, though slight, definitely affects the child's normal intellectual development.

SMASHED SCHOOL BUS with "children lying all over the road, bleeding and screaming for help." This is how police at St. Blaise, Que., described the scene after the bus, above, was involved in a mishap with another school bus and a loaded 10-ton gravel truck. Two students were killed and 47 injured, including all three drivers. Eight persons were on the critical list.

Rent Aid for Pensioners Urged

By ROLAND MORGAN
Times Staff

A report by two economists recommended two months ago that the provincial government offer rent supplements to old age pensioners faced with rent increases, instead of introducing rent controls.

Mike Lebowitz, who authored the study with Cliff Andstein at the request of Rehabilitation Minister Norm Levi, confirmed today that the report had been submitted to the government just before the October session of the legislature.

At that session, the new government introduced its "Mincome" plan giving pensioners $200 a month adjustable upwards with the cost of living.

"We wanted a scheme which would insulate pensioners against rent increases which were inevitable following the Mincome plan, and which would insure that the cost of living index supplements would not be abused," said Lebowitz, a Simon Fraser university professor.

"We were critical of rent controls," he said.

"We advised the government that rental supplements would have an extra benefit besides countering rent increases: they would provide the government with information about where senior citizens' housing is needed most."

Lebowitz said he had only seen Levi once since the report was submitted. At that time, Lebowitz said, Levi told the economists the government was "using" the report.

Rental supplements, according to the report, would only be given when actual rent increases occurred.

Cost of administering a rental supplement would be greater than providing a blanket cost of living index increase, the report said, but it would also provide the gov-

Divorce Phoenix-Style Isn't . . .

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Two hundred couples who thought they were divorced are not.

And after up to 40 years since their separations, they are going to get a chance to reconsider.

It all results from a fee-collection method used by lawyer V. L. Hash.

One of the town's best known lawyers, he is known to have filed many divorce cases without receiving the filing fee.

But his niece, Virginia Hash, recalled Monday that he always cautioned his clients:

"You're not divorced until this decree is filed and it's not going to be until I'm paid."

Hash died six years ago, and Miss Hash was named a co-executor of his estate.

Going through his papers, she found 200 divorce decrees which had been signed by judges but not filed with the clerk of the court and made final. Some date back to the 1920s.

To clear up the estate, she proposed to Superior Court Judge Laurens Henderson that he file all 200.

The judge said certain legal requirements would have to be complied with first.

For one thing, the plan would have to be approved by the state Supreme Court. Miss Hash filed a friendly appeal, and the court Monday set a Jan. 2 hearing.

She will advertise once a week for four weeks in the Phoenix Gazette, Arizona Republican, Arizona Daily Star and Tucson Daily Citizen that Henderson has scheduled a Feb. 21 hearing.

Listing all 200 couples by name, the advertisement will ask them to show cause why their divorce decrees should not be filed with the clerk of the court.

BARRETT SIGNS ON FOR HILL TOUR

By IAIN HUNTER
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Premier Dave Barrett of B.C. came to see Prime Minister Trudeau here Monday and was signed up for a guided tour of the Parliament Buildings.

He was not amused.

And he had a few harsh words to say about the National Capital and the "60 million sycophantic civil servants" who run it.

"I find it an incredible experience to walk into the Parliament Buildings and be made to sign my name on a piece of paper," he recounted in an interview.

"They asked me who I was, and I said 'I'm a citizen of this country, can't I come into my own Parliament Building'?" he recalled.

"They said not without a guided tour," he added.

At that time Barrett was on his way to see New Democratic Party leader David Lewis. He was to have lunch with Trudeau later.

"I feel just like a little country boy in the big city," the premier remarked, rolling his eyes. He called the national press gallery "a factory" compared to the mid-Victorian calm of the press gallery in Victoria, and annoyed some Ottawa reporters by his scathing references to Eastern Canada.

"I'm always a happy person," he said during a press conference. "But I don't have to live back East."

Barrett also found it "incredible" that he had to stand behind a white tape in an interview room where television cameras were set up, and expressed a preference for a table to sit at.

"Peace and love," he called out to reporters as he left, "and tomorrow get me a chair and table, okay?"

But when some reporters asked him how many bigots there are in B.C. —Trudeau had called former Premier W. A. C. Bennett a bigot — he wouldn't talk about it.

"He is a B.C. citizen of some merit," he said kindly.

Later, when asked to comment on Bennett's past appearances in Ottawa, when the Socred premier was laughed at for his demands at federal-provincial conferences, Barrett said:

"I don't want to comment on my predecessor — he's part of history."

revenue for the province from downstream benefits in the United States.

The premier repeated his party's view that the treaty was "a very bad deal for British Columbia," and noted that the province is $600 million "short" on anticipated revenue from the agreement.

The money was to be used for construction of the treaty dams in B.C.

The shortfall arose, he said, because the treaty didn't take into account "inflation and other costs" incurred by the province.

Barrett said the oversight in the cost of inflation was a result of "very poor calculation" by the Social Credit administration of W. A. C. Bennett which preceeded his, and by the federal government of the time.

The agreement, he said, was "hastily achieved" because it had become an emotional issue.

Asked if he expects the U.S. to agree to reopen the treaty, he replied that he hopes "in the long haul the Americans will be reasonable."

He told reporters that B.C. can't hope to recover the $600 million, but will be trying to prevent further loss in the future life of the treaty.

Barrett also reported that both he and Trudeau agreed not to resort to the courts to settle a long-standing disagreement over federal sales tax charges against B.C. ferry equipment.

Barrett today wound up what he said was a successful trip to Ottawa with discussions with federal officials on co-operation between the Canadian National Railways and the B.C. Railway.

He declined to go into detail of the talks but said that they will be continued when Transport Minister Jean Marchand and Regional Expansion Minister Donald Jamieson visit B.C. shortly.

Commenting on his two days of talks he said:

"There is a new level of co-operation between Ottawa and Victoria and it augers well for all of Canada."

WAC TO SPONSOR INCOME BILL

A bill to institute a guaranteed annual income for all B.C. residents will be introduced in the next session of the legislature by Social Credit leader W. A. C. Bennett.

The bill would ensure each single person a $2,000 annual income and married couples $4,000.

Bennett said Monday the program would cost about $200 million more than the total spent now on all social welfare programs.

"I don't think they will refuse because the money is there and it puts a floor on the whole economy and will give British Columbia the greatest prosperity it has ever known. They dare not refuse to accept it," Bennett said.

The bill is unlikely to go far in the legislature however because private members' bills involving the expenditures of funds are usually ruled out of order.

Bennett said persons 65 years and over, as well as handicapped persons, would have a guaranteed income of $2,750 if the bill were enacted.

COLDER, COLDER UNTIL 2020

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto's weather was cold today and it's going to get colder—for the next 50 years.

That's the forecast from the weatherman as temperatures in southern Ontario dipped into the low teens.

But weathermen say temperatures have been dropping for more than a decade and may stay below normal until the year 2020.

Morley Thomas, acting director of the federal government's weather office here, said temperatures in Eastern Canada have been below normal for all but one month of this year.

He said it is part of a mysterious cycle in which temperatures began to climb during the 1800s, reached a peak in 1956 and have declined to a point where the summer-winter average has dropped one degree since 1940.

"We don't know how long the downward trend will continue in the Northern Hemisphere," Mr. Thomas said. "But one group of astronomers figures it will be with us until the year 2020."

Although "we don't really know the cause," some experts have blamed the deteriorating weather on space exploration, nuclear explosions and even the artillery barrages of the first and second world wars.

Other theories blame changes in the sun's radiation, increased carbon dioxide in the atmosphere and the possible "drift" of land masses on the earth's surface.

And Alan Brewer, a University of Toronto physics professor has offered another explanation.

TOUGH SESSION

VANCOUVER (CP) — A final effort to reach voluntary peace between labor and management of the British Columbia waterfront began Monday under the auspices of Mr. Justice Nathan Nemetz, a federally-appointed mediator.

The B.C. Appeal Court judge, who has solved some of the province's toughest labor disputes in recent years, met the negotiating committees of the B.C. Maritime Employers Association and the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union at the University of B.C.

Similar meetings are expected to take up most of the week with both parties explaining their positions on key issues to the mediator.

There is an atmosphere of haste to reach settlement by Dec. 31, expiry date of the federal government's back-to-work legislation, passed at a special session of Parliament, Sept. 1.

After Dec. 31, the 3,200 longshoremen will be free to resume a strike which began in August and seriously disrupted Prairie grain shipments through B.C. ports.

The legislation also provided for a mediator but was unclear as to whether his term would end on the same date.

Mr. Justice Nemetz was appointed last week by the Liberal government in a cabinet order.

The appointment is without pay.

the weather

Another disturbance now moving into northern B.C. will move southward across the province in the next 36 hours. This system is quite weak and the air accompanying it is not very moist. The eastern interior can expect cloudy skies and some snowflurries with the disturbance but only patchy cloud is expected in western B.C.

EARLY VISIT FROM SANTA

Christmas comes early if you're the child of a lighthousekeeper or radio station operator on the B.C. coast.

For some of these children, Santa has already paid his call.

Each year the ministry of transport's icebreaker Camsell takes the place of Santa's sled and reindeer, making the rounds of the isolated stations on the coast.

The Camsell sailed Wednesday, laden with gifts and other surprises for children living at 30 or more isolated stations.

While not performing his holiday duties, Santa, as George Thomas, carries out his chores as steward aboard Camsell.

Camsell returns from her Christmas run Friday.

Manitoba Buys Russian Turbines

MOSCOW (Reuter) — The Soviet Union will supply Manitoba with hydroelectric turbines and generators worth $16 million, Manitoba Premier Ed Schreyer said today.

Schreyer, speaking at the end of an eight-day visit to Russia, said the equipment had a capacity "in the order of 30,000 kilowatts."

It will be used for a hydro-electric program in mid-northern Manitoba, he said.

ernment with an opportunity to disclose cases of rent increases and thus discourage the increases.

Cost of living increases are not the same for pensioners as for other consumers, the report said.

"Rising food prices, for example, will not be compensated for by a reduction in the cost of new automobile models. Similarly, the federal consumer price index would take no account of the provision of free or fixed price goods for pensioners such as drugs and rental housing, respectively."

An average rent increase level would be hard to determine and apply fairly in a diverse housing market, the report says. General rent controls would create serious disruption in the housing industry.

The only solution, according to the report, would be "a substantial and immediate government commitment to public housing."

Levi has not released the report.

WARNING The Department of National Health and Welfare advises that danger to health increases with amount smoked

PILE-DRIVING at the Causeway is not start of construction of the planned promenade at water level, but more testing to establish how far apart the piles themselves should be placed. The provincial government has allocated $180,000 for the project but work is not expected to start for at least three or four months, say city officials. A design has to be prepared, and approved by city council and the Capital Improvement District Commission, before tenders are called. If construction has not started by about mid-May at the latest it may be deferred to the fall of 1973, to avoid interrupting the city's busy tourist season. (Bill Halkett photo.)

Nader Presses for Curbs On Morning-After Pill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fearful of a "possible second cancer epidemic" from the controversial drug DES, Ralph Nader is urging the Food and Drug Administration to crack down on its use as a morning-after birth-control pill.

The consumer advocate's health research group issued an eight-page report Monday charging that university health clinics are handing out diethylstilbestrol (DES) without warning co-eds that they and their possible offspring are being exposed to a risk of cancer.

"It is clear that widespread and totally uncontrolled use of DES as a morning-after pill is a serious problem with possibly heavy, although unknown, consequences for the public health," the report said. "The drug industry, the FDA and the doctors must act to prevent this abuse."

The deputy director of FDA's bureau of drugs, Dr. Marion Finkel, said the agency hopes to resolve the problem within a few weeks.

The FDA's national drug advisory committee has concluded tentatively that DES effectively prevents pregnancy within 72 hours after intercourse, she said.

"What we don't know is certain safety problems and the degree of efficacy," she added

DES, a synthetic hormone, has been linked to vaginal cancer in about 100 women whose mothers took it during the 1940s and 1950s to avoid miscarriage. It since has been judged ineffective for that use, and now is prescribed most often for post-menopausal complications.

Last fall, the FDA banned its use effective Jan. 1 as a growth-promoter in animal feed because residues were found in edible tissues seven days after withdrawal. Canada also has banned the use of DES in cattle.

The Nader group mentioned specifically the University of Michigan, which has treated more than 1,000 young women with DES, and the University of Pennsylvania, which has FDA approval for investigating its use in treating rape victims.

"College women are being used as guinea pigs, without even the most rudimentary observance of professional standards and informed consents," said Dr. Sidney Wolfe, head of the health research group.

Medical officials at the Pennsylvania and Michigan schools discounted the warnings.

DISCOUNTS DANGER

"I've not seen anything yet in medical literature that anything has happened to the mothers" who used DES, said Dr. Paul Schrode, director of student health services at the University of Pennsylvania.

The only reported risk, he said, has been to children born to mothers taking DES. "Happily, most girls who get the morning-after pill would not go on to pregnancy."

Wolfe alleged that the co-eds are handed 10 pills to be taken over five days, 500 times their bodies' natural estrogen production, without being advised of the cancer hazard.

Statistically, between one in 25 and one in 50 women given DES to prevent pregnancy within 72 hours of intercourse already are pregnant, the report said.

The report urged that FDA order new labelling for DES discouraging postcoital use, that physicians prescribe it only under controlled investigational settings, and that drug companies point out the unapproved use to doctors.

Hutterites Unhappy

CALGARY (CP) — Although the Alberta Communal Properties Act has been set for repeal Jan. 1, Hutterites still feel expansion of their colonies is being limited, Hutterite Bishop John Wurz said.

UN Refuses to Approve Action Against Terror

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Western hopes for decisive action by the United Nations against terrorism lay shattered today after the General Assembly's legal committee approved a mildly-worded resolution, in effect putting the issue off for a year.

A U.S. proposal that an international treaty against terrorism be prepared early in 1973, and a compromise resolution offered by Britain, Canada, Japan, Australia, New Zealand and nine other states were not voted on.

The compromise would have made the assembly instruct the International Law Commission to draft an anti-terrorism convention for submission to next year's assembly.

The successful resolution, approved by 76 votes to 34 with 16 abstentions, asked states for their observations on terrorism and proposed to set up an ad hoc committee to examine those views, with the committee reporting to next year's assembly.

The resolution is considered certain to be endorsed by the assembly in plenary session within the next eight days. The assembly is due to adjourn next Tuesday.

CRITICIZE FAILURE

Delegate after delegate took the floor after the vote to criticize what many called the UN's failure to "come to grips" with the problem of terrorism.

Western diplomats said the campaign for international legal measures would continue outside the world organization.

U.S. Ambassador W. Tapley Bennett said the purpose of the resolution was "indefinite delay."

"Others will take over this issue," he predicted. "The United Nations will lose what ought to be its primary role."

Israeli Ambassador Yosef Tekoah said in a statement that "the parliamentary situation prevailing in the United Nations, which determined the outcome of every debate irrespective of the nature of the issue and of the merits of the various positions" had crippled the organization and rendered it incapable of acting equitably and effectively.

He was alluding to the often automatic majority which the non-aligned states, many of which are strongly anti-Israeli, are often able to muster on certain issues.

Should We Never Say Die?

Much of the current furore over Arctic search and rescue operations may originate in a lack of knowledge concerning the northern terrain and the means by which searches are carried out.

The nature of the wilderness — the endless miles of scrubby forest and clearings, of countless lakes small and large, of vegetation and rock or winter's featureless blanket of snow — place heavy odds against finding a downed aircraft or survivors in any case. When to these hazards is added frequently impossible flying weather, the predicament is complete.

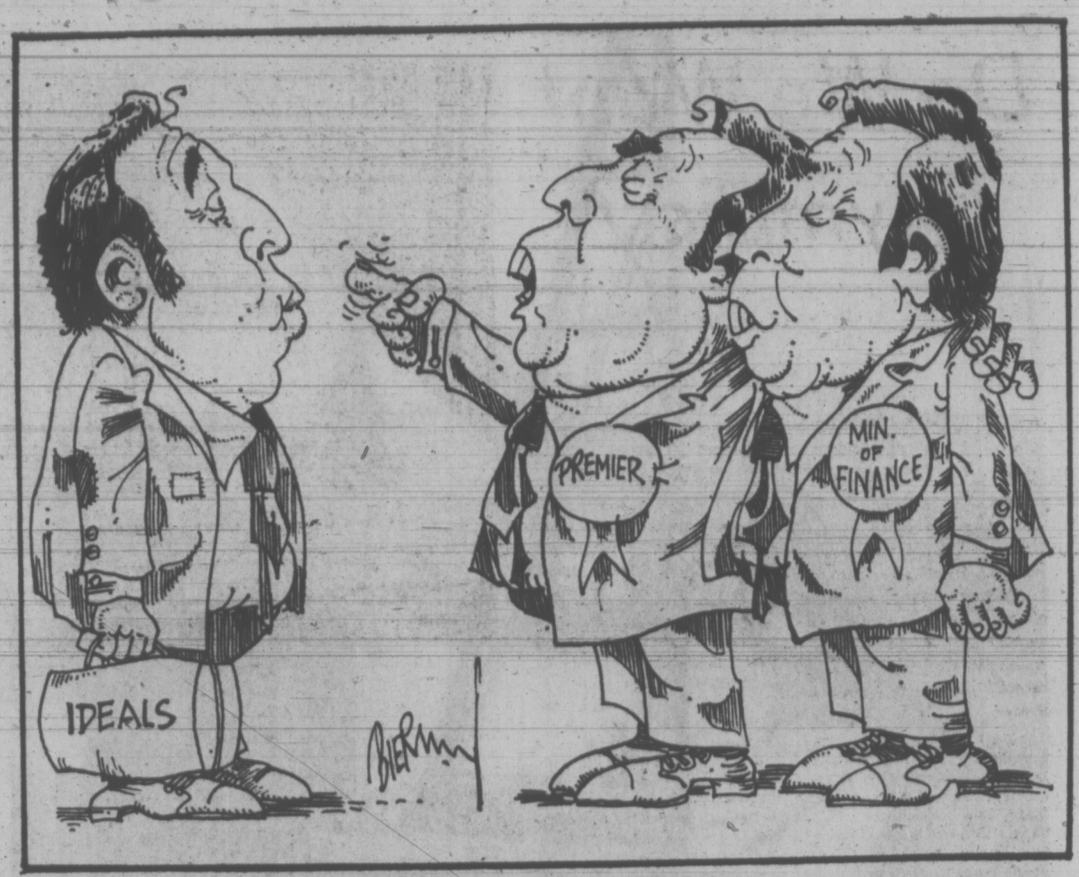
On the other hand, the flights of rescue aircraft thread their way across the countryside in planned patterns which promise the best chance of success. Experienced eyes scan the land below for telltale signs. The faintest signals which may originate with the crash survivors are checked out. Yet despite many flights and days devoted to search, it is often sheer good luck that leads to success.

As with many such dangers, the best technique is not to get lost, and this involves properly serviced flying equipment, and a respect for northern weather which often keeps experienced pilots on the ground. After these come a good knowledge of how to stay alive in almost impossible conditions, proven survival kits, and adequate radio beacon equipment to guide searchers.

The problem of how long to search is an agonizing one for those in charge. Some planes have not been seen until years later, so completely had the wilderness swallowed them up. If a month seems long enough to look for survivors, the Canadian North provides examples of far longer endurance records, such as that of pilot Bob Gauchie a few years ago, who survived 58 days alone in temperatures as low at 54 below before being found — and then by chance.

Then two months may not be too long to continue a search, although by that time all the likely routes and sites would have long been checked out. The final success of searchers in locating Martin Hartwell last Saturday shows — despite the tragedy of the death of his three passengers — that perseverance pays.

It is right that the federal government should now look into the whole problem of Northern searches. From a full study should come new regulations regarding automatic signalling equipment, and some guidelines on reasonable length and intensity of search. What is certain is that we cannot afford to underestimate the severity and difficulties of the wilderness and the weather, on the one hand, or on the other the incredible survival abilities of many who are downed in the North. How much is too much to spend for a human life?



"... get lost, Dave ... three's a crowd..."

'... For the Road'

Interesting results are reported by a Regina hotel proprietor from the installation of a breath analysis machine in his beverage room. The equipment found immediate use among patrons and at least a few of them, with alcohol readings above .08, left their cars in the parking lot overnight rather than drive home.

It is difficult to foresee the end of the traditional argument regarding an individual's tolerance of alcohol. Some contend that they can function efficiently with a much larger intake than others — and this may be true. The fact remains, however, that drivers found with readings over .08 can be subjected to legal strictures no matter what their tolerance may be.

The hotel proprietor has now made it possible for the individual drinking in his beverage room to determine for himself or herself whether or not the legal danger line has been passed. The equipment will obviously not stop all drinkers from driving when impaired. It nevertheless gives them a basis for judgment and can reveal to them the legal risks they take.

The Regina experiment is one that might well be copied elsewhere in Canada to relieve drinking drivers of doubts as to their vulernability under the law concerning breathalizer tests.

DAVID HUMPHREYS

A New Status for Canadians

LONDON — The last right I want as a Canadian living in London is the right to join the British Army. Not far behind is the right to vote, although since the vote is offered it is accepted. I am thankful for the privilege of not having to report annually to the police.

If Ottawa is going to negotiate, however reluctantly, with a squirming British government anxious to be even more generous it might try to spare me a day in one of the longest continuous queues in this queueing country. This is the line at the nationality office of persons, foreigners and Commonwealth citizens, seeking permission to extend stays here.

They even provide seats, no doubt realizing the wait may be hours. Officious attendants herd the supplicants from one bench to the next. In the interests of adventure — or perhaps they would style it efficient planning —the government has just moved this office from its convenient site in downtown London to Croydon, an outer suburb. It's like travelling from Victoria to Colwood, there to face bureaucracy with a vengeance.

Work Permit Trouble

I'd trade in my military and voting rights tomorrow for the right to have an immigration officer at Heathrow airport extend my working stay. Or another officer in London who isn't burdened with the whole range of the country's complex immigration regulations. All I want is a few months extension of a one-year working permit renewable annually.

It's a question only of formality because once I battle my way through Croydon, approval will be granted. Coming through Heathrow the other day I asked the officer if he couldn't give me a few extra months. What a joke, that was. Had I been reading about the dust-up on immigration in the House? Well? In the nicest way he gave me the Croydon address and wished me luck.

All this may sound trivial but it is the mark of Commonwealth distinction in Britain today. Home Secretary Robert Carr promised in the Commons he would do his damnedest to see there was a special Commonwealth gate at major ports of entry and if for any reason it should be closed, why the Commonwealth people could pass through the British gate.

The government suffered a stunning defeat, its first, over rules to govern Commonwealth citizens after January 1.

It made the serious tactical mistake of combining Commonwealth rules with others providing free entry for six months for citizens of Britain's future Common Market partners. Britain must comply with European regulations for free movement of workers.

Emotional Links

The Heath government had not reckoned with the deep emotional links still existing between this country and Canada, Australia and New Zealand. Since 1950 Canada has taken 600,000 British emigrants and the total is more than double that figure. Relatives are everywhere, including the House of Commons.

Ostensibly many MPs were not prepared to see Frenchmen and Germans treated better than Canadian relatives, though arguably that won't be the case anyway. The reasons for the defeat probably lay in several government policies and ministerial performances which have disturbed backbenchers.

A healthy result for Britain is the end at long last to the hypocrisy surrounding colored immigration. Every Commonwealth citizen before 1962 was entitled to enter the U.K. at will. Faced with a flood of Asians and Africans restrictions have been imposed gradually since 1962. They have applied equally to all Commonwealth citizens, thus avoiding charges of discrimination even though Britain was never worried about a flood of Canadians or Australians.

It's rather late in the day to start worrying about Old Commonwealth privileges, years after those countries have deliberately moved away from the Old Commonwealth concept. Mr. Carr has promised to secure a better deal for us expatriate Commonwealth citizens in talks with Canada, Australia and New Zealand. Some marginal improvement — relief from Croydon, or special airport entry gates — is more than we deserve at present. Canada, glorying in universality, is removing the last vestige of reciprocal rights from British citizens or emigrants in Canada.

What a pity. The day is likely gone when Canada and Britain could establish reciprocal travel rights. Canada already has a virtual free-travel zone with the U.S. English-speaking Canadians are striving ever so seriously to be distinct from the U.S. The only alternative source of English-speaking culture — indeed its heart — is here. English-speaking Canadians need access to Britain equally as much as French-speaking Canadians value access to the heartland of French culture.

"Access"

"Access" can take the form of cultural agreements, as with France, or of facilities for travel. Without any reciprocal Canadian rights, Britain already allows Canadian students to stay here for up to three years on "working holiday," giving them a tremendous opportunity to enrich themselves. If Mr. Carr's discussions do anything to strengthen this arrangement, preferably making it a two-way street, they will be well worthwhile.

What Canadians could benefit from most here are extended privileges for specific purposes: study, culture, travel, business; not military and voting rights. We don't deserve to be given them unilaterally. Is it too much to hope that in both countries' national interests, new talks will re-examine the whole field and propose something more than sops to emotional thinking?

LETTERS FROM OUR READERS

Postmaster General:

Recently you announced you intended to visit all sections under your jurisdiction to find out what makes members of the postal service unhappy.

I suggest you should also query members of the public and try and find out what makes them unhappy with the postal service, which is unutterably lousy, outrageously expensive and thoroughly unreliable. Some of the people you employ can't even read. — Gwen Cash (Mrs.), 350 Douglas St.

Fulfilment

In reference to Ann Dunsmuir's article of Dec. 4 " 'Acceptance and Admiration': Keys to Womanhood". I would now like her to know that she is misinformed about the Mormon beliefs. Mormons do not hold the view that women are inferior to men ... but they are different! They have not only different physical appearancs (or should have) but also different emotional make-ups as well as different potentials and limitations.

Is it being a stereotype to want to be a mature, fully-developed woman with a home and family for a profession? What is more creative than raising a family, or more fulfilling than standing hand in hand with your husband with peace in your hearts? Certainly a house can be cared for by another, which would release the liberated woman to do her own thing, but I pity the children and husband in such a situation for the woman is the heart of the home.

Without her attention the home cannot realize its potential, and whether or not she is, or even will be, aware of it, this woman locks the door on the area of her greatest possible fulfilment. If this is stereotype, I love it!

I am not a stuck-in-a-rut, middle-aged woman. At 27 I have gone through university, taught secondary school, represented Canada internationally on a basketball team for six years, and have had two children during eight years of marriage. In spite of recognition outside my family, being important in my own home is the only important feeling that doesn't fade as a mirage.

It is hard work trying to become a "domestic goddess", to try to hold always to the thought "nothing before thee, my husband, not even me!" But as I work for it I know that this train is on the right track and I ride not as a "second-class passenger" but First Class. And I know where I'm going. — Mrs. Robert Coutts, 5156 Beekton Rd.

Personal Creativity

There is a proposal before the provincial government, presented by the Pacific Coast Centre Foundation, to build a Cultural and Convention Centre in Victoria. (Times Nov. 29.)

As a member of the community who will be directly affected by this centre, I would like to present a point of view which is opposed to such a development.

In late '63 the federal cabinet approved construction of the National Arts Centre, at an estimated cost of $9,000,000. By '68 the estimate was $42,000,000.

"... we must enlarge our alliances beyond the realm of fine arts, if we are to affect the aesthetic quality of environmental design in all its facets": Helen Diemert. We can no longer keep art on the stage, separated from life. We must begin to share art on an everyday personal basis.

For too long we have divided people into those who have creative abilities and those who have none. I am sick and tired of the elitist attitude of the so-called creatives, as they attempt to create a memorial to their egotistic selfishness, through a centre of this sort.

In an age of increasing unemployment (which will soon get you too), and environmental crisis (both personal and physical), we must begin to help all the people of B.C., who want to, to get in touch with their inner resource of creativity. For it is only through many people struggling to bring harmony, beauty and peace into their lives, that we will avoid total disaster on this planet.

This is why I urge you to oppose the construction of a centre that will only help a few and merely entertain the rest of us.

If the government would help the people of B.C. use their own creative resources and abilities, through supporting groups and individuals to create and carry out cultural programs, aimed at improving the quality of the total environment and the lives of individuals, (instead of supporting a cultural and convention centre) this would serve the community in exploring and developing the alternatives available to us in solving our many cultural problems. — R. van Goudoever, Box 694, Sooke.

Great Achievement

"Of the making of books there is no end"; but one book all should read is that of Norman Lidster of Mount St. Mary's Hospital, who, totally blind and completely crippled with arthritis, has at long last had his book "No Time For Why" published.

It is a great achievement, and fills one with admiration of the courage, patience and endurance of Norman, to overcome a life-long handicap, with a memory phenomenal.

This book should be placed in every library, school and college, every nursing home, and it should be in every home. It will give an uplift to all, especially anyone with lesser handicaps, such as those we are told we must learn to live with.

Living in complete darkness, Norman has "let his light so shine", that others might see what can be done under extreme difficulties. With the help of friends he has been able to see and enjoy life in spite of everything, and now has the satisfaction of seeing his book in print. May it go far and wide. — Dorothy Abraham, 1125 Faithful St.

Mincome

In your issue of Saturday, December 9, appeared a better-than-quarter page ad sponsored by the provincial Department of Rehabilitation and Social Improvement, headed "Introducing Mincome for those 65 or over".

For those who receive the federal Guaranteed Income Supplement (the only section of our citizenry to qualify), it's simply wonderful. Some of these people were never able to accumulate a backing, for a variety of causes: sickness, unemployment, etc., so are deserving of consideration. But others who could have made provision for themselves, preferred to "live it up", dissipating their income on expensive gadgetry (cars, mechanical appliances, etc.) and yes, even booze, not to mention living in high-priced apartments.

Then there are those who fail to disclose their true total income, lessening their lawful tax and thereby qualifying for the Supplementary Benefit. All these people qualify for Mincome.

In the United States Social Security Benefits are paid "across the board"; at 65 everybody qualifies without any means test and with no Supplementary Benefit. Similarly, in Great Britain, Old Age Pensions are payable to either spouse at 65, when the other spouse qualifies automatically, irrespective of age! Here, in this country, those of us who have been sufficiently provident to reach a little above the poverty level are the subject of discrimination, penalized by our own prudence.

As a veteran of both major conflicts in the last half century, can it be wondered at that I feel bitter at so much preferential treatment to some, but denied to me? To those scoffers who suggest expense as an excuse, I reply: "Come another war, there would be money a-plenty."

My beef would not be complete without reminding you that those of us who have a taxable income over a certain figure are required to pay income tax on our Old Age Security payments. Supplementiers, of course, pay nothing! Isn't that a laugh! —"DISTURBED"

60 YEARS AGO

From The Times of Dec. 12, 1912:

LONDON — A suffragette, while making a speech on the Brighton esplanade last night, made an insulting reference to the late Queen Victoria, which nearly resulted in there being one suffragette less to harangue in the cause of suffrage. The crowd, immediately the reference was made, stormed the platform, and had it not been for the intervention of the police would have inflicted serious injuries on the woman.

Elsie Howey, militant suffragette, was sentenced today to two months imprisonment for turning in false alarms of fire last night.

'For a Personal Judgment About Where We All Now Stand'

JAMES RESTON

LONDON — The end of the year is a time for summing up and looking forward, and since Arnold Toynbee, the British historian, has been keeping book on the human race for most of his 83 years, it seemed reasonable to look him up in St. James's Square for a personal judgment about where we all now stand.

The old gentleman is a little wispy now, all white hair and wonderful bushy eyebrows, and bright eager eyes. But while he talks ruefully about the human family, he thinks, like a loving but disappointed schoolmaster, that maybe the next generation or two may have a chance.

In the last quarter of this century, or the first quarter in the next—he thinks in centuries and continents — he foresees, not another world war, but a great struggle among the advanced industrial nations for the limited natural resources of an over-populated world.

He sees progress toward co-operation among the nations, and toward control of human fertility, but thinks both must go much faster if the nations are to avoid disaster.

He is rather pleased with the recent trends in Germany and the Soviet Union. The Germans, he says, may have come to terms with history, and seem now to have got beyond the dreams of conquest, and the course of revenge.

The Russians have changed too, he thinks, not much, but some. Ever since Peter the Great, they have vowed to catch up with the West, but somehow, they always bound forward and then either get tangled in their own contradictions and bureaucracy, or "go to sleep," and find themselves behind the West again.

Now, Toynbee believes, there is at least a temporary change in Moscow. They seem to be considering the possibility that they have more to gain in the world of computers, trade and modern technology by co-operating with the advanced industrial nations than by opposing them in the world of ideology and politics.

This will be a slow process, Toynbee thinks, for the Russians are suspicious and have good historical reasons for being so, but they are concerned about the emergence of China in the East and the envious glances of Communist Eastern Europe at the prosperous West, so they are reaching to Germany, Japan and the United States for technological help and trade, and this, he thinks, is a good thing.

When he talks about the living generations in the Western countries, Toynbee sounds not only doubtful but sad. He welcomes the movement toward European unity, with Britain a part of it. Nationalism is still a very strong force in the world, he says, and most of the people in the Western European countries don't like this troubling and complicated movement toward federation.

But, he observes, unification in Europe will go on. Even weak Federal experiments like the early American confederacy of separate states have a way of drawing power to the centre, and this, he thinks, will happen in Europe — maybe not as close and unified as in the United States or the Soviet Union, but in the end a strong centralized independent European Federal union nonetheless.

Toynbee doesn't like what he sees in the Western world today. There is, he thinks, an obvious decline in common honesty, an absence of common purpose. He has to lock his doors at night, and even check his bank statements for possible fraud. There is little pride in work. The modern unions are as selfish as the old robber baron owners of the past. Material success and the gross national product are now the aims of the peoples and governments of the Western nations, but even in material terms, this is not good enough to compete effectively in the coming age.

As a person, Toynbee says he does not believe in orthodox religion, but as a historian, he thinks nations rise or fall in relation to the moral unity of the family and the moral purpose of the state, and he sees in the West a decline in both.

In this regard, he is outspokenly disappointed in the United States. It was, he says, the new Jerusalem, the great centre of both power and idealism, but now, particularly since the war in Vietnam, it seems very much like the other imperial powers, more interested in its power than in its ideals.

Still, he says he has his consolation. Some of the young are rejecting the materialistic goal of life, and turning to simpler ways, and approaching the old and the sick with compassion. Some families, he observes, particularly the Jews, are holding together, and their strength, he predicts, will increase. But on the whole he seems pessimistic about the West, and hopes, not for a revival of orthodox faith, but for an ethical reformation that will come out of the spiritual needs of the contemporary western world.

He will not see this reformation, he says, but he believes in the regeneration of nations, if their leaders will appeal to the ideals of the people and not only to their pocketbooks. Meanwhile, he takes a long view of his own life. He is still working on a book on the decline of Byzantium, which he says he first planned in 1910.

Do We Want Olympics?

By RONALD LEBEL
The Toronto Star

MONTREAL — Two members of the Quebec cabinet have added their voices to a mounting public clamor for a referendum on whether Montreal should stage the 1976 Summer Olympics Games.

Kevin Drummond, lands and forests minister and Georges Tremblay, minister without portfolio, were among 11 Montreal-based members of the Quebec National Assembly who favored a referendum in a survey published recently by the newspaper La Presse.

Eight other provincial members from Montreal Island opposed a vote on the Games. Most of them argued that island residents could hardly give a valid verdict at this time because Mayor Jean Drapeau refuses to publish the city's cost and revenue estimates.

Drapeau said last week it is too late to hold a referendum.

He cited difficulties in enumerating voters, the time required to organize the referendum and its cost — between $8 and $10 million for a national referendum and about $2 million for a local one.

Colorado Did It

"Holding a referendum at this time would mean not holding the Games," the mayor said in reply to questions on a special open line edition of a local public affairs television program.

He said the idea of holding a referendum on the Games had not even occurred to Montrealers until after a vote in Colorado killed the planned Winter Olympics in Denver by cutting off public funds.

"It is true that some people are against the Games, but until the referendum in Denver, the people were unanimously in favor of the Olympics," Drapeau said.

The newspaper, which conducted the poll among the 25 Montreal Island members of the National Assembly, says 14 of 17 who answered a question on funding of the Games favor both federal and provincial financial assistance.

No replies were received to the series of questions about the Games—their funding, a referendum, and whether Montreal should hold the event—from Premier Robert Bourassa and three of his Montreal-area cabinet ministers.

Drapeau and his Olympic planners have opened secret talks with federal officials amid reports that the city will need more than $300 million for construction projects alone.

Obviously concerned over a growing protest movement among Montreal-area ratepayers, Quebec Finance Minister Raymond Garneau has told the Quebec legislature that the games can be financed without "excessive costs" with federal and provincial funds.

Garneau said that publishing cost figures now would reduce competition between contractors submitting sealed tenders for construction of games facilities. The first tenders are expected to be called next spring, six months behind the schedule announced by Drapeau last April 6.

The mayor's penchant for secrecy and grandiose projects have come under heavy fire in Montreal since the Denver vote.

Mayors of a dozen Montreal suburbs have appealed for a similar referendum on Montreal Island, expressing fears that Drapeau will milk the island-wide Metro Council for funds to finance his Olympic projects.

Thousands Sign

In the past two weeks, more than 10,000 persons have demanded a referendum in mail-ballot campaigns conducted by local newspapers and radio stations.

La Presse received more than 8,000 replies after it published a ballot form in only two editions, with 56 per cent favoring a referendum. In a separate mail-in ballot organized by the English-language radio station CJAD, a referendum was favored by 88 per cent of more than 6,000 who replied.

In addition, 22,000 east-end residents have signed a petition protesting Drapeau's plan to build the Olympic village on a municipal golf course and park.

Several suburban mayors say their ratepayers would reject public financing of the two-week summer Olympiad if a vote were taken on the issue. They predict that costs will run into hundreds of millions of dollars and they scoff at Drapeau's assurances that the games will be "self-financing."

Provincial government sources say the Olympics could cost between $300 million and $400 million, apart from the village.

The Quebec Cities and Towns Act requires municipalities to submit their borrowing proposals to a referendum when 40 or more ratepayers sign a petition. However, this provision does not apply to the City of Montreal, and the Quebec government plans to eliminate it altogether in a forthcoming revision of municipal laws.

Municipal councillors will retain the right to call a referendum, and some suburban mayors have hinted they may resort to this tactic next year to disprove Drapeau's claims that Montreal Island residents overwhelmingly support the Olympics.

A referendum is highly unlikely in Montreal proper, since Drapeau's Civic Party holds all 52 seats on city council.

In their talks with the federal Treasury Board, city officials are reported to be pressing for several measures to facilitate Olympic financing. Their key proposals are for:

- An amendment to the Criminal Code that would authorize Quebec's lottery agency to operate an Olympic lottery across the country each year until 1976;
- Removal of part of a CP Rail yard to provide a site for some of the games facilities under a federal aid program announced shortly before the Oct. 30 elections;
- Federal loans, covering 90 per cent of the cost of the Olympic village under low-rental housing and urban renewal programs. The units would be available for such housing after the games.

CBC Exclusive?

- Government approval of a bid by the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation for exclusive television and radio rights to the games (various networks paid about $12 million for the broadcasting rights at the Munich games last August);
- Changes in federal laws that would allow the Canadian Mint and the Post Office to issue Olympic gold coins and commemorate stamps and turn over the proceeds to the games organizing committee;
- Federal permission for the use of Canadian Armed Forces personnel as support staff during the games and for the free use of communications facilities owned by such agencies as the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, the Canadian Overseas Telecommunications Corporation and Telesat Canada.

The Quebec government is expected to provide grants for the construction of some of the smaller sports facilities and to guarantee a Montreal bond issue to finance the retractable-roof stadium, which will be used after 1976 by professional baseball, football and soccer teams.

Tri-Level Talks

Financial talks between the three levels of government began in earnest during the Aug. 18-19 weekend when Drapeau met Premier Bourassa and Marc Lalonde, newly elected Liberal MP for Outremont and former principal secretary to Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau.

The meetings took place at Montreal's Queen Elizabeth Hotel while the Quebec Liberal Party was holding its annual convention there.

'Pull Out Now'

THE SUN
An Editorial

Mayor Jean Drapeau is right in rejecting the idea of a national referendum on whether the 1976 Olympic Games should be retained or abandoned by Montreal. Not because of the reasons he cites — the time and the cost — but because it would be frivolous to stage such a rigmarole to reach what is a foregone conclusion. The growing rebellion of the Montreal suburbs suggests that a referendum would produce a negative vote even there if not, indeed, in Montreal itself.

Besides, a referendum would provide the federal government with an easy way out of the Olympics mess that it really doesn't deserve. It misread the philanthropic mood of Canadians when it sanctioned Montreal's application in the first place. If its reading is no more accurate following the recent election results, no amount of cabinet-shuffling is going to make it credible.

What the government should be asking itself right now is whether the Canadian taxpayer — in all the cities and towns and districts in the land that can't obtain grants for truly important projects — will feel privileged and honored to donate once again to Montreal civic improvements.

Surely it is clear to the government that its pledge not to bail out Mayor Drapeau is being met with as much cynicism as Mayor Drapeau's assurance that the Olympics "won't cost the taxpayers one cent." If the Montreal Olympics go on, the federal treasury will be raided for hundreds of millions of dollars; any protestation otherwise is barefaced deception.

As has been demonstrated by the people of Colorado, there is nothing irrevocable about an Olympic commitment that has been entered into without the expressed consent of those who would end up paying the bills. Mayor Drapeau did not obtain any such consent from the Canadian people. He got us into this and, with the help of a federal government that was either naive or a most foolish conspirator, he is going to have to get us out.

The device employed to get the Canadian taxpayer off the hook and keep governmental embarrassment at a minimum is unimportant. What is important is that a realistic decision be taken now, while there is respectable time left to find these summer Olympics a happier home. It is not good enough for Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau merely to "smell a rat" in the Olympic financing fable. The time has come to shoot it.

THE EMPRESS BOWS

Hold That Tiger!

By BOB HUNTER
The Sun

The decision to liberate the Bengal Room was not taken lightly.

Your correspondent had a bit of a cold and did not much feel like leaving the warmth of the Empress Hotel to go in search of the other watering hole in Victoria, if there is one.

A wind had down from the edges of space and was rattling the windows, actually blowing snow in drifts across the streets. A blizzard in Victoria? Was nothing sacred?

★ ★ ★

It had not been what many people would call a hard day's work. Mainly, what had been involved were interviews with a couple of my employees, young Dave Barrett and Bob Williams. But that was all straightened out now, and they had their orders.

Right now, I wanted to place mine. A hot toddy would do just nicely. That walk across from the legislature to the Empress had been brutal.

A sign by the entrance to the Bengal Room said: NO JEANS.

Of course, I was wearing jeans. And cowboy boots, as a matter of fact. Otherwise, apart from muttonchops (the beard is actually gone) and longish hair, I could have passed for a citizen at any bus stop.

Well, only a homesick Inuvikian would go outdoors on a night like this. Besides, come to think of it, isn't it passing strange that one may enter the office of the premier of the province in jeans, but one may not enter some pretentious little boozery? Isn't this the People's Era? Hot toddy drinkers of the world, unite! You have nothing to lose but your thirst!

Forward . . .

The first obstacle turns out to be some poor economic slave forced to wear the sort of uniform one used to see worn by the monkey who held the organ-grinder's cup.

Obviously, he's not the real target. So when he explains the regulation and how he's awfully sorry, I don't immediately summon down the wrath of The People. Rather, I proceed to the front desk in the lobby and demand to see the manager. At first the clerk is reluctant to fetch his task master. I insist. Finally, the manager is produced.

"I'm sorry, sir, we do have this regulation. There are, ah, reasons . . ."

"I'm sure there are. However, I must insist on my right to a drink in the Bengal Room."

★ ★ ★

The manager excuses himself and goes into a huddle with the clerk. Then the manager straightens, braces for battle, and walks back toward me. Animal-like, I shift my stance. He smiles thinly.

"Well, I'm certain this can be taken care of. If you'll just allow me to make a short phone call, I'm sure a table will be available."

I nod curtly and stride back to the Bengal Room. The waiter quickly leads me to a table, takes my order, and pacifies me with some free peanuts.

★ ★ ★

But the evening proves to be gloomy. I look around at the room which has just been "liberated." In its hour of victory, jean-power feels cheated. The Bengal Room is more silly than sumptuous. Pretence is a hollow laugh.

After one drink, the presence of the Bengal tiger skin over the fireplace becomes so depressing I decide to leave. That's all one needs to be reminded of on a night when the Ice Age seems to have come to Victoria . . . extinction of the Bengal tigers . . .

The small pleasure of liberating the Bengal Room is swallowed in the bitterness of the world being lost one species at a time, so back to his room your correspondent retreats, thinking: Yes, people power is probably a wee bit stronger than it used to be, and that's fine, but for every inch gained socially it still seems that a mile is being lost from the environment.

In the morning somebody points out that the plants in the Empress' conservatory are dying because the heat isn't being kept up. Somehow, that seems to figure.

ADAPTING TO NEW FACE OF QUEBEC

By JEAN VIGNEAULT
Sherbrooke La Tribune, an Editorial

Francophones are trying to establish their rights and privileges in Quebec on a more solid base; they are really trying to take hold of a future which belongs to them.

And this time it is probably serious, because the Anglophones have undertaken to reflect on what future they will have in a Francophone Quebec and even in a Quebec which aspires to break away from Canada in order to become independent.

This uncertainty on the part of Anglophones is not morbid and is often part of a desire to remain within Quebec society, even if some see the situation as more tragic than it really is and if some still have colonial reflexes.

Evidently, it behooves Anglophones to adapt themselves to the new face of Quebec rather than for the Francophones to try to insert Anglophones progressively and slowly into the new life of Quebec, but one must not deny that Quebec cannot allow itself totally to abandon Anglophones and let them exile themselves to Ontario or other regions where they will receive a warmer welcome than here.

These Anglophone businessmen love Quebec and are not prepared to leave it on the pretext that the social climate inconveniences and upsets their traditions. However, without going down on their knees to the minority, it is the duty of the Francophone majority clearly to show Anglophones that a French Quebec, and even an independent Quebec, will always count on their presence, not only to equalize our economy, but also because, socially, they have a role to play in this province.

Bums, But Not Necessarily

This advertisement conflicts directly with the views of the national NDP leader, David Lewis.

The campaign of the NDP in the recent election campaign was one of very narrow focus. The only spokesman who got any attention was David Lewis, and he confined himself to his themes of "corporate rip-offs" and "corporate welfare bums" and the "honey incentive society."

Mr. Lewis is an articulate and experienced lawyer. In this case he was the advocate of an oversimplified and overstated argument.

There are people in Canada who condemn welfare programs and speak of "welfare bums." These people hurt the many Canadians who are desperately in need of increased welfare benefits. There are abuses in our welfare systems that must be corrected, but wholesale condemnation of the system is damaging to the people who need help most.

★ ★ ★

The same criteria holds true for corporate incentive programs. No doubt Mr. Lewis has specific examples of corporations who have received unneeded financial help from the taxpayers. It would be surprising indeed if there were not flaws in the various programs of industrial incentives in use across Canada. But to jump from specific cases to wholesale condemnation of job-producing industrial incentives is irresponsible.

It is important to note that there are many dedicated supporters of the NDP who do not support Mr. Lewis on this issue.

Here is what William Dodge, vice-president of the Canadian Labor Congress, had to say before a House committee in 1970:

". . . We are not against using the taxation system as a means of encouraging economic activity by a system of incentives or in other ways."

Here is what Premier Allan Blakeney of Saskatchewan had to say in a speech to the Saskatoon Board of Trade in September of 1972:

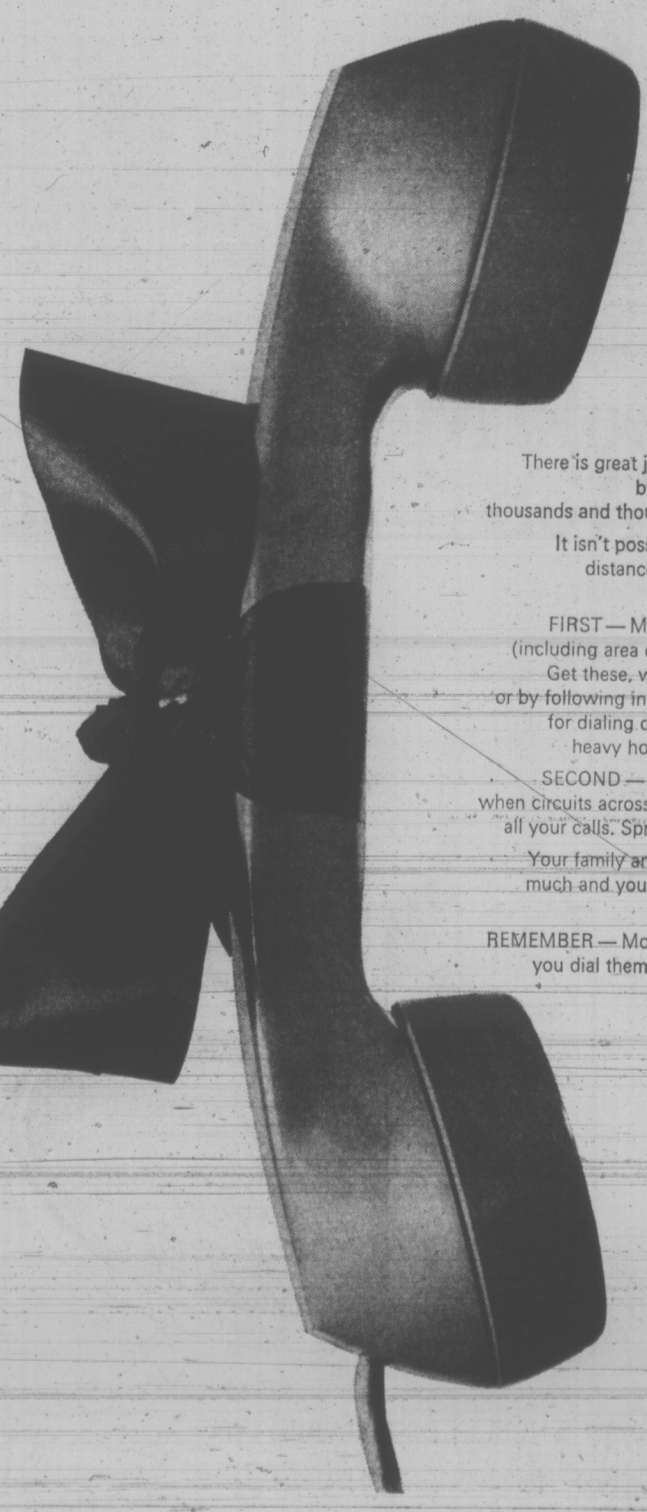
"I favor a policy of governments trying to stimulate industry in less industrialized and slow-growth areas."

In Saskatchewan in 1972, the NDP government of Premier Blakeney passed the Industry and Commerce Development Act, and then amended the Industry Incentive Act to remove ceilings on loans and grants and loosen the purse strings in the interest of industrial expansion.

The Manitoba Development Coporation, a Crown agency of Premier Edward Schreyer's NDP government, lends tens of millions of dollars a year to private enterprise.

In short, these NDP supporters accept the fact that industrial incentives are an essential tool of government in the desperately important task of finding jobs.

The premiers and the officials of the Canadian Labor Congress have active responsibilities for jobs. Mr. David Lewis does not. Therein lies the difference.



Calling home for Christmas? Here are some suggestions to make it easier.

There is great joy in exchanging Christmas greetings by telephone. So much so, in fact, that thousands and thousands of Canadians do so each year.

It isn't possible to reserve specific times for long distance calls but you can minimize delay by following these tips:

FIRST — Make a list now of the phone numbers (including area codes) of the people you plan to call. Get these, without charge, through your operator or by following instructions in your telephone directory for dialing direct. Do this now and avoid battling heavy holiday traffic just to get your numbers.

SECOND — Don't wait until Christmas Day itself, when circuits across Canada will be overloaded, to place all your calls. Spread them over the Christmas season.

Your family and friends will enjoy your calls just as much and you'll be more certain of getting through without delay.

REMEMBER — Most long distance calls cost less when you dial them yourself. Even less after 6 p.m. and all day Sunday.

So, give them a call for Christmas. No bothersome shopping, wrapping or mailing.

Pruning Pact Pushed For Oak Bay Trees

Ron Smith, president of Charles A. Cowie Tree Service Ltd. suggested Monday that Oak Bay enter into agreements with B.C. Hydro and B.C. Telephone Co. on payment for pruning trees to clear utility lines.

Smith appeared before council's parks and recreation committee to ask that his firm be used to make boulevard trees safe, shape them and remove them when necessary.

He said his experience with the utilities — he has a contract with B.C. Telephone which expires at the end of the month — would be of assistance because he could trim the trees to both the municipality and utilities' satisfaction.

He said the city of Victoria had no "black and white" agreement with the utilities but offered to give the information to municipal engineer-planner Geoffrey White.

He said he did not wish to give names of contacts when the press was present.

A check with Cliff Bate, city parks director today, confirmed that Victoria does have an agreement with the utilities.

The city uses its own crews to do most of its pruning and receives $1,000 annually for keeping lines clear of tree limbs from both B.C. Hydro and B.C. Telephone, as well as another $1,000 for keeping its own street lighting system in shape.

Bate said, "We reserve the right to have complete control of our trees. The money we receive is for minor charges. We are committed to keep the heavy lines open at no cost to the utilities."

Bate said that even when the B.C. Hydro crews are used in cases where high lines are involved a member of his staff is always on hand to supervise.

"This is the key, to provide your own staff," he said, adding, "we have a good working agreement between our boulevard supervisor and the utilities' foremen."

Smith told the Oak Bay committee that if he was given the contract he would be able to keep his machinery in operation and men, now unemployed, could be given work, possibly under the federal local initiatives program.

He said an early decision was necessary if the Dec. 31 deadline for applying for federal grants was to be met.

The committee tabled most of its business Monday but voted to:

—Recommend that $15,000 be spent on water main replacements for Hazel.

—Recommend that $2,800 be spent on drainage pipe for property on Dunlevy.

—Erect a "road end" sign at the top of the hill on the east end of Denison.

BILKED BUYERS 'CRIPPLED'

MACZKO
. . . better way

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia's legal system is not geared to helping the victimized consumer, the director of the Legal Aid Society of B.C. said Monday.

Frank Maczko told a day-long consumer awareness conference that the society itself is often ineffectual and that "there has got to be a better way" of helping bilked buyers.

He urged legislation in two areas — strong criminal sanctions in the Consumer Protection Act to penalize unscrupulous mortgage and credit dealers, and a "class action" clause to make a court decision against a company in one case also apply to all similar cases.

Maczko said sanctions would discourage gouging and the class action would help reduce the sheer volume and often prohibitive cost of legal action.

"A great many legitimate claims by consumers are never heard because the sums involved are less than the fees the lawyers would charge to recover them," he said.

"But if one decision were applied to all that company's customers who were stung in the same way, it might work."

He said the cost of legal services is rising faster than in any other consumer area because there can be no mechanization of a lawyer's advice.

"Our legal services are inefficient and have outstripped the average wage-earner's ability to pay," he added.

"One credit union is studying a pre-paid legal services plan . . ."

The legal aid society dirctor also downplayed the much-discussed idea of solving consumer problems with a B.C. ombudsman.

"It just wouldn't be realistic, as nice as it sounds in principle, unless it consisted of a large legal department able to go out and both investigate and prosecute," he said.

Vince Forbes, executive vice-president of Vancouver's Better Business Bureau, said during a panel discussion that education, not legislation, is the consumer's best defence.

"You can do some legislating against improper business practices, such as the proposed outlawing of pyramid operations, but there is no guarantee this will stop the many schemes already operating outside the law," he said.

"The best weapon is to educate consumers in general to be on their guard . . . for example, disregard all telephone soliciting and door-to-door repair service operators."

Proposal Rejected

VANCOUVER (CP) — Physical plant workers at the University of British Columbia Monday rejected a wage proposal from the university and a mediation officer has been appointed.

JOGGERS, SWIMMERS KEEPING TRACK

Joggers and swimmers at the Victoria YM-YWCA have formed the Miler's Club to keep track of the distance they cover each month.

In the club's first month, November, 88 joggers ran just over 2,609 miles, an average of 29.65 miles each. The 32 swimmers covered 182.7 miles, 5.7 miles per swimmer.

At this rate, the joggers and swimmers will have gone around the world, distance-wise, within nine months.

Fog Causes Pile-Up

MILAN (AP) — More than 100 cars piled up in three chain collisions Monday on fogshrouded northern Italian roads. Police reported nine persons were killed and dozens were injured. The Highway of the Lakes, connecting Milan and Lake Como, was closed for a time because of damaged automobiles scattered along a two-mile stretch, police said.

Guide Honored

A Ranger enrolment pin and an All Round Cord has been awarded to Greta Spit of Stuart Island, a Lone Girl Guide.

The presentation was made by Dora Stocken, 926 Michigan St., provincial adviser of Lone Girl Guides, and a member of the Girl Guide movement for 17 years.

Greta has been an active Girl Guide by correspondence, but during the summer months has attended company camps at Lake Cowichan and participated in a back-packing hike through the Cathedral Lakes on the Mainland.

Academic Treat for Kids

A group of University of Victoria teachers have prepared an educational treat for 300 grade school students this Sunday.

The Grade 5, 6 and 7 students, all nominated by their schools, will be given an educational program designed to show them different aspects of the university's work.

"It's sort of a Christmas chocolate box for the children," said Ron Jeffels, director of admissions and an organizer of the program.

"What the children will see is academic episodes dealing mainly with the sciences — biology, chemistry, physics — and the fine arts," he said.

The university's theatre department is planning to put on a play in the afternoon, said Jeffels, and will also give the children a chance to see themselves on television. The science teachers will show them fish, eels and chemical fireworks.

Half the children will attend the morning session, each with one parent, and the other half the afternoon session. The program will be held in the MacLaurin Building and the Elliott Building.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

A 22-year-old Esquimalt woman was sentenced in provincial court Monday to a total of four months definite and six months indefinite by Judge William Ostler for false pretences under $200.

Sandra Lorene Callioux, also known as Simpson, of 667 Head, was sentenced on four charges involving 12 counts of false pretences under $200, spanning the period from March 9 to Aug. 29.

In passing sentence, Ostler said he agreed with the submission of the accused's defence counsel, Alan Patterson, that Callioux's "serious mental difficulties" have improved since she had received medical treatment.

Callioux was given four months definite and six indefinite on an Aug. 23 charge and the same sentence on each of the three other charges, sentences to run concurrently.

The Gold Medal that Canada Won this Summer.

This summer Canada won a gold medal.

Not at Munich, but Geneva, at the annual judging of Monde Selection, the "Olympics-of-food-and-drink." When it comes to judging whisky, Monde Selection is the toughest competition in the world.

Schenley's OFC 8-year Old won the gold medal for Canadian Whisky.

The highest award for taste and quality. The world renowned standard of excellence.

OFC is the only premium certified 8-year Old, AND the only Canadian whisky to be awarded the gold medal by Monde Selection since 1968.

All things have a "prime-of-life," a peak of quality.

OFC 8-year Old is called the "Prime Canadian" because Schenley has found 8 years of aging to be the prime years for premium Canadian whisky.

Oak Bay Ponders Apartment Clamp

Oak Bay council will consider tighter appartment construction regulations for Beach Drive at a meeting Dec. 18.

A public hearing is expected to be set for January.

First reading of the bylaw was given — governing apartments between Willows Park and the Uplands and Estevan to Beach was given Monday.

The bylaw requires underground parking, lower allowable heights of buildings and increased setbacks.

Ald. Douglas Watts asked municipal engineer-planner Geoffrey White to make a study of high tide levels and basement levels in the area to ensure that underground parking was possible in the bottom lands.

$2,500 Damages

An auto accident on Begbie early Sunday left $2,500 in car damage and 20 feet of smashed fencing in its wake, Victoria police reported Monday.

A car driven by Marko Pavlicic, of 1871 Hillcrest Ave., struck a power pole on the south side of Begbie, crashed into a fence surrounding a home at 1862 Chestnut and then struck a parked car.

The parked car, in turn, was then driven into another vehicle parked behind it.

Damages to this third car are estimated at $500.

Damage to the Pavlicic car was put at $2,000. Mr. Pavlicic and his wife were taken to Royal Jubilee Hospital, the man for with severe facial lacerations and his wife, Mrs. Marica Pavlicic, with minor facial cuts and a fractured wrist

Both Pavlicics were reported in fairly good condition in hospital today, where they have been detained for observation.

Woman Injured

A 62-year-old Saanich woman was reported in fair condition in Victoria General Hospital today, following a Monday afternoon crash in which she suffered massive head injuries.

Ella Florence Rogers, of 5419 Fowler, was travelling north on Douglas around 2:30 Monday when her car swerved into the southbound lane and struck another car driven by Gordon Leslie Hay, 53, of 1073 Cypress. Hay escaped uninjured.

Damage to the Rogers' vehicle was estimated at $1,000. Hay's car's damages amounted to $700, Saanich police said today.

4-Vote Squeaker

PORT ALBERNI (CP) — A check by returning officer George Wyley Monday reversed the result in Saturday's election for one of two seats at stake in the District 70 school board here.

Originally, George Parker was declared the winner, with 1,775 votes to 1,769 votes for A. B. Taylor. But Wyley found 10 votes too many had been credited to Parker, thus the real total was 1,765, giving Taylor the school board seat by a four-vote margin.

Open Study Set

Already considered by city council in committee, the Victoria planning department's James Bay report will be presented formally to council on Thursday.

Mayor Peter Pollen stressed Monday that the report on the future development of James Bay is only a "position paper," and is not at all inflexible.

Pollen said he hopes the days of "ramming things down the throats of our citizens" are over, and that the report will be discussed thoroughly with James Bay residents before any of its new zoning policies are adopted.

Alderman-elect Sam Bawlf, who as president of the James Bay Community Association, has strongly urged council to preserve the residential character of James Bay, said Monday he is particularly keen to study the report.

INSIGNIA ALMOST SET

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Commissioner W. L. Higgett of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police says the new insignia for the force now in preparation will be a design that he is confident will be pleasing to all Canadians.

The insignia that was attached to RCMP buildings and cruiser cars and caused an uproar particularly in Western Canada because the initials RCMP were dropped and substituted by just the one word Police, is still in use.

"We are carrying on with that insignia on the cruiser cars and buildings until the new design has been produced, and approved," the commissioner said.

"That should be early in the New Year," he said.

It is his understanding that the approval of the new insignia is "high up on the list" of items to be cleared as soon as possible by newly-appointed Solicitor General Warren Allmand.

Commissioner Higgett pointed out that a special committee is preparing the new design.

It has almost completed its job and he expects the new design will arrive on his desk "shortly."

"I am sure that it will be one that everyone will be able to accept," Commissioner Higgett said.

The insignia that is being replaced caused considerable controversy when Western Canadians protested that the identity of the RCMP appeared to be downgraded and replaced by the world Police.

There were suspicions that the Trudeau government had wanted to get rid of the title Royal Canadian Mounted Police because of the world "royal," voiced by John Diefenbaker, former prime minister.

Lot-Freeze Ruling Awaited

County Court Judge M. L. T. Drake has reserved judgment in a case in which Salt Spring Island land developers are appealing a ruling last July by the B.C. superintendent of insurance freezing sale of all lots.

The judge's decision may determine the future sale of lots in a land parcel approved for subdividing in 1891 under the name of Grantsville.

The parcel, located near Walker's Hook about four miles north of Ganges, is divided into 82 one-acre lots.

Nothing was done with the land until this year when a group of promoters, including A. S. Bains of Victoria and Terry Dow of Ganges, began trying to sell the lots.

There are no sewage facilities or water supplies and it is not possible to obtain building permits for the lots so in July the superintendent of insurance froze the sale of all lots. The freeze later became permanent.

Chief medical health officer Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread testified the lots were generally too small to contain a proper septic tank and tile field for sewage disposal and a well for water.

A well must be placed at least 100 feet from sewage disposal facilities and often, for safety, they should be placed 300 feet apart, he said.

They could be placed at opposite ends of each lot, but because the lots are so close together, only about one third of the lots could be serviced, said Whitbread.

A piped-in water supply would lessen the sewage problem, he said.

BLOCK TRADES IN TEL SHARES

Somebody paid $1,742,494 for 30,043 shares of B.C. Tel on the Vancouver Stock Exchange Monday.

Vancouver Stock Exchange officials said it was against exchange policy to identify either buyer or seller.

In Victoria, investment house spokesmen speculated that two mutual funds were involved in the deal, one buying and the other selling.

The purchase came in two trades, one at 25,000 shares and the other at 5,043 shares — all at $58.

There was no other buying or selling of the stock on the VSE Monday. Identical price of the two large trades convinced observers the same company made both purchases.

Meanwhile, only 600 shares of B.C. Tel traded on the Toronto Stock Exchange Monday and 300 shares traded on the Montreal exchange.

Don't Buy, Says Broker

By AL FORREST
Times Business Editor

The investment house of Odlum Brown & T. B. Read Ltd. has issued a warning against buying further shares of B.C. Tel despite the good earning picture of the company.

The investment firm says protracted litigation expected in connection with the provincial government takeover make the shares an unattractive purchase.

The company recommends a "hold" for those already possessing B.C. Tel shares as the ultimate settlement is expected to be considerably higher than the current market price.

The comapny's third quarter earnings were strong at $1.88 per share, compared with $1,70 in the same period last year.

SERIES OF MEETINGS

The New Democratic Party has said it will take over B.C. Tel but has not said when it will do it.

B.C. Tel president J. Ernest Richardson was in Victoria last week in the first of a series of meetings with the provincial cabinet on the takeover proposal.

Ironically, the shares of B.C. Tel closed on Monday at 58 which is $1 per share higher than the price of Oct. 12, the date Premier Dave Barrett confirmed that he planned to take over the company.

Price of the shares on election day, Aug. 30, was $64.50. The stock eroded $7.50 per share from then until Oct. 12 one hour before Premier Barrett made his statement about a takeover.

While Premier Barrett's statement after the market closed on Oct. 12 sent shock waves through the investment community, its effect on the stock price was short-lived.

On Friday the 13th, the day after Premier Barrett's takeover statement, the stock opened at 57 and sold between 57 and 55, closing at $56.

On Monday, Oct. 16, it sold at 55 and held steady until Thursday when it sank to 54.25, its low for the year. It rose to 56 and next day, Friday, Oct. 20, then began its climb back to 57 and above.

It has flirted with the 60 level but has been unable to hold at that level so far in December.

GOOD BUY

Some investment houses have seen B.C. Tel as a good buy because its takeover price would seem to have to be above the $64.50 level of election day.

But Odlum Brown and T. B. Read Ltd. says that money would be better invested elsewhere because of the uncertainty in fixing of a share volved in fixing of a share value.

The provincial government is expected to encounter difficulties with the takeover as the company is federally chartered and has customers in Alberta and the United States (at Point Roberts) as well as in B.C.

Some firms predict the takeover price might be as high as $72 but most forecasts are in the range of $65 to $68.

There is considerable disagreement among investment houses as to what the takeover price might be and whether the shares would be a good purchase at this time.

Dynasty, Atlas Raise $500,000

Dynasty Explorations Ltd. and its associated company, Atlas Explorations Ltd., have raised more than $500,000 through sales of treasury shares to finance exploration in Selwyn basin.

Dynasty sold 50,000 shares to raise $400,000 and Atlas sold 300,000 shares to raise $102,000.

In addition, Dynasty has signed a letter of intent to spend $500,000 over the next four years in exploring the Kaza Lake property of Kaza Copper Ltd.

Market Areas Listed

The rising standard of living in Japan is opening more and more markets for manufactured goods, says a new study entitled The Pacific Rim, An Evaluation of British Columbia Trade Opportunities.

The provincial department of industrail development, trade and commerce said that the Japanese standard of living is rapidly approaching that of Canada.

Opportunities for Canadian trade increase as Japan's labor costs rise along with the relaxation of restrictive trade policies in Tokyo.

At the moment Australia is Canada's largest market for fully-processed goods, after the United States, the report says.

Copies of the report may be obtained upon request from the economics and statistics branch of the department.

A list of provincial and federal trade commission offices abroad is provided.

Teck Loses Afton Court Test

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mr. Justice Thomas Berger of the B.C.'s Supreme Court has dismissed an action by Teck Corp. Ltd. to set aside a contract allowing Placer Development Ltd. to develop and manage the Afton Mines Ltd. copper property at Kamloops.

In his judgment he found that Afton directors had acted in the interests of the company, not for any improper purpose. He awarded costs against the plaintiff, Teck.

The trial lasted 29 days, spread over a two-month period from Aug. 24 to Oct. 23.

Thomas McClelland, president of Placer Development Ltd., said that exploration and development work will be resumed immediately on the property, which sits alongside the Trans-Canada Highway, 10 miles south of Kamloops.

Work was halted June 23 by a court injunction pending determination of the issues.

Petroleum Deliveries

Trans Mountain Pipe Line Co. Ltd. of Vancouver reports total deliveries of petroleum for November averaged 384,796 barrels per day compared with an average of 304,964 barrels per day last November.

The average for the month of December is expected to be 380,000 barrels per day, the company said.

Door-Openers Get That 'Buzz Off' Feeling

Fruit of Hockey Labor Should Help Kids

By GERRY SUTTON

CALGARY (CP) — The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association has the feeling it's being told quietly to "buzz off" from the international hockey scene.

At least that's the impression the National Hockey League and others have left with CAHA president Joe Kryczka, who isn't prepared to let the association step aside "after more than 50 years in international hockey."

The Calgary lawyer said the CAHA opened the door by negotiating the September series between the Russian national team and Team Canada, made up of NHL players.

"... All of a sudden, now that the door's open, they're saying: Well, that's fine CAHA, you guys just buzz off now because the big boys are here and we're going to take over.

"I haven't any objections to the pro teams playing the national teams of Russia, Czechoslovakia or Sweden because I think that's the stage we are getting to.

"What I object to is lining the pockets of any individual in the NHL or the NHL as a whole.

"It's the CAHA teams that developed international hockey to this point and if international hockey all of a sudden is going to bear some kind of fruit, then I think the fruit of 50 years of labor should get poured back for the kids. . . ."

The CAHA's concern about international hockey erupted in November when Alan Eagleson, executive-director of the NHL Players' Association, announced a four-game exhibition tour of selected NHL cities for late January by one of the top Soviet Union teams.

He said the deal, an agreement between the NHL and the players' association, didn't involve any other organization.

Later, however, the NHL announced negotiations for the series had stalled and it was planning a 10-game series with the Russians to be played in the middle of the 1973-74 season.

The CAHA, of course, wants the NHL to go through proper channels, dealing with the CAHA when Canadian teams are involved and the corresponding U.S. body when American squads enter the picture.

Kryczka said in an interview that European clubs have advised the CAHA that they will abide by International Ice Hockey Federation (IIHF) rules when dealing with the pros. This means working with the CAHA.

The 37-year-old Kryczka said the CAHA hopes its IIHF brothers in Europe have learned something from the fact that Canada operates under two separate heads—CAHA and NHL.

"They only have one organization that runs all their hockey . . . but if they do have professional hockey it will be run under the same wing, where . . . we've split the thing off into two or three organizations and all we've got is trouble.

"All we (CAHA) can hope for is that our European friends are going to realize if they decide to get into that bag, that they're only looking for the kind of trouble that we've already been through.

"And, secondly, the CAHA can hope for some sort of assistance by way of pressure from the federal government."

The Europeans probably have no objection to having a European professional league, he said.

"But if they're going to have a professional league, they're going to run it. It isn't going to be run by Bruce Norris, president of the NHL Detroit Red Wings, or anybody else from North America.

"And if they're going to run pro teams they're going to run them out of their particular ice hockey federations as they now exist. This means they will control the professionals instead of having the professionals control the amateurs. . . ."

The president said he believes one of the problems Eagleson and Clarence Campbell, NHL president, are going to face in trying to negotiate another series with the Russians or other European clubs "is the kind of image that Eagleson and the pros left over there."

Kryczka attended all four games in the Russian-Team Canada series in Moscow and was on hand for three of four games in Canada.

If anything was learned from the series, he said, it was that "we've got to revamp our hockey system from the grassroots up. Whether the professionals learned anything is another question because as far as I can tell, outside of two or three teams, they're still shooting the puck into the corner and chasing it.

"And the only way you do that is against a team that can't skate. When we shot the puck into the corner against the Russians, they had it and were coming back with it by the time we got there."

The 'Laying On' Thereof Of PRs, and Eight Enders

Some notes, and such things, on such days, or pity the public relations director for Oral Roberts University. His problems can be something special indeed.

Once when Roberts, a renowned evangelist, was doing his TV show, he needed someone to "lay hands on," the standard healing technique. His PR man, who had a broken arm in a cast, just happened to be sitting nearby, so Roberts laid his hands on him.

"The next day", the PR man recalled, "when I showed up for work, my arm was still in a sling. I never felt so guilty in my life."

Speaking of "laying on", the most embarrassed person at Playland Curling Club over the weekend was skip Kirby Moysey. The good dentist had an eight-ender "laid on him" by Jim Coffey, and the big question Moysey had to answer was: Didn't you see it building up? But give him marks. His answer was frightfully frank. "No." Incidentally Coffey had to chip a Moysey rock out to get his perfect end. Meanwhile, Coffey came up with something else in curling when he inserted a pen-type flashlight in his broom, the better for his rink to see the stick by. I guess it worked.

★ ★ ★

It may have been previously recorded, but if so a repeat dispatch won't disrupt proceedings. The Pacific Coast Curling Association is preparing a bid for the Brier for Vancouver in 1975 or 1976. As to the Playland 'spiel, only the Pat Thompson rink (regular skip Keith Dagg was absent) showed Consols potential by winning "A" event. A dark horse? Tab Jim Fennell of Victoria Club as the new name in town. And also, Sam Snobolen somehow doesn't appear to rank with the elite in the Consols class, but has anyone ever stopped to look back on the number of times that Sam's name has appeared in the prize list? Consistency is his trademark.

★ ★ ★

Sure, the Vancouver Canucks are for sale, at a price. And that price is reported to be at or near $20 a share. The current value is around $6.50, and the top bid, it is rumored, has been in the $12 range. And in answer to a query, yes, Phil Maloney is an ex-coach of the Canucks. When Coley Hall sold the Canucks to the PNE following the 1960-61 season, Maloney was ensconced as coach. They gave him the worst team in Canuck history, and Maloney gave it back and gave way to Hugh Currie. Now apparently he has found a happy home in Seattle and besides, his high-flying Totems are putting people in the seats; and in Seattle that's news. Seattle, too, is next in line for an NHL expansion berth.

New Zealand rugby fans the world over apparently are disenchanted, or soon will be, with the behaviour of the All-Blacks' side on their current tour of Britain. As on caller put it: "The BBC is calling the team the worst-behaved team ever to represent New Zealand." Press reports also indicate that the All-Blacks are in the foul-mouth and ugly classification according to ground rules as followed in the British papers. One reason could be that huge Keith Murdoch, a bouncer by profession, was sent back home for the indiscretion of picking up a London newsman by the hair and hurling him to the floor in a hotel lobby. Who said Team Canada couldn't be replaced in yet another chapter in internationall goodwill in sport?

DISA AND DATA: The B.C. Government has been asked to approve a lottery to help finance the Canada Games, scheduled for Burnaby next year. There shouldn't be any problem as precedence seemingly has already been set with the "Millionaire for a Month" draw with the winner to get $5,000. It is sponsored by the B.C. Federation of School Athletic Associations, licensed by the B.C. Government (the tickets say) and all proceeds go to B.C. High School sports . . . When Bobby Orr was sidelined with his knee problem, his weight ballooned to a pudgy 214; now he's back at a respectable 190 . . . and there is no truth to the rumor that Chris Hall has been taken off the basketball team at UVic and put on the boxing team. However, the official word is that he won't be taken for granted again, or mauled, either.

Plus a paragraph for the lib set from Sport mag on Chris Evert, the 17-year-old tennis star. Or as she says: "I can't fool around. I know that. Chris Evert isn't supposed to do those things. I have no intention of smoking pot or getting pregnant so that they can jump on it."

IT WAS TWO ON ONE in World Hockey Association game Monday at New York as Garry Peters of Raiders goes down under onslaught of pair of Chicago Cougars—Butch Barber (2) and Larry Cahan (5)—while Chicago's Rosaire Paiement (9) watches rolling puck. Raiders did better than two for one in scoring department, trimming Cougars 8-3.

Whalers Join the Club Spoiling Boston Fans

By The Canadian Press

Boston sports fans are spoiled.

For years their Boston Celtics have been a National Basketball Association power. In recent years, they've had the power-laden Bruins to support in the National Hockey League and Boston Braves started their American Hockey League franchise last year with a divisional title.

This year there's more hockey and the Boston-based New England Whalers aren't letting their World Hockey Association supporters down.

The Whalers stretched their unbeaten streak at home to 14 games Monday night, edging Winnipeg Jets 4-3 to move four points ahead of idle Cleveland Crusaders in the Eastern Division race.

In the only other scheduled game, New York Raiders drubbed visiting Chicago Cougars 8-3.

Light-scoring Mike Hyndman and Kevin Ahearn scored about three minutes apart in the third period to break open a 2-2 game with the Western Division-leading Jets who remained 11 points ahead of Minnesota and Los Angeles.

The Saints, however, have seven games in hand and the Sharks five.

Chris Bordeleau beat New England goalie Al Smith with his 21st of the year to end the scoring at Boston in the final minute.

Milt Black of the Jets and Whalers' Tom Webster exchanged first-period goals and the score remained deadlocked until Jim Dorey sent New England into the lead at 5:36 of the third period.

Norm Beaudin evened the score again about four minutes later in front of 9,119 Boston fans.

It was a different story in New York's cavernous Madison Square Garden where only 2,917 paid to enter the 17,000-seat arena to watch the Raiders turn the tables on Chicago in the second period.

Ron Ward hammered his 27th of the season past Chicago goalie Jim McLeod late in the middle period to break a 3-3 stalemate.

DOWLING BIDDING FOR U.S. CROWN

VANCOUVER — John Dowling of Victoria, now attending the University of British columbia, captured the junior title in the Labatts Tournament of Squash Champions here Sunday.

Dowling, a 17-year-old who is the sixth-ranked junior in Canada, nipped Pat Richardson, 16, of Vancouver 15-10 in the fifth set to capture the under-19 crown.

Next stop for Dowling is the United States junior squash championships Friday, Saturday and Sunday in Boston. He is also expected to compete in the Canadian junior tournament at McGill University in Montreal, Feb. 9-11.

Top-seeded Alex Eichmann of San Francisco defeated Dowling 3-1 in the first round of the senior event but later dropped a 3-2 upset decision to Robert Wade of Vancouver, Canada's fifth-ranked junior, in the semi-finals.

Wade went on to take the senior title with a 17-16 win over John Frazier of Seattle in the final.

Joe's Passing Show Couldn't Save Jets

OAKLAND (AP) — Even in defeat, New York Jets' quarterback Joe Namath has a knack for upstaging other football players.

"Joe was on target all night," Jets' coach Weeb Ewbank said Monday night after Namath passed for 403 yards in a 24-16 loss to Oakland Raiders that killed the Jets' hopes of making the National Football League playoffs.

"He has these kind of games," admitted Raiders coach John Madden, "but I feel our guy was pretty good too."

Oakland quarterback Daryle Lamonica, throwing a lot less than Namath, passed for 202 yards and two touchdoens.

Raiders' fullback Marv Hubbard and Jets' receiver Don Maynard were two other players whose feats were overshadowed by Namath's passing show.

Hubbard gained 118 yards to become the ninth NFL rusher to hit the 1,000-yard mark this season. He now has 1,053 yards.

The 35-year-old Maynard caught seven Namath passes for 131 yards and reached an all-time NFL high of 632 career receptions.

"Nothing takes the place of winning," Maynard said later.

The loss left the Jets at 7-6 and eliminated their chance of winning the American Conference's wild card playoff berth.

The Raiders, as champions of the AFC West, are 9-3-1 and heading toward a playoff opener on the road against either Pittsburgh Steelers, or Cleveland Browns on Dec. 23.

The Raiders kept the Jets out of the end zone after Namath hit tight end Rich Caster on a touchdown pass play covering 49 yards in the first quarter.

That score put the Jets ahead 7-3.

Two interceptions near the goal line helped the Raiders.

Lamonica put the ball into the end zone on a perfect 39-yard scoring toss to Fred Biletnikoff as the Raiders took a 10-7 lead in the second quarter, and a pass to Ray Chester in the fourth quarter produced a 68-yard touchdown play and the final 24-16 margin.

The Oakland quarterback also called on Hubbard and other running backs for 169 yards. The Jets gained 36 yards rushing.

Namath completed 25 of 46 passes, Lamonica 10 of 17.

The touchdown pass to Chester was the biggest Oakland offensive blow of the night. It came right after Bobby Howfield's third field goal had cut Oakland's lead to 17-16.

Athletes Aim At Overthrow

CHICAGO (AP) — Aiming at the overthrow of the reigning United States Olympic Committee (USOC), a group called the Committee for a Better Olympics ended a two-day meeting Monday hoping for an assist from President Nixon.

Olympic athletes, college athletic officials and others disenchanted with the USOC regime were among some 60 who attended the session seeking to reorganize administration of the U.S. Olympic program.

In attendance were such Olympic performers as Hal Connolly, George Young, Ralph Mann, Willie White, Willie Davenport, George Woods, Jay Silvester and Cathy Rigby.

Acting chairman was Marçus Plant, faculty representative of the University of Michigan and former National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) president, who said spadework was accomplished towards pushing for reorganization of the USOC.

Another meeting of the group was scheduled here Feb. 18-19 to which President Nixon will be invited to send a representative, and at which a designated committee will formulate specific proposals for reorganizing the USOC.

It was another volley at the USOC, under fire particularly since the Munich Olympics which produced several controversial incidents involving the U.S. squad.

Record Entry in NFL 'Club'

NEW YORK (AP) — A record nine runners have galloped into the National Football League's 1000-yard club during the "Year of the Hashmark."

The membership with one week to play:

—Larry Brown, Washington Redskins, 1216.

—O. J. Simpson, Buffalo Bills, 1150.

—Ron Johnson, New York Giants, 1129.

—Marv Hubbard, Oakland Raiders, 1053.

—Larry Csonka, Miami Dolphins, 1046.

—Mike Garrett, San Diego Chargers, 1026.

—John Brockington, Green Bay Packers, 1022.

—Franco Harris, Pittsbugh Steelers, 1021.

—Calvin Hill, Dallas Cowboys, 1010.

There are five more in the shadows, including quarterback Bobby Douglass of Chicago Bears, with varying chances at the 1000-yard plateau.

Those nearing the mark:

—John Riggins, New York Jets, 944;

—Dave Hampton, Atlanta Falcons, 930;

—Mercury Morris, Miami, 905;

—Bobby Douglass, Chicago, 841;

—Floyd Little, Denver Broncos, 814.

Riggins missed Monday night's game at Oakland because of an injury, a game in which Hubbard made the 'club' by rushing for 144 yards. Riggins could be ready to play against Cleveland on Sunday.

Brockington, Hill, Garrett and Harris made the club on the weekend.

The previous high 1,000-yard club membership was six in 1962. Only two accomplished the feat in 1970 and, in 1969, Gale Sayers of the Bears did it alone. Five including Csonka and Brockington, made it last year.

"Give the hashmarks a lot of the credit," says Csonka, "but don't shortchange anybody who hits a thousand.

"You still take a helluva beating."

The hashmarks were moved tighter this year, opening the outside for runners and loosening defences for tackle-to-tackle shots.

The football is placed within the hashmarks for the start of all plays. In past seasons, hashmarks were 20 feet from each sideline. That was increased by 10 feet, 9 inches on each side, giving offensive units a total of more than seven yards additional operating room for wide plays.

BOBBY TOLAN COMEBACK KING

CINCINNATI (AP) — One of sport's most remarkable comebacks has earned the 1972 Hutch Award for Cincinnati Reds' outfielder Bobby Tolan.

The 27-year-old speedster overcame two torn Achilles tendon operations in 1971 to hit .283 and steal 42 bases for the National League pennant winners this season.

The award is named in honor of Fred Hutchinson, former major league pitcher and manager who died of cancer in November 1964. It goes to a player annually who best exemplifies Hutchinson's fighting spirit.

Next in line in the 1972 voting, in order, were Billy Williams of Chicago Cubs, Gaylord Perry of Cleveland Indians, Ron Santo of the Cubs and Carlos May of Chicago White Sox.

Previous winners were Mickey Mantle, Sandy Koufax, Carl Yastrzemski, Al Kaline, Pete Rose, Tony Conigliaro and Joe Torre.

Owners Stand Fast On Baseball Issues

NEW YORK (AP) — Commissioner Bowie Kuhn said Monday that baseball's club owners are unwilling to yield on the two key demands of the players in current contract negotiations — free agency and binding arbitration of salary disputes.

"These are two areas where the owners show no inclination to give ground," the game's chief executive said in an interview.

After a bitter clash last week in which Marvin Miller, executive director of the Major League Players Association, accused the commissioner of "bad faith" and "a fraudulent statement," representatives of the owners and players resume talks today.

The players are asking that every player have the right to bid to become free agents after seven, 12 and 17 years in the majors, regardless of salary.

The owners have offered to give a player his freedom if he has not reached a salary of at least $30,000 after five years or $40,000 after eight years. After 10 years in the majors, five with the same team, a player could not be traded without his consent.

The Players Association contends it wants more, including a chance for freedom at periodic intervals.

"There are three reasons the club owners feel they cannot accept outright free agency and binding arbitration on salaries," Kuhn said. "They are: 1. integrity; 2. economics, and, 3, balanced competition.

"If we grant outright free agency, we would risk tampering and suspicion. Thus the game's integrity might be endangered. Also, I am not sure the game's economy could stand such a move.

"There could be a spiral of salaries. The balanced competition which we have created through our free-agent draft might be destroyed. A wealthy man or group of men would be in position to buy the top players and create a virtual empire."

Ron Lancaster Quits His Job

REGINA (CP) — Ron Lancaster, who admitted during Grey Cup week that he was unhappy with his salary as quarterback of Saskatchewan Roughriders of the Western Football Conference, resigned his job last night as a teacher at Central Collegiate.

The import quarterback, who has been rumored several times to be available in a trade, said only that he resigned because he found it impossible to mix teaching and professional football.

There have been reports that Lancaster and head coach Dave Skrien did not get along during the last WFC season and that Lancaster would be traded to British Columbia Lions, where his former coach, Eagle Keys, is now head coach.

However, B.C. announced Monday the signing of well-regarded Karl Douglas, which means the Lions have four import signal-callers on the roster.

Coach Skrien, whose contract runs out at the end of this month in Regina, is in the United States on a scouting expedition. He was not available for comment.

It has been suggested in Eastern Canada that Skrien is in line for the head coaching job with Montreal Alouettes of the Eastern Conference of the Canadian Football League.

Douglas, who quarterbacked Texas A and I to consecutive National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics championships in 1969-70, was first on the Lion's negotiation list two years ago but signed with the Colts of the National Football League.

In next summer's tryouts the black 23-year-old will face three holdover quarterbacks: Don Moorhead, Don Bunce and Eric Guthrie.

In a trade announced today, the Lions acquired veteran defensive back Chip Barrett from Toronto Argonauts in exchange for defensive back Wayne Holm.

Barrett, 28, has played five seasons in the CFL after graduating from the University of British Columbia. Holm played two seasons with the Lions after graduating from Simon Fraser University.

Only 331 in Winnipeg See Jets Lose Again

WINNIPEG (CP) — Saskatoon Blades handed Winnipeg Jets their sixth straight Western Canada Hockey League defeat Monday, downing the Jets 5-4 before 331 fans.

Ralph Klassen scored the winning goal with 14 seconds remaining in the game as he deflected a pass from Russ Walker in front of Winnipeg goalie Jim Foubister.

Saskatoon lost leftwinger Don McLeod in the third period. He was rushed to hospital with undetermed injuries after being checked into the boards and striking his head.

As well, Byron Jackson of the Blades left the game in the second period with a leg injury.

Other Saskatoon scorers were George Pesut, Bob Bourne, Danny Arndt and John McIvor.

'Y' Cagers Romp Over Restoration

After romping to a 51-22 half time lead, YMCA went on to hammer Restoration Services 93-58 in a Victoria Senior "B" Men's Basketball League game Monday night at Central Junior High School.

It was the third victory in eight starts for YMCA and the seventh loss in seven games for Restoration.

Garry Andrews led YMCA win with 22 points, one more than the total pumped in by clubmate Robin Allen. Dave Drawley added 20 points.

Ed Steele led Restoration with 21 points.

Shorthanded Bucks Best

Ingraham Buckaroos, despite being understaffed, managed to upset leading Stockers North Americans 4-2 in a Victoria Intermediate Hockey League game Monday at Memorial Arena.

Buckaroos only dressed 11 players, including Steve Leatham, Larry Hansen and Lorry Gloeckner from Victoria Nixon's Trucking in the South Island Junior "B" League.

And the line of Leatham, Ian Phillips and Hansen accounted for all Buckaroos' scoring. Leatham had two goals and three assists, Phillips had one goal and two assists while Hansen had a goal and an assist. Gloeckner finished the evening with three assists.

Dave Williams and Errol Goulden replied for Stockers.

HOCKEY TIPS

By Bobby Orr

During the Canada-Russia hockey series, much was made of the excellent positional play of the Russian hockey stars.

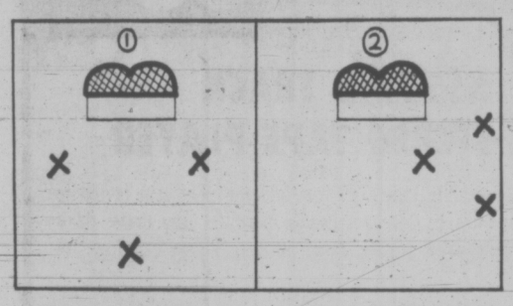
Actually, the triangle formation used when the Russians were two men short is now new. But what made it so effective was the excellent execution of the Soviets.

As you can see by the diagrams, the basic idea is to have the top of the triangle move with the puck carrier. This forces the attacking team to move the puck quickly in order to break up the formation. In the case of the Russians, they were quick to make any adjustments and the basic formation worked.

Why not have the coach try this in a game. Of course, it takes lots of practice but the results are worth the effort.

If the puck is in the corner, one of your defensive players will go after the puck. Another will be stationed by the side of the net and a third about 20 feet in front of the net. If the puck goes to the opposite corner, the man beside the goal moves to the corner, and the other players move over to retain the triangle.

This takes the slot away from the attacking team and helps explain why the Russians were able to hold off Phil Esposito when shorthanded.



Colquitz Takes Title On One-Point Margin

LAKE COWICHAN — Colquitz nipped S. J. Willis by a paper-thin margin Saaturday and captured the Vancouver Island junior high school girls' volleyball championship.

Both Victoria schools finished the eight-team, round-robin tournament with 11 victories in 14 games and the title was decided on results of the two games between Colquitz and S. J. Willis.

The Willis squad won the first game 15-11, but Colquitz bounced back for a 15-10 victory in the second game to gain a slender 26-25 advantage in total points. When the clubs finished in a deadlock, the one-point margin was enough to give Colquitz the crown.

Comox was third and defending-champion Lansdowne, the third Victoria school in the tourney, wound up in fourth place.

Flavour.

Lively, sunny flavour makes Captain Morgan Number One in rums.

Captain Morgan White Rum: the taste of sunshine. Soft. Bright. Refreshing. A taste naturally compatible with the sunny fruit flavours of lemon, lime, grapefruit or orange. Flavour enough to come through the tang of tonic. Yet a smoothness that lets it stand on its own.

Captain Morgan White: an exquisite blend of the finest domestic and imported rums. Its flavour helped Captain Morgan become Canada's largest-selling rums. And one sip of Captain Morgan White, or Gold, or Black will tell you why.

Woman Jockey Treated Well—If She Loses

By JANE SHOEMAKER

GRANTVILLE, Pa. (UPI) — Patty Barton used to earn $1 an hour tending bar. Now she gets up to $500 for an evening's work as the winningest female jockey in the nation.

"I can remember in 1970 standing at an airport with nothing but a foot locker and a bird cage with a dog in it," the shapely blonde said.

"Now I'm driving a new pickup. I have two house trailers and I'm starting my own store. The tracks have been good to me."

Miss Barton, 28, of Chester, W.Va., and nine others who competed in an all-woman race last week at Penn National Course agreed they were lured into the profession by money. But they admitted there are some drawbacks.

In 1971 Miss Barton had 110 winners. She is leading the distaff field in 1972 with 100 wins.

But her horses have been sluggish lately. She ended up in the middle of the pack when she competed at Penn National.

"All the girls talk about how good they are treated," she said, tugging at a stylish brown suede cap. "Well, I know folks are treating me good right now because I'm not doing so well. When you're winning, they wont give you the time of day."

Miss Barton, a divorced mother of three young children, has numerous pulls, strains, and broken bones from her work. But her worst injury came during a post parade.

"My horse was like a monkey at the end of a leash," she said. "We parted company with me going right over her head. I landed on my feet, but it gave me a football knee."

Jeanne Maxwell, 19, of Elk City, Okla., started out on top. The daughter of a trainer, she won the first race she entered.

"My odds were 29 to one," she said, recalling the race last June in Montreal. "I was in a trance for days."

Miss Maxwell, who trimmed herself from 140 to 112 pounds to ride, now keeps in shape by galloping horses for three hours each morning.

Off the track she wants to be known as a lady but on it, she sid, "I let everyone know I mean business.

"When you start, you've gotta hustle," she said.

Miss Maxwell and Mary May, a tiny 21-year-old from Boulder, Colo., date their male counterparts. Both of them know the satisfactioon of winning aginst them, too.

The only black woman licensed for riding is Cheryl White, 19, daughter of a Penn National trainer. She grew up on the tracks and now wants to make them her life.

"It's all one big happy family," she explained. "You don't have racism or anything like that.I don't think of it as a job. I just think of it as easy money."

PLAYERS ARE BURNING OVER TURF TREATMENT

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Players with both Los Angeles Rams and St. Louis Cardinals have complained about a chemical placed on the field Sunday to keep the artificial turf from freezing during the National Football League game.

Players from both teams suffered burns from the chemical, a fertilizer which has a high nitrogen content.

The chemical apparently penetrated the players' uniforms and caused skin irritation. In many cases, it left open wounds.

"It just ate us alive," Cardinal linebacker Terry Miller said after the game.

The chemical was placed on the field by the Civic Centre Redevelopment Corp., the landlord of the stadium. A spokesman said it had been in use since Nov. 19 and Sunday's complaints were the first.

MAKI, BENCH ARE 'FAIR'

Times News Services

Hospital reports today indicated little change in condition of two professional athletes who underwent surgery in the past two days.

Wayne Maki, a player with Vancouver Canucks of the National Hockey League, is still listed in fair condition at Vancouver following removal of a brain tumor on Sunday.

Johnny Bench, the National League's most valuable baseball player this past season, is also reported in fair condition at Cincinnati while recovering from a Monday operation to remove a non-malignant lesion on his right lung.

An Inept Boy Saved Me, Says Pilot

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP)—A weird but incomplete tale about an injured pilot and a frightened Eskimo boy, protecting each other from death in the Arctic, unfolded here Monday.

Martin Hartwell, the 46-year-old pilot who fought the Canadian north for 32 days and won, related parts of the epic at an abbreviated news conference in his hospital room.

He was then flown to Edmonton for further treatment.

Hartwell told reporters that the boy, 14-year-old David Kootook of Spence Bay, N.W.T., was inept at survival techniques yet saved his life.

The boy died in the wilderness, 60 miles south of Great Bear Lake, 23 days after the aircraft carrying himself, Hartwell and two women, crashed into a dense forest of evergreens.

The aircraft was on a mercy flight to Yellowknife from Cambridge Bay in the Arctic.

The boy was suffering suspected chronic appendicitis while another passenger, also an Eskimo was in premature labor.

The third passenger was Judith Hill, 27, a northern health service nurse who emigrated to Canada from Kingsbridge, England three years ago.

★ ★ ★

Miss Hill died when the aircraft smashed into the slope. The pregnant woman, died about five hours later.

Unable to move because of two broken ankles and a fractured knee, Hartwell said he relied upon the boy to act as his arms and legs.

"He was my assistant and the saver of my life. Without him, I couldn't have done anything."

However, Hartwell said the youth was unable to look after himself.

"He was very, very scared. He could not do anything. I had to tell him everything.

"He couldn't handle an axe, he couldn't make a fire. He didn't know where to find dry wood."

Hartwell said he instructed the youth on how to cut logs for a tent frame.

Two canvas aircraft engine covers were draped over the logs.

"The tent was very well built and inside it was warm. We didn't have to cover our ears; they didn't freeze. It warmed up quickly when there was two of us in there."

★ ★ ★

Aboard the aircraft were five sleeping bags and plenty of warm clothing. Survival stores, enough to last five people at least six days, ran out on the 16th day after strict rationing.

Hartwell said he then sent the boy to a lake to fish through the ice but the youngster didn't make it.

He returned after almost three days, then "decided to die."

"He didn't want to get up, and three days later he was dead."

He died talking about his brothers and sisters. There was no indication from Hartwell that the youth died of appendicitis.

Hartwell said he knew he was off course when the aircraft went down, and he didn't think he would be found.

"The first days it was not too cold so I wrote letters and even a last will."

Later, temperatures plunged to at least 20 degrees below zero, his fingertips became frostbitten and he was unable to continue writing.

A DREAM COME TRUE FOR PIANIST SHARP

TORONTO — Mitchell Sharp will realize a secret ambition Dec. 22.

The external affairs minister, who always wanted to play the piano with a symphony orchestra, will join the Toronto Symphony in a special Christmas concert.

Another frustrated musician, Energy Minister Donald Macdonald, will conduct the Colonel Bogey march — an appropriate selection for the former defence minister.

TORRINGTON, Conn. (AP) — Mark Van Doren, writer, critic and self-professed believer in only "that all people are equal," died Sunday at 78.

The Pulitzer prize-winning poet, who taught English at Columbia University for 39 years before retiring in 1959, once criticized people in communications for thinking "that the average person is a nobody, whereas the average person is an everybody. He's a very distinguished person.

"I believe with all my heart that all people are equal. That's the only thing I do believe."

Van Doren, who died in Charlotte-Hungerford Hospital of an undisclosed illness, wrote more than 50 books — including verse, fiction, critical works, an autobiography and a play, The Last Days of Lincoln.

ANKARA — British teenager Timothy Davey was sentenced to six months and 21 days imprisonment for escaping from a reformatory where he was serving a prison sentence for drug peddling.

The sentence will be added to the previous term of six years and three months to which the 15-year-old boy was sentenced last March when he was convicted of conspiring to sell 57 pounds of hashish.

TORONTO — The show went on Monday night, although the star had lost her voice and about a quarter of the audience left the theatre demanding their money back.

Understudy Janie Sell, said she wasn't ready to fill in, and refused.

SANTA MONICA, Calif. — Entertainer Jimmy Durante probably will remain in hospital for at least another week, physicians say.

Durante, 79, is making satisfactory recovery from a severe concussion he suffered when he fell in the bathroom of his home last Monday and apparently struck the right side of his head on a wash basin, a hospital spokesman said.

FRIEDBERG, Germany — Burglars broke into a bank during the weekend, smashed a bulletproof glass door, pried open a safe — and found it empty. So they stole an employee's piggy bank containing $5.

Officials estimated damage to the bank at $850.

THIEVES STEAL ROMAN HIGHWAY

VITERBO, Italy (UPI) — Thieves have stolen another 230 feet of the Via Cassia, an ancient highway over which Roman legions once marched.

Police said a gang has stolen hundreds of grey basalt blocks making up the roadbed of the highway. Another stretch of the same length was stolen in July.

Police said they believed the thieves are selling the blocks to villa owners to surface patios and walkways.

The thefts of the paving blocks were unusual even for Italy, where thefts of archeological or artistic treasures are an almost everyday occurrence.

Thieves in the northern town of Castelfranco Veneto, meanwhile, sawed the bars off a cathedral window to steal an altarpiece painted by Giorgione in 1504.

Francesco Valcanover, art superintendent for the Venice region, said the painting — a Madonna with the Christ child and two saints — was so well known the thieves could hardly hope to sell it.

He said they may be holding it for ransom.

Soldiers Ambushed

RANGOON, Burma (Reuter) — Eight soldiers were killed and 11 injured when rebels ambushed their truck in the Sandoway area, about 250 miles northwest of here, the official Working People's Daily reported.

U.S. Oil Import Quotas Supported

WASHINGTON (CP) — Measured but significant growth up to 1985 was forecast Monday for Canadian oil and natural gas exports to the United States. The forecast was made in a U.S. petroleum industry study which also called for heavy stress on domestic energy supplies to meet future demand.

U.S. Energy Outlook, the title of a report prepared by the industry-dominated National Petroleum Council at the request of the federal government, predictably came out against either greater U.S. reliance on imports or a reduction in energy demand in coming years.

Instead, it called for a variety of measures to encourage the production of energy from U.S. sources.

These included greater coordination of government energy policy, the setting of "realistic" environmental standards generally and "realistic" health and safety standards for mining in particular, freer access to publicly-owned lands for exploitation, "improved" tax incentives and an end to federal control of natural-gas prices.

Of particular interest in Canada were two other recommendations.

The council said maintaining oil-import quotas is "essential" for national security, for a sound U.S. balance of payments and for expanded domestic development.

And it said maintaining the current policy of restricting uranium imports "is necessary if a healthy domestic industry is to survive."

Both import restrictions have been opposed in the past by Ottawa.

Asked later about the apparent contradiction between the report's forecast of increased Canadian oil sales, particularly as a result of development of Alberta oil sands, and its call for import quotas, Warren B. Davis said that in the industry generally "we rather tend to assume that the quotas on Canadian oil are going to go away soon."

He said the industry's main concern was with maintaining quotas on Eastern Hemisphere supplies.

Davis, director of economics for Gulf Oil Corp. and coordinator of the council report, said quotas are generally regarded as "temporary" because foreign oil seems certain to be more costly eventually than domestic supplies and quotas would not then be needed to protect U.S. suppliers.

EXPECT MORE EXPORTS

The report forecast that Canadian petroleum liquid "available for net exportation — exports minus imports — by Canada is expected to grow to between 1.7 and two million barrels a day by 1985," compared with the current net export of about 300,000 barrels a day.

Western Canada exports about one million barrels a day to the U.S. at present while Eastern Canada imports about 700,000 barrels.

Canadian natural-gas exports to the U.S., which were 800 billion cubic feet a year in 1970, were forecast to more than triple by 1985, reaching 2.7 trillion cubic feet a year, equal to between one-tenth and one-twentieth of total U.S. supplies, depending on various factors affecting the supply.

The figure for gas imports from Canada might be even higher "were it not for projected limitations . . . imposed by Canadian gas availability," the report said.

Noting a general decline in Western Hemisphere oil reserves, the report said an exception is provided by the Athabasca oil sands of Northern Alberta and heavy-oil deposits in Western Canada.

"Continued development of Canadian oil sands and heavy-oil deposits could make a contribution of 1.25 million barrels a day to the Western Hemisphere's supply of crude oil by 1985."

In another section of the report dealing with energy supplies by the year 2000, the council said "sizable volumes" of the oil-sands production will be required by the Canadian economy.

Nevertheless, it said, "under favorable circumstances" the U.S. market could hope for 75 per cent of total oil-sands production, equal to slightly more than five million barrels of oil a day.

COMPUTER THIEF FINED $5,000

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — A computer whiz who admitted stealing data from a competitor's computer was fined $5,000 and put on three years probation Monday.

Hugh Jefferey Ward, 30, of Palo Alto, an employee of University Computing Co., had been charged with using a special identification code by telephone to steal trade secrets worth $15,000 from the computer of a competing firm, Information Systems Design Inc. of Oakland.

GM RECALLS 6,000 CARS

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors recalled 6,000 of its 1973 cars Monday to replace either the parking brake assembly or the seat belt buzzer system.

GM said the problems were discovered by GM's own in-plant tests and that none of the cars had been recalled as a result of complaints from a customer or dealer. It said no failures have been reported in cars in customer hands.

One part of the recall campaign involved 2,100 Camaros on which the parking brake had been heated incorrectly.

GM said that in the Camaro "incorrect heat-treating of parking brake parts could result in failure of the brake."

The remainder involved some Chevrolet Novas, Pontiac Venturas and Oldsmobile Omegas, equipped with three-speed manual transmissions and with the shift levers on the steering column.

GM said the seat belt warning system did not work on some occasions when the transmission was in third gear.

It said adjustments would be made at no charge to the owners.

In Oshawa, a GM spokesman said 105 Canadian cars had been recalled to replace the parking brake assembly or seat belt buzzer system.

Hudson's Bay Company

After the party, you could sleep at our place.

And that's just the beginning.

Let's be optimistic and assume you don't have an accident. Or hit any parked cars. Or speed. Let's assume you stay at the party longer than you planned and had three or four drinks—enough to drink to make you legally impaired. All in good fellowship. All without malice. And for some reason, you are stopped.

Here's what to expect:

1 Breathalizer Police officers are extremely adept at spotting impaired drivers. There are dozens of telltale clues. If you are suspected, you will be asked to submit to a breathalizer test. This is mandatory and refusal can result in serious charges. If you have consumed enough to give you a .08 reading, you can be charged with impaired driving.

2 Jail Very likely, you will be jailed overnight. For the average citizen, this is a terrifying experience. Impaired driving comes under the Criminal Code, and that is just how you will be treated. You will be fingerprinted, asked for alias', relieved of your belt, tie, shoelaces, and personal possessions, allowed one phone call, and be placed in a cell. In the morning, your breakfast will be slid under the bars of the cell door. You will find the night harrowing and have plenty of time to reflect. In the meantime, your wife and children will be worried, distressed and slightly mortified.

3 Fines The arresting officer's report, corroborated by your breathalizer reading, will normally result in a conviction. The number of convictions is increasing every year. Over 12,000 are expected in British Columbia alone this year. If the Judge lets you off with a $250 fine for the first offence, you can consider yourself lucky. For having accumulated ten penalty points, the Superintendent of Motor Vehicles will assess you a charge of $25.00 which will be used to pay for public information messages like the one you are now reading. Add to this the $50 to several hundred dollars you'll spend on a lawyer and you've dropped quite a bundle.

4 Suspension Even if you have never had so much as a parking ticket in thirty years of driving, you can expect to have your right to drive reviewed by the Superintendent of Motor-Vehicles. On his judgement and your driving record, your suspension may be one month, three months, six months, or even indefinitely.

5 Insurance The costs don't stop at fines and lawyers. When your insurance company hears all about it, your insurance premium will be surcharged. That means your insurance rates will soar until you can prove yourself a good risk again. That could take years if you have no more problems. And here's another point to ponder. Had you injured or killed someone while impaired, your liability coverage was void anyhow. Your insurance company will pay the claim, but they may demand repayment from you.

6 Publicity Criminal courts swarm with court reporters. In some smaller communities, your conviction will make front page news. They will list the details of your arrest, trial, conviction, breathalizer reading, fine and suspension. They will print all this, along with your name and address, for all your friends and business associates to read. It is the coup de grace you can expect about one week after the trial.

These are the hard cold facts of how a jovial evening can turn into a nightmare. The police have seen too many dead children to have much patience. The courts have heard too many tragedies to give you much mercy. And that's the way it is.

If you drink, don't drive

Joy Riding Rule Sought

OTTAWA (CP) — The Supreme Court of Canada was asked Monday to establish the difference between the offences of joyriding and car theft.

Car-theft convictions carry fines of up to $500 or jail sentences of up to 12 months, or both. Convictions of joyriding — taking a car without the consent of the owner for the purposes of driving it only — carry small fines.

Toronto lawyer John Morin told the Supreme Court that in order for a judge to convict an accused of car theft, it first must be proved that the accused had the intention of converting the car to his own use, not just taking it for a drive.

Otherwise, he said, police officers and Crown attorneys themselves had the choice of charging a youth with the more serious crime.

Before the court is the case of Leo Lafrance, 18, of North Bay, Ont. Along with friends, he was involved in taking a car Sept. 24, 1970, and driving it for about four hours before being stopped by police.

He was charged with car theft but the trial judge acquitted him saying there was no evidence to support the issue of intent to commit theft.

The Crown appealed the decision and the Court of Appeal for Ontario set aside the acquittal and recorded a conviction of theft. It ordered that the case go back to the trial judge for sentence.

The court reserved decision.

Servicewomen's Consultant Visits City

Lt.-Col. Mary Vallance, adviser and consultant on plans and policies for servicewomen, will visit CFB Esquimalt Dec. 14 to 18.

Prior to appointment to this position Sept. 1, 1971, she was personnel officer at CFB Toronto, being responsible for housing, protocol, personnel records and welfare.

She joined the Royal Canadian Air Force in 1954 and has served in administrative and personnel position in Canada and Germany.

Students Go Free

RECIFE, Brazil (Reuter) — Twenty-one students, including five women, who had been held in jail for eight months on charges of subversion were freed Monday after the defence claimed that both they and witnesses had been tortured by police.

Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids... and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most important—this improvement was maintained in cases where clinical observations were continued over a period of many months. Furthermore, these tests and observations were made on patients with a wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. All this was accomplished with a healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a stated cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Bapco Goes, New Hotel Likely

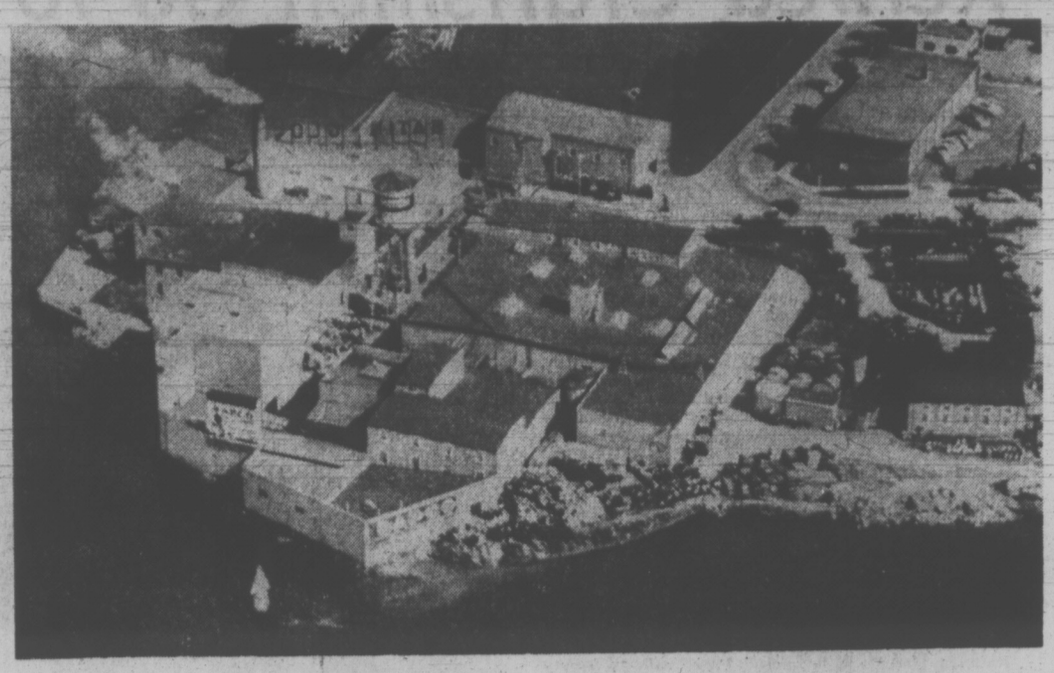
Bapco Paint Ltd., one of Victoria's oldest businesses, announced today it will move its head office and manufacturing facilities from the city's Inner Harbor to a new plant to be built in Surrey.

Company president J. R. Law also announced that an associate company, C.I.L. Properties Ltd., is studying plans for a major hotel-apartment-recreation development on the vacated site at Laurel Point.

Mayor Peter Pollen, who said he first learned of the company's intentions some months ago, expressed regret at the closing of another local industry but commented that it offered exciting possibilities in the city's aspirations for Inner Harbor beautification.

Pollen predicted city council "will have more to say about this than any other development in Victoria's history."

He also promised that what ever development finally takes place at Laurel Point, it will include a park and waterfront walkway and combine the criteria of good development as expressed by the community.



Bapco paint plant . . . on the way out

"It certainly will not be anything overwhelming," he added.

Law's statement said construction of the new plant in the Newton district of Surrey will start early next year and the move will be carried out in stages during 1973, with final closure of the Victoria facilities scheduled toward the end of the year.

Law estimated that about 90 of the firm's 155 employees will require "relocation to other employment." Every effort would be made to employ qualified staff in the new operation.

Bapco is co-operating with Canada Manpower in trying to find alternative employment for those workers who will not have positions open to them, or who do not wish to move, he said.

Relocation allowances would be provided to help employees moving to other employment, and some long-service employees would have special retirement arrangements.

Among the reasons given for the firm's decision to move is that the present plant at Laurel Point, built in 1906 and expanded several times later, is "no longer adequate in today's paint business."

Law said the location and limited space made it impractical to modernize facilities or add to the plant capacity.

He also said studies had shown that, for a company with major markets on the mainland and throughout Western Canada, plant location on Vancouver Island "has resulted in economic and competitive disadvantages which would steadily increase."

"These disadvantages are reflected in the costs of transportation of raw materials and finished products to and from the Island, and the necessity of maintaining heavy inventories of both . . ." Law said.

He said the plans for redevelopment of Laurel Point now being studied would fit in with the city's over-all plan for the Inner Harbor, and would include a city park along the waterfront section of the property.

Firm plans have not been submitted to city council, Law said, because the developers want the public to see the designs at open meetings "to provide an opportunity for public participation in the planning stage."

Planning department officials said today Laurel Point offers a "magnificent site" for redevelopment in both the public and private sectors, and road realignment may be necessary to secure public access to the waterfront.

The land is now industrially zoned and council will likely insist that any firm proposal from CIL Properties is submitted under development contract requirements, so that there can be stipulated controls on the type of development allowed.

Total area of the site is about five acres.

The planning department's recently published Waterfront Study said Laurel Point, in addition to parks and walkways, could provide opportunities for medium-density tourist accommodation and "residential uses on the upland."

Pollen pointed out that CIL's plans will have to conform with the general guidelines of the James Bay report, when that document is approved by council.

That report, on the future development and zoning policies of the James Bay area, is due to be presented to the council meeting on Thursday.

Ship Traffic Controls Draw Nearer

The federal transport ministry is purchasing the radio and radar equipment needed for the second phase of a program to ultimately control marine traffic along the B.C. coast.

The first phase, which began last July 1, has larger ships moving between Vancouver Island and the mainland voluntarily reporting progress past 14 checkpoints on a VHF radio channel.

The second phase, to start next summer, will make the traffic reports mandatory.

H. O. Buchanan, regional director of marine services, said from Vancouver today that the first phase has been working "reasonable well" and he is pleased with results.

The U.S. Coast Guard introduced a similar program last July for marine traffic in Puget Sound and Buchanan said it is hoped the two programs can be developed as complementary systems.

The ultimate goal of the Canadian plan is complete radar monitoring and track plotting of shipping along as much of the B.C. coast as proves necessary .The major aim is prevention of oil spills.

From the outset the program was assured co-operation from B.C. Ferries and other government vessels. Buchanan said there has also been good co-operation from the B.C. Towboat Owners Association. Towboats have added the needed radio equipment to use the traffic-reporting channel.

Freighters "to a large extent" have been co-operating but some ships are appearing in port without advance word on their arrival over the traffic channel, he said.

Ships of 100 tons or more and towboats, where boat and tow extend over 100 feet, were asked to participate in phase one. The checkpoints lie between Cape Flattery at the entrance to Juan de Fuca Strait and Cape Mudge near Campbell River.

Ships have been radioing such information as name and cargo, course and speed and anticipated arrival at the next checkpoint. Aim is for shipping to follow the progress of traffic in the vicinity by all monitoring the information channel.

In the second phase the progress reports will be required of ships which will be under some radar surveillance.

Chamber President Regrets Plant Move

Victoria Chamber of Commerce president Terry Farmer today called the decision of Bapco Paint to leave Victoria "a severe blow" for Vancouver Island.

He said the chamber would fight with every economic weapon possible to assist Bapco Paint to stay in the Victoria area, but he admitted it would be difficult.

"The company has obviously studied their costs very carefully," he said.

Farmer said the chamber would try to get some concessions from B.C. Ferries and the CPR on freight costs to enable companies to compete with those locating on the mainland.

FREIGHT COSTS

Trying to attract companies from Ontario to locate in Victoria was only feasible if freight costs were about the same for shipments from Victoria to Edmonton and from Vancouver to Edmonton.

Without parity or near parity of freight rates, most companies would opt to locate on the mainland rather than in Victoria, he said.

He said a meeting was planned with Bapco President J. R. Law this afternoon in hopes of getting him to alter his decision and relocate the Laurel Point Plant somewhere in the Victoria area.

Law is a director of the chamber, being chairman of committees on labor relations and monetary policy.

Victoria chamber has been seeking federal government grants under the Department of Regional Economic Expansion to get new industries on the Island but has decided it needs some freight cost concessions to keep those already here.

Larry Ryan, secretary of the Victoria Labor Council, said the Bapco move was badly managed from the capital region's point of view.

Alternative sites should have been offered the company but "pressures were put on them to move to improve the waterfront. There was no need to push them out of town."

Ryan said Canada has one of the highest levels of unemployment in the western world and B.C. unemployment ranks high in Canada "and we are so poorly equipped to handle industrial development. We don't even have an industrial development commission. We have so many local governments and this is one result of it."

Ryan also said "we don't see the logic" in Bapco moving from Victoria. He said it was probably a decision made in eastern Canada and while it may make sense in Montreal "it may not be in the public interest here."

Mayor Pollen said the Bapco situation is an example of a local company being purchased by a larger, multi-national company (CIL) which then proceeds to rationalize its production.

"But without question the employees are better off under the the proposed deal than if the plant had been closed down under the former ownership," he said.

VICTORIA'S LOSS

Loss of Bapco Paint and its 90 employees further reduces Victoria's already slender manufacturing sector.

The bulk of what industries are here are engaged in manufacture of wood products. The declining shipbuilding industry is also important here.

Largest manufacturing firm in the area is B.C. Forest Products Ltd. with some 900 employees.

Other major manufacturing firms with their approximate numbers of employees are:

Victoria Press 400, Yarrows 350, Sooke Forest Products 250, Victoria Plywood 200, Victoria Machinery Depot 100, McDonald's Bakery 100.

There are a number of wood manufacturing firms and machinery assembly plants employing less than 100 in the Victoria area.

Local 1947 president Owen Williams criticized absentee managerial decisions and failure of local government to spur industrial development.

"There are people in Montreal making decisions affecting the livelihoods here," he said.

"Successive councils have failed to do anything to keep industry here or attract new industry."

DEAD TOWN

Williams pointed to closure in recent years of Sidney Roofing, major bakeries, a shipyard and now Bapco.

He said young people who need jobs will face the prospect of poor-paying ones or none at all and "Victoria will become a dead town. It will just leave the tourist industry which is low paid."

Williams said Bapco has 155 employees, of whom 90 are in the union which represents plant workers but not office staff. Meetings were held with local management this morning. The company offer was "reasonably generous."

He said Bapco will take about 40 employees to Surrey, about 10 will retire early and "90 to 95 will be looking for jobs."

Details of the specific effects on individuals will be discussed further with the company, he said.

He said the men on the shop floor knew that the move was going to come, but perhaps not as soon as it did.

"The feeling is not exactly stunned, but they are just beginning to realize there will be no job soon. There are people with roots here and houses. It is total upheaval for them."

ABOMINABLE SNOWMAN would hardly describe him though he's almost as rare and definitely as abominable to Victorians who like to pretend it never snows in Canada's "banana belt." Work Week Cut As Wages Hiked

A reduction in weekly working hours has been coincided by some Victoria business with the introduction of the government's new $2-an-hour minimum wage.

The effect is to cut back what some employees thought they would be receiving by calculating the new minimum on the basis of the previous number of hours worked.

R. B. Bates, secretary-treasurer of McGill and Orme, admitted his business is one which has reduced employee hours but said it is "happening all over town."

"When the minimum went up we did not want to let anyone go. Some got an increase but they will work 35 rather than 40 hours," he said.

"It was either that or cut staff. It was one of the fairest things to do."

A person working 40 hours a week on the old $1.50 an hour minimum wage would gross $60 a week, or $80 under the new minimum. But if hours are cut back to 35 a week, the weekly pay is $70.

The Strathcona Hotel at 919 Douglas St. has responded to the new minimum wage by laying employees off, cutting hours of work of some employees and raising prices, said manager Keith Olson.

The hotel has all sorts of employees affected by the new minimum wage, said Olson — waitresses, kitchen help, laundry workers, bellboys and chambermaids.

Melvin Webb, manager of the Shoppers Drug Mart in the Hillside Shopping Centre, said: "I know there will be a belt-tightening at the first of the year. There will have to be in order to absorb this."

Whether the belt-tightening will come as a cut in working hours or a cut in staff remains to be seen, said Webb.

The manager of a downtown department store, who refused to be quoted, said the new minimum wage has prevented him from hiring extra Christmas staff.

'BIG BROTHER' NOT EXPECTED

Big Brother's eye is still a long way off for the streets and public places of Victoria, Police Chief John F. Gregory said today.

He was asked to comment on Victoria Cablevision's recent announcement that 76 miles of trunk cable would be available for public purposes next year.

Gregory said there was no question of the police force making use of the cable network.

"If you're suggesting the Big Brother thing with an eye in the sky surveying all, forget it. I think we'd start a revolt."

"We've looked at the idea of television surveillance before," Gregory said. "There was trouble a while back at Centennial Square and we mentioned television to the mayor then. He said it was out of the question.

"Hopefully such surveillance systems will never be used here. We certainly haven't any plans for one."

Snow Snarls City Streets

City streets were quiet overnight with most motorists staying close to home following Monday's snowstorm which brought chaotic traffic conditions during the evening rush-hour.

City police estimated there were hundreds of minor accidents Monday afternoon and early evening as the three-inch snowfall turned traffic arteries into treacherous obstacle courses.

Accident reports were lighter overnight however, with 14 collisions reported in Victoria, each averaging around $200 to $300 damage.

Several minor accidents were reported in Colwood, while Saanich, Esquimalt, Sooke and Sidney police all reported fairly quiet nights.

Despite warmer temperatures forecast for today and Wednesday, police warn that road conditions will remain hazardous and urge motorists to slow down.

Major Vancouver Island highways are open but icy today and most require snow tires.

The Malahat and Sooke Road are slippery with snow tires mandatory on the Malahat.

The Campbell River-Courtenay and Port Alberni-Parksville highways have been sanded but are still slippery in sections and require snow tires.

The remaining highways are icy and require snow tires: Kelsey Bay - Campbell River, Gold River-Campbell River, Tofino-Port Alberni, Courtenay-Nanaimo, and Nanaimo-Duncan.

Weathermen say there may be some snow showers today in the higher regions.

North-easterly winds up to 25 to 30 m.p.h. will add an extra chill to temperatures forecast in the mid-thirties for today and Wednesday.

UVic Chancellor Known Wednesday

Approximately 1,600 votes for a new chancellor of the University of Victoria had been received by closing date Monday, and the ballots will be counted Wednesday.

Six vacancies on the senate are also being contested by 19 candidates. There are five nominees for chancellor to fill the gap left by Roderick Haig-Brown, who stood down this year.

The results of the ballot will be received by the university senate Wednesday evening.

Voters eligible to elect the chancellor and senators are founding members of the university, faculty and ex-faculty members, persons listed on the convocation rolls by order of senate and past graduates of the university.

There are an estimated 7,000 eligible voters. 5,000 ballots were sent out.

Hotel Guests Escape Flames

Flames flashed out the fifth-floor windows of a downtown hotel Monday night as guests fled to the lower floors to escape a blaze which caused between $20,000 and $25,000 damage.

Andrew Anderson, manager of the Beverley Hotel, 724 Yates, said "half of the fifth floor" was gutted after a fire began in a room occupied by Gary Korble, 18, about 9:55 p.m.

Approximately 50 guests were aroused by the alarm and evacuated to the lower floors where they awaited the arrival of Victoria fire department.

Many of the tenants, mostly senior citizens, spent the night in rooms at the Yates Hotel, 712 Yates, said Anderson.

Deputy Fire Chief Carl Coates said the fire was noticed by the desk clerk, Kerry Hill, who called the manager and sounded the alarm.

Anderson saw something "ripping the door" of room 507. He opened the door and was greeted by a "flash of flame," said Coates.

"It was probably caused by careless smoking. It started in a bed," said Coates.

Twenty firemen battled the blaze for 2½ hours and damage was caused by fire, smoke and water, he said.

No-one was injured but "it could have been a very serious fire," said Coates.

New Emphasis in Gyms Seen

Greater Victoria school system, particularly the classes for very young children, should provide some form of gymnastics under the supervision of trained teachers, the school board was told Monday night.

A committee of parents led by Mrs. R. J. Mack, 1437 Clifford, told the board teachers revoked children's gym periods if the children misbehaved, and many teachers did it because they did not want to supervise a gym period.

The group said team sports are emphasized in schools, with only top players consistently participating.

A basic gymnastics program in which every child could participate regardless of ability is a vital part of educational growth, the group said in a brief which was accompanied by 52 signatures.

"We'll do it, in one way or another," curriculum committee chairman Philip Ney told a dozen members of the group.

Trustee Peter Bunn said he would not like to see a gym program become "an empire of over-degreed people."

"It doesn't need five years in university to supervise this sort of thing," he commented.

Most of the trustees said they welcomed the brief.

The district has already retained D. G. Henderson, Hillcrest Elementary School principal, to do a four-month study of physical education in the elementary schools. He told the meeting his study had come down to a straightforward matter of financial priorities.

He said physical education was "at the bottom of the totem pole" in elementary schools "because it was put there."

"A while ago both physical education, music and art were felt to be peripheral subjects. Maybe there's a new set of priorities emerging. If there is, I think the schools are ready to respond."

Henderson will present a report to the board by the end of December. "It looks like money," he predicted.

Meanwhile, in the instruction-administration committee, trustees Bunn and Ney said they could not vote to give the district superintendent sole control over the selection and hiring of school principals.

"Having fought for years to have elected people involved in the selection of principals, this is not funny," Bunn said.

Superintendent Jake Longmore said the administration proposed the revision of procedures because of a recent occasion when the board hired a principalship candidate without first consulting the superintendent as "chief executive officer."

Dr. John Wiens, director of instruction, said he had seen candidates appear before the board and misrepresent themselves both in a good light and a bad light.

Longmore and Wiens said they had professional inside knowledge about candidates which should be taken into account. Bunn agreed, and said the regulations should stipulate consultation between the board and the superintendent.

Trustee Ney said he wanted assignment of the principals to be directed by the board also, and he said vice-principal positions should be advertised province-wide "just to find out who is out there."

Retired Craftsmen Go to Work

By PAT MUNSON
Times Correspondent

When Charlie Anderson started to repair wagon wheels for Saanich Artifacts Society this fall, a new idea was put in motion for retired craftsmen on the peninsula.

Ed Raper, a Central Saanich farmer and member of the society, decided that too many talents were sitting idle and after learning of a federal government program to stimulate activity among retired people, began organizing a project.

The New Horizons fund, announced in September by the department of health and welfare, is according to Raper, "one of the best pieces of legislation I have seen" and fits the needs of many Saanich Peninsula residents.

The grants are strictly for non-profit groups and are designed to support the creative participation of retired Canadians in the life of their community.

"Anderson (547 Burnside) had retired as a blacksmith 30 years ago," explained Raper. "But now he is showing others how to build and shrink wagon wheels. It was almost a lost art."

A North Saanich resident, Fred Kortmeyer, 8603 Emard Terrace, was in a similar position. A retired oil driller, Kortmeyer had found interest in life dwindling until he was invited to help activate disused and antique farm engines for Saanich Artifacts Society.

The Saanich Peninsula group — named Art and Facts — has already been given a project number by the federal department and, if its application for $15,000 is approved, will utilize the fund for restoration of historically valuable farm equipment.

Restored pieces will be given to the Artifacts Society which runs the only "live" museum in B.C., with working displays of antique tractors, hay balers and other machinery each year at Saanichton Fair.

An 1878 thresher is the current project for re-activation, but the job will probably involve specially-designed pieces which can only be made in a machine shop. A New Horizons grant would meet this expense as well as providing equipment, explains Raper.

New Substance Delays Aging?

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — University of Utah scientists say they have found a substance similar to motor oil which may enable man to delay the aging process by keeping his arteries flexible.

Dr. Lawrence Sandberg says his research team has isolated a substance called tropoelastin, which has a chemical property similar to motor oil, enabling arteries to stay young, flexible and elastic.

"The potential," Sandberg says, "is that we can ultimately delay the process of aging."

He says the oily property accounts for most of the flexibility of the elastin, a protein found in the arterial walls.

Working with minute quantities of the substance extracted from the arteries, the researchers have been able to figure out a partial blueprint of its molecular structure and gain insights into its nature, he said, adding that they found that tropoelastin has regular patterns of atoms with two different chemical properties — water-resistant and water-favoring.

Dr. William Gray said the tropoelastin is shaped like a coil with the oil parts tucked inside.

The scientists said they believe that, as healthy arteries expand and contract, water contacts the oily portion and is repelled as the coil resumes its normal position. Sandberg and Gray figure that hardening of the arteries results from the coil flipping inside out, leaving the oily part on the outside.

How would you like to enrich your kitchen repertoire with some dishes which were popular in days gone by and which have been updated to suit the needs of modern Canadian homemakers?

In the 8-page Country Fare you will find recipes of popular cornfield fritters. Recommended as a taste-enhancing accompaniment is a colorful homestead jellied salad. To round out this memorable meal, try the gingerbread upside-down cake, as suggested.

Another of the main dish recipes is for easy-to-fix farmhouse casserole. Or, you may want to surprise your family with some out-of-the ordinary iron skillet chicken rolls which are prepared from deboned chicken breasts. These could be followed by a dainty fireside fondue, made from chocolate, cream and chunks of fruit. Mmmmmmm!

It's Party Time Again: Consider Vital Issues

I would much rather go to a party at someone else's house than give a party myself.

In the first place, if the party turns out to be one of those terribly rowdy affairs where Clyde feels impelled to stand on the loveseat with a martini balanced on his head and telephone good old "Socks-Baby" long distance in Pasadena, I'd just as soon that he use someone else's loveseat and telephone bill.

Furthermore, if you find yourself at a deadly dull party where everyone is sitting on folding chairs comparing recent dental work, you can simply put on a headache and go home. This is a bit difficult if you are already home. While you can always slip out for more ice or a dozen limes, sooner or later you will have to return and make the best of a bad situation.

Periodically, of course, we have to hold up our end of things and give a party.

Giving a party poses several vital questions:

(1) Will people circulate? What if they all insist on sitting in a tight little circle in one end of the living room? If this is the case, should I bother cleaning the bathroom?

(2) Do we have enough scotch? What if all 16 people drink scotch? Should we get 16 bottles of scotch? But what if everyone wants bourbon instead? Maybe we should buy 16 bottles of bourbon, too. What aboput vodka and rum? To be perfectly safe, let's say 90 bottles. That's $550. Not to mention pretzels and clam dip!

(3) Will anyone notice that ugly lump on my upper lip?

Having a party is like having a baby. While there is very little that my husband can do to help in the final stages. I count on him to lend moral support when my palms get sweaty.

I just wish that once he could manage to say "Your hair looks like a golden halo tonight" instead of "What's that ugly lump on your upper lip?"

Native Indian Arts Displayed

HALIFAX (CP) — Native Indian Tribes of Canada, a collection of costumes, artifacts and paintings on loan from provincial museums across Canada, is on display at the Nova Scotia Museum here. Mary Sparling, curator of education at the museum, says the purpose of the display is to show the richness and variety of Canada's native Indian tribes both today and in former times.

When a Heart Stops . . .

By CATHERINE CAMPBELL
Times Staff

In almost everyone's life, there are a few times when a minute means the difference between life and death.

A heart attack is one of them.

And when a heart stops, its owner may well hope a card-carrying graduate of Preserve-A-Life is nearby.

Right now, the chances of that occurring in Victoria are pretty slim, but Lynn Klein and Larry Tuttle are campaigning for a change.

Klein and Tuttle are the force behind the newly-formed Victoria Preserve-A-Life Society. Their goal is to train about 25,000 Victorians in the abc's of Cardiopulmonary Resuscitation — first aid for victims of heart stoppage.

The abc's are first to open the victim's airway, then to bring back breathing by mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and finally to restore circulation by manual chest compression (i.e. a force of about 90 lbs. — applied by the rescuer's hands to a specific spot on the victim's chest.

Use of the technique is not limited to victims of heart disease.

Drowning, car accidents, choking and electrocution are some of the many causes of heart failure.

Purpose of Preserve-A-Life, says Klein, "is not primarily to restart the heart, but to keep the vital organs alive until definitive medical care — a doctor — can be obtained.

"But if the heart would restart — that's great."

This is where lay people trained in the technique can make the difference of life or death, Klein explains.

"If this procedure is employed within the first minute, there is a 90 per cent chance of recovery. After three minutes, this drops to below 50 per cent.

"Five or 10 minutes — it's too late. The brain is gone."

Klein and Tuttle conducted their first public class Sunday night at a local health spa with the entire staff of the spa as students.

"We sent out 100 letters to secondary schools and various business groups," says Klein, "and the spa was the first to reply. We feel it's a particularly good thing for them as they are already in the health care business."

Basic format for the three-and-a-half hour course is a short briefing on anatomy by Klein, and a film demonstrating life-saving techniques followed by individual practice on the Resusci-Anne and Anatomic Anne mannequins.

"The mannequins are the only equipment specifically designed for this purpose," Klein says. "They were created by a Norwegian doll-maker whose wife died of a heart attack. Since then he has devoted his life to this sort of thing."

Resusci-Anne is equipped with a pulse and authentically-calibrated gauges to measure it. Anatomic Anne has a cut away chest section.

"She gives the student the idea of where the heart is in relation to the sternum, and when pressure is applied to the chest the fluid flow is visible," Klein explains.

A doll is used to demonstrate cardiac compression on an infant — a process requiring a much lighter touch.

This is the first time such a course has been offered to the Canadian public, Klein emphasizes.

"Why? — because they say it's dangerous.

"And it is," he adds, "if you say 'Take half an hour and we'll teach you' — you bet it's dangerous.

"If the technique is carried out improperly you can cause a lot of damage. The whole key is the proper position of the hands on the chest and the correct rhythm."

For this reason, Klein says, should a student not prove capable of the correct procedure after the three-and-a-half hour session, his $21 fee will be returned to him in place of the society's wallet card for graduates.

Intensive Course

Klein would also like to see a yearly renewal of the course for all graduates, and in the future he hopes to train other instructors in an intensive 20-hour course.

The cards and group wall diplomas cite acceptance of the technique by St. John Ambulance and The Industrial First Aid Attendants Association of B.C. Klein hopes acceptance from the Victoria Medical Society is forthcoming.

But Klein and Tuttle's goal does not stop at the traning of 25,000 citizens for emergency action.

Their ultimate aim is the provision of mobile coronary intensive care units for the Victoria area — ambulances staffed by paramedics qualified to deal with heart emergencies.

Such a program, Medic I, has operated in Seattle for almost three years, Klein says, and has to its credit more than 100 long-term survivors of persons who were "clinically dead."

Medic II, which saw the training of 40,000 Seattle citizens in Preserve-A-Life techniques, counts five lives saved in its year-and-a-half of operation.

Due to what Klein describes as "the deplorable ambulance conditions" in B.C., he and Tuttle are approaching the two phases of the scheme in the opposite order.

"We sent a brief to the Social Credit government in August and to the Regional Capital Board recommending immediate legislation on ambulance operation," Klein says. "We're happy to see now that some of our suggestions are being accepted."

Long Wait

But he still fears there will be a long wait before the mobile coronary-intensive car units are established.

Klein, a former hospital orderly and ambulance driver for four years in Calgary, says he has seen the paramedic system work there.

"It was started by Dr. Peter Cohen and in nine months it saved 42 lives. Then the city took over the ambulances and the program was stopped. Dr. Cohen has since started a similar system at the Royal Victoria hospital in Montreal."

Tuttle and Klein launched their Victoria project about eight months ago.

"As of our first class, it becomes full-time work," says Klein.

"We spent our own money on the equipment," he says, but adds he would like to see a service group sponsor the program, as happened in Seattle.

Profits, if any, will go to the hospitals for coronary intensive care units, Klein says.

"With 200 out of every 100,000 persons in B.C. dying from heart failure, time is the greatest adversary. We must get people to be cardiac-oriented."

Says Tuttle, son of a cardiologist: "If this course can reach the public and show them just what kind of care can be given, people will become aware of the need for mobile coronary-intensive care units.

"Both of us believe it's something long overdue."

TINY CAR INDICATED

DETROIT (AP) — A tiny car about the size of the Honda car is reported being developed in Japan as part of a joint effort by General Motors Corp. and Isuzu Motors Ltd.

The Detroit Free Press quotes reports from Japan Automotive News indicating the car would be powered by a 1,200-cubic-centimetre engine.

The Japanese journal said the car "is fully capable of meeting 1975 U.S. auto emission-control standards," raising the possibility that the car is being developed for the U.S. market.

Based on the reported engine size, the car would be tiny even in comparison with GM's smallest U.S.-made auto, the Chevrolet Vega, which has a 2,300-cc. engine.

dear abby

Bygone Births

DEAR ABBY: I am a 13-year-old boy and like to watch TV a lot. One night I saw a movie on TV where a baby was about to be born and the doctor asked for "lots of boiling water." This puzzled me. I asked my father what they needed boiling water for, and he said maybe they wanted to make tea or coffee.

Then I asked my mother, and she said, "The doctor probably just wanted to keep the father busy so he wouldn't be in the way." Abby, I think they didn't want to tell me the truth so they just made up those silly answers.

Will you please be honest with me and tell me why a doctor needs boiling water for the birth of a baby? This is something they don't teach you in school. — Uncertain Boy.

DEAR BOY: They haven't used boiling water in a birth since "The Birth of a Nation," which is a pretty old movie. But in the olden days, all surgical materials were sterilized in boiling water to kill the bacteria and prevent infection.

DEAR ABBY: How can I get the message across to my mother-in-law when she tells me one of her "stories" that she already had told at least 20 times?

It gets to be very annoying to listen to her go through a long, drawn-out monologue of one of her many lifetime experiences. When she launches into one of her boring stories, on occasion I have politely reminded her that she has told me before, but she goes right on until she finishes it.

I certainly keep track of what I tell people, and wouldn't think of boring them in that manner. Your advice will be much appreciated. — Withhold My Name.

DEAR WITHHOLD: You don't say how old you are, but I assume your mother-in-law is about 25 years older, which could account for her forgetfulness. Show a little more compassion and patience, if not respect.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069, for Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions."

Device Allows Patients To Detect Hypertension

NEW YORK (UPI) — No home should be without devices for measuring blood pressure and heartbeat because they help to quickly detect hypertension, a cardiologist said here recently.

Any adult can easily be trained to use the blood pressure measuring device called a sphygmomanometer, said Dr. George E. Burch, chairman of Tulane University's department of medicine.

The mercury-type sphygmomanometer together with a bell stethoscope costs about $50.

Used regularly at home they can detect hypertension early, making possible successful treatment and post-management of the disease commonly called high blood pressure, Burch said. The characteristic symptons are nervousness, dizziness or headaches.

Some physicians scoff at Burch's suggestion. He replies that when the clinical thermometer was introduced in the late 1800s the medical establishment believed that only physicians should use the sensitive scientific device.

Burch, interviewed at a symposium of the American College of Cardiology, said opposition to his suggestion comes from doctors who distrust their patients' intelligence as well as from the patients themselves who are accustomed to their doctors' paternalism.

In his practice Burch asks patients to keep regular records of their blood pressure and make notes of any unusual circumstances preceeding a high reading.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Forecast for Wednesday, December 13, 1972

By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Easy ways are blocked. Potential and long-range views dominate. Live your own life. Those who advise and expect you to consent must be awakened to facts. Self-interest now must be your key. You will comprehend.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Advice from friends could leave something to be desired. Your own views should be first, foremost. Strive for added independence. Be wary in connection with money, valuables. Do your own accounting for now.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Home affairs could dominate. Family member is trying to tell you something. Learn by teaching. Means share knowledge. Examine motives, hunches. Accept responsibility. If enthusiastic, you benefit.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Let others handle minor matters, details. View project as a whole. Perceive potential. Applies to personal as well as business affairs. Now you can look ahead to holiday visits, gift selections.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Slight delay should not be cause for undue discouragement. Key now is to look for openings. Pick and choose. Be selective. Be aware of how mate, partner handles money. Advise in careful manner.

VIRGO (August 23-Sept. 22): Lie low. Obtain hint from Leo message. If patient, necessary changes will occur. Gemini individual could play key role. Accent is on public relations, your ability to perceive what is needed. Sum up — but don't commit yourself.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Journey may result in the unexpected. Postpone long-range project. You require additional material, information. Know it and respond accordingly. Taurus individual figures prominently. Be flexible.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Study Virgo message. See situations, persons as they really are — don't deceive yourself. Wishful thinking is your adversary. Emotion tends to take over from logic. Be prepared. Avoid basing actions on impulse.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Invest in your own talents, abilities. Older individual lends helping hand. Accept added responsibility. Bright spot occurs in area previously depressed. You are due for unusual surprise — of pleasant variety.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You can complete assignment and receive recognition for efforts. Some ideas need revision and more time to develop. Tiptoe through welter of confusion. Steer clear of disputes among relatives.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): New approach is necessary if you are to realize financial gain. Key now is to strive for originality. Old methods will not suffice. Keep up with times. Stress showmanship, creativity.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You can overcome odds. Key is to follow through, knowing you will get backing after initial opposition. Aquarian may be surprise ally. Be receptive. Keep faith in yourself. You are on right path.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you recently survived test. You are due to reap some rewards. You are a frank, direct individual. You usually mean what you say and say what you mean. You abhor hyprocrisy. In 1973, you will complete important project. August will be your most significant month of upcoming year.

Fishermen Offer Wharf Plans

CROFTON — Fishermen here, who feel that wharfage facilities are totally inadequate, agreed at a meeting Monday evening to submit to Ottawa two proposals for upgrading the government wharf.

Ray Smith, spokesman for the group of 19 fishermen who were at the meeting, said they are asking the ministry of transport to either change the wharf location a little south, where there is a natural basin and only a small breakwater would be required, or to extend the present facilities and add a fender-type breakwater.

RAY SMITH
. . . 'babysitting'

Although fishermen have been complaining about the government wharfage facilities in Crofton for years, Smith said the issue was brought to a head when more than $5,000 damage was done to boats tied up to the wharf in a recent gale.

Smith said all the fishermen were down "babysitting" their vessels because "if the insecure floats went we would have been looking at over a quarter of a million dollars' loss in boats."

He said that because the 15 boats, which usually moor at Crofton, have to tie up three deep the insurance companies won't cover damage."

A petition, urging support from Cowichan Valley residents, is being circulated. Members from the fishermen's group have also scheduled meetings with local politicians to solicit more support to back their demands.

Smith said that if Crofton facilities were increased and more adequate there could be at least 30 fishboats plus private boats moored there.

Smith, who is a Crofton volunteer fireman, said the lack of electricity and water at the wharf is also of great concern to fishermen as well as the fire department.

$27,000 LIP Grant Sought for Park

DUNCAN — The Duncan Rotary Club is applying for a $27,000 Local Initiative grant to upgrade Rotary Park.

Ald. Ken Paskin told city council Monday the grant would cover labor for the $45,000 project.

Paskin said work crews would prepare 100 picnic sites, roadways and a large playing field in the 40-acre park if the grant is approved.

As well as changing rooms and a wading area, Paskin said the project would be to beautify the whole area.

He said the committee is looking into applying through the provincial government's new scheme of sharing up to one-third of all recreational capital costs to help pay for the remaining balance of the project.

Council endorsed the project.

SPCA Seeks Higher Grant As Costs of Pound Soar

DUNCAN — The SPCA advised city council Monday that, unless it is prepared to grant an extra $300 per mofth for services supplied by the group, the services will be discontinued at the end of the year.

The increase from $256 to $556 monthly would bring the annual pound cost to $6,678.

Ald. Bob Willis, council's representative to the SPCA, told council that North Cowichan is faced with a similar demand.

"If we both don't agree to the increase the SPCA will no longer supply the service," Willis said. "I must point out that the increase in fees does not mean an increase in service."

Ald. Hamish Mutter urged council to make overtures to the Cowichan Valley Regional Board to see that the facility be covered on a regional basis.

"Dogs know no boundaries and it is impractical for an area to be charged for the service," he said. Mutter feels that the SPCA is "holding a gun at our head and we should look for other alternatives.

"I am not sure they are supplying sufficient service now," Quaife said.

Council agreed to study the SPCA's yearly financial statement. Decision will be postponed until the new council is sworn in.

Duncan Youth Remanded

DUNCAN — A Duncan youth who is facing two charges after allegedly stealing a police car was remanded without plea until Dec. 21 in provincial court here Monday.

Paul Haroldson, 17, has been charged with criminal negligence while operating a motor vehicle and theft of a police vehicle.

RCMP said that the vehicle was stolen Saturday morning while a constable was trying to break up a fight in a local drive-in restaurant.

Voters End 80 Dry Years

SPALLUMCHEEN (CP) — After 80 dry years, residents of this agricultural district north of Vernon have voted to allow the public consumption and sale of alcohol.

But Mayor Gordon Sidney said the decision is not likely to make much difference since Spallumcheen residents do all their drinking in the city of Armstrong.

The mayor said the council asked the provincial government to conduct a plebiscite only because the Spallumcheen golf club wanted to add a licensed lounge to its newly-completed premises.

Provincial returning officer H. C. Ford said residents voted 68 per cent for a beer parlor, 60.6 per cent for liquor with meals, under a dining room licence, 62.4 per cent for liquor with meals and 60.2 per cent for sale of liquor in a liquor lounge.

Sidney said there was no hotel for a beer parlor in the municipality and no demand for licensed restaurants.

"We just thought we might as well add those questions while we were taking a vote on the lounge for the golf club," he said.

SMELTER PROBE SET

TRAIL (CP) — The United Steelworkers of America said Health Minister Dennis cocke has appointed a medical team to examine men employed in the zinc tank rooms at Cominco Ltd.'s lead and zinc smelter here.

The minister had earlier ordered an inquiry into alleged health hazards in the zinc tank rooms following complaints from Local 480 of the union.

A union spokesman said most employees in the rooms have suffered permanent damage to their teeth and respiratory systems from inhaling acid fumes and vapors.

Doctors appointed by the minister are to meet union officials today to discuss examination procedures.

Surrey Wants Province To Conduct Land Inquiry

SURREY (CP) — Municipal council voted Monday night to ask Municipal Affairs Minister James Lorimer to conduct an inquiry into allegations involving a Surrey alderman and a leak of development plans from municipal hall.

Ald. Ed McKitka, the focal point of the allegations, supported the action which evoked no debate in public session.

Lorimer said in Victoria later that he would launch an inquiry if it did not duplicate an investigation being conducted by the RCMP.

Council discussed the matter during a three-hour closed-door session Monday afternoon and Mayor William Van Der Zalm announced the decision to petition Lorimer in the open meeting that night.

After the closed meeting, Van Der Zalm said the municipal prosecutor has said he "does not have sufficient evidence now to bring criminal charges against anyone."

Earlier Monday, McKitka said the entire matter had been "resolved" by Saturday's election in which he was re-elected.

He said he believes the allegation on the information leak to developers, and on his relationship with Vancouver developer Walter Link, were made in an attempt to beat him at the polls.

97 Drinkers Nabbed

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver city police nabbed 97 drinking drivers during the weekend. A total of 21 motorists were charged with impaired driving offences. The others were given 24-hour licence suspensions after being stopped in roadblocks and checked by the police department's special sniff squad.

Trial Ordered

VANCOUVER (CP) — Brent Mervin Smith, 52, of Vancouver was committed for higher court trial Monday charged with the non-capital murder of his common-law wife Frieda Fowler, 43. Smith was charged after the woman's body was found in her home Oct. 23.

Bomb Threats

MATSQUI (CP) — A 16-year-old boy was fined $25 Monday for telephoning bomb threats to a high school in Abbotsford on four separate occasions in October. A 17-year-old youth was scheduled to appear in court later this month on the same counts.

Second UCS Vote

KAMLOOPS (CP) — Members of the United Community Services (UCS) for the Thompson Nicola region will take a second vote Jan. 10 on whether to dissolve the organization.

A vote taken last week by 20 USC directors showed 80 per cent in favor of disbanding but a legal technicality forced a second vote. USC president Ralph Baker said a second vote could overturn the decision to disband.

Day-Long Walkout

VANCOUVER (CP) — About 101 workers for British Columbia Hydro and Power authority walked off the job Monday to protest the one-day suspension of a fellow worker for not obeying an order. A union spokesman was not available for comment. The company said the walkout is illegal.

6,300 Visas For Ugandans

LONDON (CP) — Canada approved 6,300 immigrant visa applications for expelled Ugandan Asians and 4,750 have already arrived in Canada, the House of Commons was told.

Australia provided 477 visas and has taken 77 of the Asians while New Zealand granted 27 visas and has taken 24.

The figures were given in a written government reply covering the period to Dec. 1.

CAN YOU AFFORD TO HAVE ANOTHER BABY?

Discovering that another baby is on the way should be great news.

Should be, but often isn't.

Many things can change what should be great news into a major family calamity: The health of the mother, finances, the number of children already in the family.

If a couple decide they can't afford another baby, they owe it to themselves and the children they now have to learn all there is to learn about the 8 methods of contraception. YOUR HEALTH: Dr. Walter Alvarez

Child-Beating

In recent years there has been a growing interest in many cases in which a child was severely beaten by his or her mother or father — sometimes so severely that the child died. And investigators may learn that the child had been severely abused for many months before the fatal beating; there may be X-ray pictures of old breaks in the child's bones, or scars on the child's body that had never received proper medical attention.

Recently, in one great city, a boy was so badly beaten by his father that after a few weeks of lying in a coma in a hospital, he died. In many of these cases, especially in the past, the parent has gone unpunished, partly because it has been so difficult to get proper evidence to convict the parent.

Recently, Dr. James H. Ryan, a practicing pediatrician and the coroner of Kankakee County, Illinois, wrote a book entitled "Suffer The Little Ones," a fictionalized account of the murder of a three-year-old girl by her mother. Dr. Ryan has spent many years studying the problem of child abuse, better known as the battered child syndrome.

As Dr. Ryan says in his note at the beginning of the book, although there have been great strides forward in the treatment of many childhood ailments in recent years, there has come the emergence of the terrible problem of child abuse. "It makes you sick, angry, and confused. Why must the little ones suffer? And what do you do about it? . . . Above all, how do you prevent further child negligence, battering, and murder? The key to prevention is understanding."

In the story, Dr. Patrick Brennan is called by a fine judge to testify as a "friend of the court" in the case of Mrs. Teal, the mother who beat her child to death. When Dr. Brennan quizzed the mother, he found what is so often the case in such matters — the mother had a "short-fused temper." I have found that very violent-tempered men generally say that they would never dare spank their child for fear that they would not be able to quit. Many a time the person who was inclined to give his child a severe beating confessed to me that he had a terrible and almost uncontrollable temper.

Mrs. Teal had been seen by several psychiatrists who testified that she was sane, but Dr. Brennan, who was not a psychiatrist, but a pediatrician, after a long chat with the woman, told the judge that a woman who beat her little daughter to death just because she wet her panties did not have a normal mind; it was not an adult mind, but more like the mind of an angry child. Yet tests showed that her intelligence was fairly normal.

HOW TO WRITE A GOOD
CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room, etc. for rent, or property for sale; start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably when given complete, definite information. Always include the price in your advertisement. Don't allow the reader to speculate.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public every day.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—WANT ADS THAT FAIL TO bring the desired results do so usually, not through a lack of readership, but because they are poorly worded or contain inadequate information.

8—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient ad-visor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 8:00 p.m. for you daily, Monday through Saturday call.

UN Backs Plan For University

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The General Assembly has endorsed the idea of a new "world university" to deal with such problems as pollution, world politics and technology.

The assembly passed a resolution Monday, by a vote of 101 to 7 with four abstentions, to establish a United Nations University, first proposed three years ago by former UN secretary-general U Thant.

Canada, which had abstained on an initial vote in an assembly committee, was among those voting in favor of the proposal. The East European bloc, fearing lack of political control over the project, voted against.

Fourteen countries sponsored the proposal, which Holland said would provide centres for research "where men and women from all countries, whether socialist or capitalist, developed or developing, could meet to find solutions to urgent world problems."

Unlike other colleges, the UN University would not be located in one area but would have its facilities scattered throughout the world, dealing with specific areas of need according to location.

It would not grant degrees or have a main campus but would attempt to co-ordinate research being carried out in various areas.

Although Canada voted in favor of the university, Canadian Ambassador Saul Rae told the assembly Monday that Canada still was concerned about financing, academic freedom, how personnel would be selected and what the possible legal implications might be.

N.B. House Unchanged

FREDERICTON (CP) — Liberals and Progressive Conservatives held their ground Monday in three byelections called to fill vacancies in the New Brunswick legislature.

The Conservative government retained Saint John East and Charlotte with reduced majorities. The Liberals held on to Bathurst, again by a slimmer margin.

The byelections gave the Conservatives 33 members in the 58-seat legislature, but J. C. Van Horne, former tourism minister in Premier Richard Hatfield's cabinet, said last month he planned to sit as an independent Conservative.

The Liberals have 24 seats in the legislature while one vacancy remains. George McInerney, chairman of the New Brunswick Electric Power commission and Conservative member for Saint John Centre, died last month but a byelection for the seat has not been called.

Farmers Plan Union

WINNIPEG (CP) — The National Farmers Union is convinced the only way to ease the economic plight of the agricultural producer is to become a bargaining agent to negotiate collective agreements with processors, but the union will have to strengthen its membership and financial condition to do so.

Draft legislation to provide for the union to become the bargaining agent in each province was introduced for discussion as the organization opened its annual five-day convention Monday.

But stumbling blocks to the plan being implemented in the immediate future are that the association is $230,000 in the red and it would need a major increase in its 24,780 membership total.

In addition to sweeping powers given a marketing agency under the proposed legislation, the union as agent could decide to withhold products on which a suitable contact could not be reached in less than 30 days.

Drug Crucified Me: Addict

A man who claimed he has been "crucified" by his dependance on heroin, was sentenced to 14 months in prison for possession of heroin by Judge William Oslter in provincial court Tuesday.

Raymond Severgny, 30, of no fixed address, was arrested Saturday night as he stepped off the bus from Vancouver. Police found a balloon containing 20 caps of heroin in his mouth. Severgny admitted he had gone to Vancouver to buy the drug, to support a habit which now needed three caps per dosage.

In a shaking voice, the accused told court how he had tried to get medical help at the Narcotics Addiction Foundation in Victoria the day before his arrest.

"They told me to return Monday," he said, adding that it would be "five or six days before he could get any medication to help him off the heroin.

"I've been crucified by heroin," said Severgny, who admitted using drugs since 1960.

"And in turn, you've been crucifying the public by stealing," said Ostler, in sentencing the man.

"The whole public of this country is suffering because of heroin addicts' thefts to support their habit, said Ostler.

"I've tried everything from religion to methadone," Severgny pleaded.

Internal Row for Israel Gov't

TEL AVIV (Reuter) — Israel's governing Labor party is in the midst of a major debate on the future of the occupied Arab territories, which in part also reflects a leadership struggle inside the party.

Lined up on one side, advocating more direct Israeli government participation in the military-administered areas, is Defence Minister Moshe Dayan.

On the other side is his major political rival, Deputy Prime Minister Yigal Allon, who says that in Israel's own interest the occupation cannot be allowed to become permanent.

The debate has been going on ever since the 1967 six-day war left Israel in charge of a large area on the West Bank of the Jordan River containing about 700,000 Arabs. A minority of extremists here have advocated a complete annexation of the area. Another minority wants Israel to shed the responsibility as quickly as possible, while others suggest a bi-national state.

In between are the green majority who in general want border adjustments to ensure Israel's security, but seek to maintain an essentially Jewish state, and think the Palestinians must ultimately determine their own system of government.

What makes the Labor party's present discussion significant is that within 12 months, Israel faces a general election and Prime Minister Golda Meir has said she is stepping down.

Allon and Dayan, both popular war heroes, are major candidates to succeed her—if in fact she retires, which is still in doubt.

Nearly two weeks ago, Dayan opened the debate by saying that for the last five years, Israel's government has been the "actual government" in the territories despite a large degree of autonomy, and parliament could no longer stand aside from its responsibilities there.

A week later, Allon appeared on television to state his opposition to annexation of the West Bank on the grounds that it could only produce a bi-national state. He said a compromise was required that would leave Israel with defensible boundaries, and satisfy Palestinians' aspirations so as to dissuade them from supporting terrorism.

Whatever the intention, Allon's remarks were generally seen as a rebuff to Dayan, who has been deeply involved in running the territories because they are under military government.

One reason why many Israelis worry about hanging on to the west bank is that it threatens their whole concept of a Jewish state.

The Arabs in the West Bank could not be allowed to become second-class citizens in a bi-national state, but their inclusion would change the population balance in Israel.

It's Time to Experiment With Yule Decorations

It's time to begin experimenting with berried shrubs and other foliage material from the garden so that your Christmas decorations will be perfect.

Holly, cotoneaster (evergreen ones last longest) and pyracantha are wonderful color makers in the home as they are in the garden and appear quite unharmed by frost at this time.

Remembering how well they look while still outdoors, you know they prefer their atmosphere cool and moist. Bringing them into the house which will be 40 to 50 degrees warmer with a low humidity, will cause berries to drop and leaves to wither.

If you take in a few small pieces now, crush the stem ends and put half the number into a small vase of warm water and the other half into a wad of wet green moss. Keep them at room temperature and spray a little water over them each day, noting the condition of the berries and leaves as time passes.

The shorter stems are softer wood. They take in moisture more easily than mature stems and give a useful clue as to how we may get most use from these very gay and lovely decorations.

According to your finger cleverness guided by an active imagination, you will be able to create either low mound table piece of berries and leaves or an imitation of a Christmas tree using berries and perhaps holly leaves, or those from the golden variegated Russian-olive (Elaeagnus maculatus aurea).

For either scheme, you need a piece of quarter-inch wire mesh, the size governed by the desired size of the finished product.

The low table decoration may start out as a piece of mesh 12 inches long, rolled into a cylinder four inches in diameter. Try it with cardboard or stiff paper to get the exact measurements. The cylinder should be about an inch shorter than the dish on which it is to be displayed. This is explained later.

When firmly made into the cylinder

When firmly made into the cylinder, fix to a flat bowl or dish of suitable size by means of pin holders and modelling clay. A glass baking dish is suitable, since it is easily masked with green moss. Stuff the wire cylinder with live green moss and leave in the bowl with water to soak up moisture for several hours.

Into the moss, through the quarter-inch openings, thrust the twigs of berried shrub, each piece firmly in place before the next goes in.

Some arrangers use fine wire around the stem, leaving a pointed end to push into the moss. You will improve as you work, the reason for your experimenting now.

The leaves will cover the wire completely; the berries should be in well defined clusters even though this means snipping away some leaves.

A berried Christmas tree design is made from a piece of wire mesh, cut fan-shaped and formed into a cone. Stuff tightly with green moss, soak in water and proceed in the same way as for the low table piece.

SOLUTION WEDNESDAY

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

Today's deal illustrates quite vividly how an optimistic attitude at the bridge table can result in a needless defeat. The hand is not a difficult one to play correctly. Yet the fact is that our South declarer played it exactly as presented.

Neither side vulnerable. South deals.

♣ K Q

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ◇	1 ♠	2 ♣	Pass
3 NT	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of ♠.

When West opened the spade king and the dummy came into view, South correctly appreciated that the fulfillment of the three-no-trump contract figured to be a cinch. All that was required was that the five adversely-held clubs be divided 3-2 (a 68 per cent chance). In this case, the king, queen and ace of clubs would gather in the outstanding clubs. And six club tricks would then be there for the taking.

So South won the opening spade lead with his ace, after which he cashed the king of clubs. Next came the queen of clubs and West discarded a diamond.

The queen of clubs was overtaken by dummy's ace, and the ten of clubs led next, East's jack winning. East returned a spade, and declarer played the nine-spot, hoping against hope that East possessed the ten, But, as is evident, West had the ten. The latter then proceeded to rake in four spade tricks, thus sending declarer fown to a one-trick defeat.

Admittedly, declarer was unlucky in finding the five outstanding clubs divided 4-1, rather than the expected 3-2. Nevertheless, he had no one but himself to blame for his defeat.

All declarer had to do in order to assure the making of his contract was to allow West's king of spades to capture the opening lead. If West then led another spade, he would give declarer a present of a trick, since South's remaining A-J would both be winners.

If, at trick two, West elected to lead the queen of hearts instead (the normal lead), South would capure it with his king. Next would come the king of clubs, and this would be followed by the overtaking of the club queen with the board's ace. The ten of clubs would then be led, East's jack winning.

Whatever East now played back, declarer would have his contract: one spade, one heart, five clubs and two diamonds. But, as has been observed, South played too hurriedly to the first trick.

Man. Eyes Breathalyzer For Use of Bar Patrons

WINNIPEG (CP) — Chairman J. Frank Syms says the Manitoba Liquor Control Commission is studying a proposal to install devices in licensed premises to test intoxication.

Syms said a breath analysis machine installed by a Regina hotel owner may be an answer. Patrons wanting to test their blood-alcohol content breathe into a tube attached to it. If the reading exceeds the legal limit, the person is served no more liquor.

Syms said such a device may be what the liquor commission is looking for. If such a machine was installed in Manitoba, its use would be voluntary.

2-Price Plan Debate

EDMONTON (CP) — The marketing of feed grains and the need for an effective two-price system for grains payment will be debated by about 600 delegates at the third annual Unifarm convention beginning here today.

Unifarm president W. Dobson Lea said today that improved prices have been provided in the last year in most commodities but the better prices did not reflect a major improvement in the economic position of farmers.

Rapeseed in Demand

WINNIPEG (CP) — With increased world demand for oilseeds, rapeseed quotas at country elevators are expected to reach a level high enough to enable farmers to deliver all available rapeseed supplies by the end of the crop year, R. M. Esdale, commissioner of the Canadian Wheat Board said.

"With the increased demand for rapeseed, farmers delivering to country elevators will have the same marketing opportunities by the end of the crop year as those now able to truck their rapeseed to local crushing plants."

New Means Test

MOOSE JAW (CP) — Residents of institutions for the mentally retared in Saskatchewan will face a means test in a new system that started Monday, Health Minister Walter Smishek said.

The test results from the government's decision to shift programs for the mentally retared to its social services department to qualify for Canada Assitance Plan payments.

The minister said the means test is necessary under regulations of the Canada Assistance Plan.

Transport Policy Set

CALGARY (CP) — The Alberta government Monday unveiled a new transportation policy aimed at sweeping away obstacles traditionally hindering the flow of Alberta goods to market.

The policy was passed by the cabinet last week and introduced at a news conference by Fred Peacock, industry and commerce minister. Peacock said it is the result of extensive studies since the Progressive Conservative party was elected in August, 1971.

250 Men Needed

EDMONTON (CP) — The city's construction industry has openings for 250 workers but can't find them despite high rates of unemployment, the secretary-manager of the Edmonton Housing Association said.

Pat Burns said in an interview his association's 300 members are unable to find any workers — skilled, semi-skilled or laborers through Canada Manpower.

ICY RECOVERY of late-model station wagon near Tacoma, Wash., requires skin diver Roy Durham and towing company workers to saw, chop and hammer their way through a foot of Lake Steilacoom ice. All three occupants of the vehicle, driven onto the ice late Sunday, escaped when the car broke through 200 feet from shore.

B.C. Closing 'Dead Loss' U.S. Offices

The provincial government plans to close down B.C. House operations in both San Francisco and Los Angeles within a month or two, Attorney-General Alex Macdonald said today.

He said he has no comment to make on the possibility of B.C. House in London closing, adding he will be talking to Travel Industry Minister Ernie Hall, who has just visited London, about the operation there.

Macdonald, who also holds the portfolio of trade minister, described the two U.S. establishments as "a dead loss to the taxpayers of B.C." and said the closings will result in a saving of about $75,000 per year.

B.C. House in San Francisco and Los Angeles have been intended to promote trade in B.C. as well as encourage tourists to come to the province. The establishments are shared between the trade department and the department of travel industry.

Macdonald said the lease on B.C. House in San Francisco expires Dec. 31. That operation will close down at that time. He said the Los Angeles establishment will be phased out shortly thereafter.

The attorney-general said there are Canadian consulates already situated in both Los Angeles and San Francisco, with trade commissioners attached, so that B.C. businessmen wanting to export into the large California market will be able to deal through the consulates and commissions.

Four employees will be relocated because of the closings, Macdonald said, and will be given preference for jobs within the civil service.

PENSION WENT UP . . . BY 3 CENTS

TORONTO (CP) — Frank Dewell, a retired carpenter whose monthly Canada Pension cheque was increased by three cents, said Monday the increase is an insult to people who really need the money.

Dewell, who worked for a Toronto borough, retired three years ago "so I don't get a great lot anyway but it's just the fact of the three cents a month . . . why anybody would come up with that amount."

The three cents came as a result of a percentage increase in the cost of living.

Dewell said the government "must have someone from an insane asylum thinking these things up. Nobody in their right mind would bother with three cents."

We'll Fight On—Thieu

Times News Services

While U.S.-Hanoi negotiations proceeded at a stepped-up pace in Paris today, South vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu continued to take an uncompromising stand in his opposition to any settlement of the war not on his terms.

"The Republic of South Vietnam will have to continue the war for peace and that this is the only war for survival," he said in his first speech to the National Assembly in more than two years.

Thieu also proposed that North and South Vietnam and the Viet Cong begin separate peace negotiations during the annual Christmas truce.

He said the truce "could be extended for a further duration as agreed by all parties" if consultations progress in an encouraging way."

In his speech, he made no direct reference to the Paris talks and his comments were interpreted here by Western diplomats and journalists as an effort too little and too late to "Vitenamize" peace negotiations.

First reaction to Thieu's speech from the Viet Cong delegation to the Paris peace talks called it "obstinate, absurd and arrogant."

His comments "serve only to expose still more his intention to oppose a correct peaceful sclution of the Vietnam problem," a delegation statement continued.

The fact remains that "Thieu is a major obstacle on the road to peace, reconciliation and national concord," it added.

Henry Kissinger and Le Duc Tho resumed their secret negotiations at unprecedented triple meetings today.

Two meetings of experts were scheduled before Kissinger and Tho conferred for their eighth secret session since they resumed their search for peace one week ago.

In keeping with the total news blackout observed by both the United States and North Vietnamese delegations, there was no official explanation for the accelerated pace of the meetings.

NFB CHIEF CANS OVERTHROW FILM

MONTREAL (CP) — A National Film Board documentary called Vingt-Quatre Heures ou Plus — Twenty-Four Hours or More — has been cancelled because it "advocates the overthrow of the entire political and economic system as it operates in Canada," Sydney Newman, government film commissioner, said Monday night.

"I maintain that if Vingt-Quatre Heures ou Plus, as it is, was released, the NFB would never be forgiven by the majority of Canadians who uphold the Canadian democratic system," Newman said.

An official of a union representing NFB production personnel disagreed, however, saying the public has a right to see the results of money spent.

The cancellation was announced last Friday by Yvon Leduc, director of French production at the NFB, who said the film, directed by Gilles Groulx, is a documentary depicting events in our society and analysing the "state of the nation."

Newman, chairman of the NFB and the federal government's chief adviser on film, said the NFB was created by Parliament and is paid for by the Canadian taxpayer.

"For these reasons, the filmmaker . . . is limited in his freedom by the terms of the place he works for."

Moonmen's New Target A Mountain

Times News Services

HOUSTON — Apollo 17 explorers Eugene Cernan and Jack Schmitt ended a long, triumphant workday in space early today, capping a near-perfect lunar landing with a more than seven-hour tour of a canyon they dubbed a "geologist's paradise."

Veteran astronaut Cernan stashed their first rock samples, brushed the coal-black dust of Taurus-Littrow valley off his spacesuit and followed geologist Schmitt back into their landing craft Challenger at 2:05 a.m. EST for some much-needed sleep. They had been on the surface a record 7 hours, 12 minutes.

Their plans for today, the second day of a record 75-hour stay on the lunar surface, call for a visit to the mile-high South Massif mountain and a rockslide at its base, beginning about mid-afternoon Victoria time.

During their excursion Monday, they found evidence to suggest the floor of the canyon is one of the moon's youngest features.

Trudeau Buys Barrett Bid For Cash

By IAIN HUNTER
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — B.C. Premier Dave Barrett announced Monday that he has persuaded the federal government to pay a larger share of his province's $200-a-month guaranteed income to its pensioners and handicapped.

He could not say what the change in Ottawa's attitude means for other provinces — "I'm not here to negotiate for the rest of Canada," he said — but called it a major step forward.

Barrett obtained the verbal agreement from Prime Minister Trudeau after a luncheon meeting at the prime minister's residence.

"The prime minister has agreed that the exempted fixed assets level will be increased as was requested by British Columbia," he declared.

When Barrett first proposed that Ottawa share with Victoria, 50-50, the cost of providing the $200-a-month guaranteed income for senior citizens, blind and handicapped, Trudeau retorted that B.C. should use its own tax money to pay for it.

Asked if he found Trudeau more flexible in his attitude after his setback in Western Canada Oct. 30, Barrett would only say that he is "just as new as the government is" and that he's not qualified to say.

Barrett said he is not afraid that the B.C. scheme will result in a heavy influx of old-age pensioners to his province.

It is one of the myths of the welfare field, he stated, that people are "after the welfare buck." He also said that recipients will not be hoarding the money or taking it to Bermuda with them, but will be spending it in B.C., thus helping the economy of the province.

Barrett's second announcement on emerging from his meeting with Trudeau was that the prime minister has agreed to accept a B.C. application to reopen the Columbia River Treaty to provide more

Prices Climb 5.1% in Year

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Although food prices eased downward in November the over-all price index was up for the month, pushing prices 5.1 per cent higher than November last year.

Most economists speak of a three-per-cent annual increase in prices as the most that should be permitted without inflation.

Statistics Canada, surveying more than 300 consumer goods and services, said today its consumer price index rose to 142.3 in November from 142.0 in October. This was a smaller increase than usual between these two months, the bureau said.

Food prices declined in November over a wide selection of commodities, except for vegetables. Both canned and fresh vegetable prices were higher.

The main increases for the month were in rents, the prices of new houses, and in footwear and winter clothing. The latter usually command higher prices as winter approaches.

In dollar terms, the new indexes mean that it cost $14.23 last month to buy the wide variety of consumer goods and services that could be had for $14.20 in October, or $13.54 in November last year. That is based on parcel of goods and services that would have cost only $10 in 1961.

In the food component of the over-all index, last month's bill was $14.51 for what $14.53 bought in October or $13.30 in November last year.

In percentage terms, the over-all increase last month was two-tenths of one per cent. Food prices were down one-tenth of one per cent.

The change was too small to affect the purchasing power of the consumer dollar to any measurable degree. What $1 bought last month could be had in 1961 for 70 cents, the same as in October. A year ago, $1 bought 74 cents' worth of 1961 goods and services.

Food prices account for 27 per cent of the total price index, and housing 32 per cent. The cost of home ownership, Statistics Canada said, rose 1.2 per cent last month. Other increases were in rents, fuel oil, furniture, floor coverings and textiles.

Clothing prices account for only 11 per cent of the over-all index. The main increases last month were in footwear and men's and women's clothing.

TV Seen As Brain Destroyer

MADRID (Reuter) — Television is damaging the brain cells of millions of children throughout the world, one of Spain's leading pediatricians says.

The sight modulation of most children under the age of five is not equipped to cope with the dazzling brightness and vibrations of a television program, says Dr. Manuel Suarez Perdeguero, president of the Spanish Pediatrics Association.

"Parents who allow their youngsters to sit for long hours in front of the television screen are committing a form of mental aggression," says Dr. Suarez, also dean of medicine at Seville University.

Suarez says that tests in his pediatrics department at Seville have shown that a child's brain cells and vision can be permanently impaired if he is exposed to television at an early age.

"The damage to the cells is both structural and chemical," he says, explaining that the cells undergo a change in their structure and chemical makeup which, though slight, definitely affects the child's normal intellectual development.

Rent Aid for Pensioners Urged

By ROLAND MORGAN
Times Staff

A report by two econmoists recommended two months ago that the provincial government offer rent supplements to old age pensioners faced with rent increases, instead of introducing rent controls.

Mike Lebowitz, who authored the study with Cliff Andstein at the request of Rehabilitation Minister Norm Levi, confirmed today that the report had been submitted to the government just before the October session of the legislature.

At that session, the new government introduced its "Mincome" plan giving pensioners $200 a month adjustable upwards with the cost of living.

"We wanted a scheme which would insulate pensioners against rent increases which were inevitable following the Mincome plan, and which would insure that the cost of living index supplements would not be abused," said Lebowitz, a Simon Fraser university professor.

"We were critical of rent controls," he said.

"We advised the government that rental supplements would have an extra benefit besides countering rent increases: they would provide the government with information about where senior citizens' housing is needed most."

Lebowitz said he had only seen Levi once since the report was submitted. At that time, Lebowitz said, Levi told the economists the government was "using" the report.

Rental supplements, according to the report, would only be given when actual rent increases occurred.

Cost of administering a rental supplement would be greater than providing a blanket cost of living index increase, the report said, but it would also provide the gov-

Bapco Goes, New Hotel Likely

Bapco Paint Ltd., one of Victoria's oldest businesses, announced today it will move its head office and manufacturing facilities from the city's Inner Harbor to a new plant to be built in Surrey.

Company president J. R. Law also announced that an associate company, C.I.L. Properties Ltd., is studying plans for a major hotel-apartment-recreation development on the vacated site at Laurel Point.

Mayor Peter Pollen, who said he first learned of the company's intentions some months ago, expressed regret at the closing of another local industry but commented that it offered exciting possibilities in the city's aspirations for Inner Harbor beautification.

Pollen predicted city council "will have more to say about this than any other development in Victoria's history."

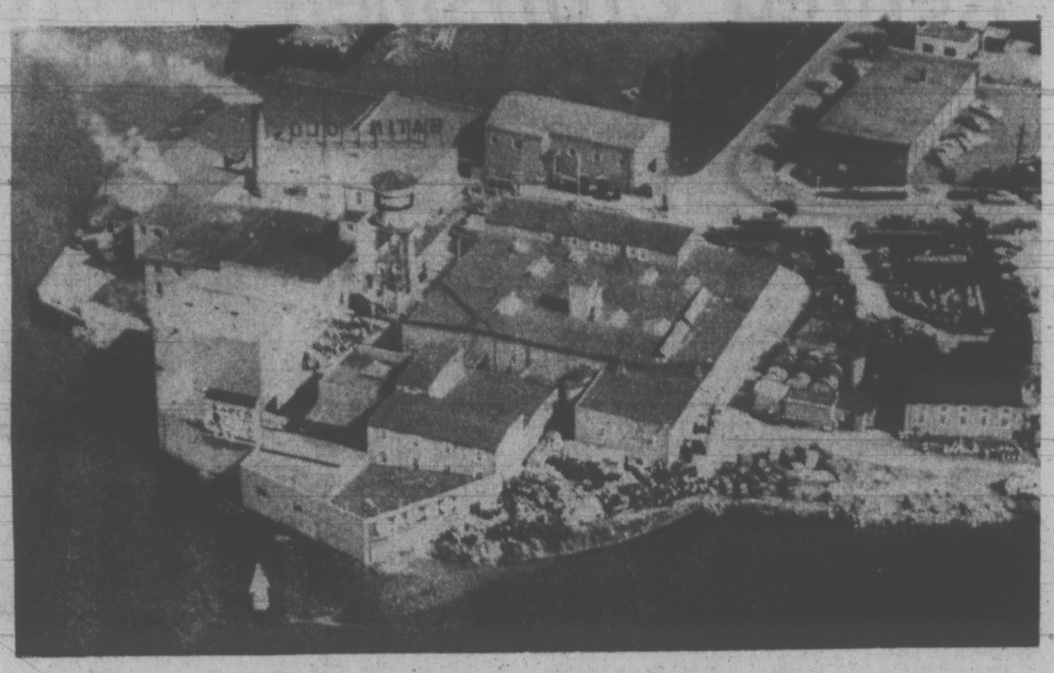
He also promised that what ever development finally takes place at Laurel Point, it will include a park and waterfront walkway and combine the criteria of good development as expressed by the community.

"It certainly will not be anything overwhelming," he added.

Law's statement said construction of the new plant in the Newton district of Surrey will start early next year and the move will be carried out in stages during 1973, with final closure of the Victoria facilities scheduled toward the end of the year.

Law estimated that about 90 of the firm's 155 employees will require "relocation to other employment." Every effort would be made to employ qualified staff in the new operation.

Bapco is co-operating with Canada Manpower in trying to find alternative employment for those workers who will not have positions open to them, or who do not wish to move, he said.



Bapco paint plant . . . on the way out

Relocation allowances would be provided to help employees moving to other employment, and some long-service employees would have special retirement arrangements.

Among the reasons given for the firm's decision to move is that the present plant at Laurel Point, built in 1906 and expanded several times later, is "no longer adequate in today's paint business."

Law said the location and limited space made it impractical to modernize facilities or add to the plant capacity.

He also said studies had shown that, for a company with major markets on the mainland —and throughout Western Canada, plant location on Vancouver Island "has resulted in economic and competitive disadvantages which would steadily increase."

"These disadvantages are reflected in the costs of transportation of raw materials and finished products to and from the Island, and the necessity of maintaining heavy inventories of both . . ." Law said.

He said the plans for redevelopment of Laurel Point now being studied would fit in with the city's over-all plan for the Inner Harbor, and would include a city park along the waterfront section of the property.

Firm plans have not been submitted to city council, Law said, because the developers want the public to see the designs at open meetings "to provide an opportunity for public participation in the planning stage."

Planning department officials said today Laurel Point offers a "magnificent site" for redevelopment in both the public and private sectors, and road realignment may be necessary to secure public access to the waterfront.

The land is now industrially zoned and council will likely insist that any firm proposal from CIL Properties is submitted under development contract requirements, so that there can be stipulated controls on the type of development allowed.

Total area of the site is about five acres.

The planning department's recently published Waterfront Study said Laurel Point, in addition to parks and walkways, could provide opportunities for medium-density tourist accommodation and "residential uses on the upland."

Pollen pointed out that CIL's plans will have to conform with the general guidelines of the James Bay report, when that document is approved by council.

That report, on the future development and zoning policies of the James Bay area, is due to be presented to the council meeting on Thursday.

Ship Traffic Controls Draw Nearer

The federal transport ministry is purchasing the radio and radar equipment needed for the second phase of a program to ultimately control marine traffic along the B.C. coast.

The first phase, which began last July 1, has larger ships moving between Vancouver Island and the mainland voluntarily reporting progress past 14 checkpoints on a VHF radio channel.

The second phase, to start next summer, will make the traffic reports mandatory.

H. O. Buchanan, regional director of marine services, said from Vancouver today that the first phase has been working "reasonable well" and he is pleased with results.

The U.S. Coast Guard introduced a similar program last July for marine traffic in Puget Sound and Buchanan said it is hoped the two programs can be developed as complementary systems.

The ultimate goal of the Canadian plan is complete radar monitoring and track plotting of shipping along as much of the B.C. coast as proves necessary .The major aim is prevention of oil spills.

From the outset the program was assured co-operation from B.C. Ferries and other government vessels. Buchanan said there has also been good co-operation from the B.C. Towboat Owners Association. Towboats have added the needed radio equipment to use the traffic-reporting channel.

Freighters "to a large extent" have been co-operating but some ships are appearing in port without advance word on their arrival over the traffic channel, he said.

Ships of 100 tons or more and towboats where boat and tow extend over 100 feet were asked to participate in phase 1. The checkpoints lie between Cape Flattery at the entrance to Juan de Fuca Strait and Cape Mudge near Campbell River.

Ships have been radioing such information as name and cargo, course and speed and anticipated arrival at the next checkpoint. Aim is for shipping to follow the progress of traffic in the vicinity by all monitoring the information channel.

In the second phase the progress reports will be required of ships which will be under some radar surveillance.

Chamber President Regrets Plant Move

Victoria Chamber of Commerce president Terry Farmer today called the decision of Bapco Paint to leave Victoria "a severe blow" for Vancouver Island.

He said the chamber would fight with every economic weapon possible to assist Bapco Paint to stay in the Victoria area, but he admitted it would be difficult.

"The company has obviously studied their costs very carefully," he said.

Farmer said the chamber would try to get some concessions from B.C. Ferries and the CPR on freight costs to enable companies to compete with those locating on the mainland.

FREIGHT COSTS

Trying to attract companies from Ontario to locate in Victoria was only feasible if freight costs were about the same for shipments from Victoria to Edmonton and from Vancouver to Edmonton.

Without parity or near parity of freight rates, most companies would opt to locate on the mainland rather than in Victoria, he said.

He said a meeting was planned with Bapco President J. R. Law this afternoon in hopes of getting him to alter his decision and relocate the Laurel Point Plant somewhere in the Victoria area.

Law is a director of the chamber, being chairman of committees on labor relations and monetary policy.

Victoria chamber has been seeking federal government grants under the Department of Regional Economic Expansion to get new industries on the Island but has decided it needs some freight cost concessions to keep those already here.

Larry Ryan, secretary of the Victoria Labor Council, said the Bapco move was badly managed from the capital region's point of view.

Alternative sites should have been offered the company but "pressures were put on them to move to improve the waterfront. There was no need to push them out of town."

Ryan said Canada has one of the highest levels of unemployment in the western world and B.C. unemployment ranks high in Canada "and we are so poorly equipped to handle industrial development. We don't even have an industrial development commission. We have so many local governments and this is one result of it."

Ryan also said "we don't see the logic" in Bapco moving from Victoria. He said it was probably a decision made in eastern Canada and while it may make sense in Montreal "it may not be in the public interest here."

Mayor Pollen said the Bapco situation is an example of a local company being purchased by a larger, multi-national company (CIL) which then proceeds to rationalize its production.

"But without question the employees are better off under the the proposed deal than if the plant had been closed down under the former ownership," he said.

VICTORIA'S LOSS

Loss of Bapco Paint and its 90 employees further reduces Victoria's already slender manufacturing sector.

The bulk of what industries are here are engaged in manufacture of wood products. The declining shipbuilding industry is also important here.

Largest manufacturing firm in the area is B.C. Forest Products Ltd. with some 900 employees.

Other major manufacturing firms with their approximate numbers of employees are:

Victoria Press 400, Yarrows 350, Sooke Forest Products 250, Victoria Plywood 200, Victoria Machinery Depot 100, McDonald's Bakery 100.

There are a number of wood manufacturing firms and machinery assembly plants employing less than 100 in the Victoria area.

Local 1947 president Owen Williams criticized absentee managerial decisions and failure of local government to spur industrial development.

"There are people in Montreal making decisions affecting the livelihoods here," he said.

"Successive councils have failed to do anything to keep industry here or attract new industry."

DEAD TOWN

Williams pointed to closure in recent years of Sidney Roofing, major bakeries, a shipyard and now Bapco.

He said young people who need jobs will face the prospect of poor-paying ones or none at all and "Victoria will become a dead town. It will just leave the tourist industry which is low paid."

Williams said Bapco has 155 employees, of whom 90 are in the union which represents plant workers but not office staff. Meetings were held with local management this morning. The company offer was "reasonably generous."

He said Bapco will take about 40 employees to Surrey, about 10 will retire early and "90 to 95 will be looking for jobs."

Details of the specific effects on individuals will be discussed further with the company, he said.

He said the men on the shop floor knew that the move was going to come, but perhaps not as soon as it did.

"The feeling is not exactly stunned, but they are just beginning to realize there will be no job soon. There are people with roots here and houses. It is total upheaval for them."

ABOMINABLE SNOWMAN would hardly describe him though he's almost as rare and definitely as abominable to Victorians who like to pretend it never snows in Canada's "banana belt.". This icy specimen, complete with charcoal eyes and carrot nose, is the creation of 12-year-old Andy Storey, 911 Cloverdale and Cathy Williams, 10, of 951 Scotia.

Work Week Cut As Wages Hiked

A reduction in weekly working hours has been coincided by some Victoria business with the introduction of the government's new $2-an-hour minimum wage.

The effect is to cut back what some employees thought they would be receiving by calculating the new minimum on the basis of the previous number of hours worked.

R. B. Bates, secretary-treasurer of McGill and Orme, admitted his business is one which has reduced employee hours but said it is "happening all over town."

"When the minimum went up we did not want to let anyone go. Some got an increase but they will work 35 rather than 40 hours," he said.

"It was either that or cut staff. It was one of the fairest things to do."

A person working 40 hours a week on the old $1.50 an hour minimum wage would gross $60 a week, or $80 under the new minimum. But if hours are cut back to 35 a week, the weekly pay is $70.

The Strathcona Hotel at 919 Douglas St. has responded to the new minimum wage by laying employees off, cutting hours of work of some employees and raising prices, said manager Keith Olson.

The hotel has all sorts of employees affected by the new minimum wage, said Olson — waitresses, kitchen help, laundry workers, bellboys and chambermaids.

Melvin Webb, manager of the Shoppers Drug Mart in the Hillside Shopping Centre, said: "I know there will be a belt-tightening at the first of the year. There will have to be in order to absorb this."

Whether the belt-tightening will come as a cut in working hours or a cut in staff remains to be seen, said Webb.

The manager of a downtown department store, who refused to be quoted, said the new minimum wage has prevented him from hiring extra Christmas staff.

'BIG BROTHER' NOT EXPECTED

Big Brother's eye is still a long way off for the streets and public places of Victoria, Police Chief John F. Gregory said today.

He was asked to comment on Victoria Cablevision's recent announcement that 76 miles of trunk cable would be available for public purposes next year.

Gregory said there was no question of the police force making use of the cable network.

"If you're suggesting the Big Brother thing with an eye in the sky surveying all, forget it. I think we'd start a revolt."

"We've looked at the idea of television surveillance before," Gregory said. "There was trouble a while back at Centennial Square and we mentioned television to the mayor then. He said it was out of the question.

"Hopefully such surveillance systems will never be used here. We certainly haven't any plans for one."

Snow Snarls City Streets

City streets were quiet overnight with most motorists staying close to home following Monday's snowstorm which brought chaotic traffic conditions during the evening rush-hour.

City police estimated there were hundreds of minor accidents Monday afternoon and early evening as the three-inch snowfall turned traffic arteries into treacherous obstacle courses.

Accident reports were lighter overnight however, with 14 collisions reported in Victoria, each averaging around $200 to $300 damage.

Several minor accidents were reported in Colwood, while Saanich, Esquimalt, Sooke and Sidney police all reported fairly quiet nights.

Despite warmer temperatures forecast for today and Wednesday, police warn that road conditions will remain hazardous and urge motorists to slow down.

Major Vancouver Island highways are open but icy today and most require snow tires.

The Malahat and Sooke Road are slippery with snow tires mandatory on the Malahat.

The Campbell River-Courtenay and Port Alberni-Parksville highways have been sanded but are still slippery in sections and require snow tires.

The remaining highways are icy and require snow tires: Kelsey Bay - Campbell River, Gold River-Campbell River, Tofino-Port Alberni, Courtenay-Nanaimo, and Nanaimo-Duncan.

Weathermen say there may be some snow showers today in the higher regions.

North-easterly winds up to 25 to 30 m.p.h. will add an extra chill to temperatures forecast in the mid-thirties for today and Wednesday.

UVic Chancellor Known Wednesday

Approximately 1,600 votes for a new chancellor of the University of Victoria had been received by closing date Monday, and the ballots will be counted Wednesday.

Six vacancies on the senate are also being contested by 19 candidates. There are five nominees for chancellor to fill the gap left by Roderick Haig-Brown, who stood down this year.

The results of the ballot will be received by the university senate Wednesday evening.

Voters eligible to elect the chancellor and senators are founding members of he university, faculty and ex-faculty members, persons listed on the convocation rolls by order of senate and past graduates of the university.

There are an estimated 7,000 eligible voters. 5,000 ballots were sent out.

Hotel Guests Escape Flames

Flames flashed out the fifth-floor windows of a downtown hotel Monday night as guests fled to the lower floors to escape a blaze which caused between $20,000 and $25,000 damage.

Andrew Anderson, manager of the Beverley Hotel, 724 Yates, said "half of the fifth floor" was gutted after a fire began in a room occupied by Gary Korble, 18, about 9:55 p.m.

Approximately 50 guests were aroused by the alarm and evacuated to the lower floors where they awaited the arrival of Victoria fire department.

Many of the tenants, mostly senior citizens, spent the night in rooms at the Yates Hotel, 712 Yates, said Anderson.

Deputy Fire Chief Carl Coates said the fire was noticed by the desk clerk, Kerry Hill, who called the manager and sounded the alarm.

Anderson saw something "ripping the door" of room 507. He opened the door and was greeted by a "flash of flame," said Coates.

"It was probably caused by careless smoking. It started in a bed," said Coates.

Twenty firemen battled the blaze for 2½ hours and damage was caused by fire, smoke and water, he said.

No one was injured but "it could have been a very serious fire," said Coates.

New Emphasis in Gyms Seen

Greater Victoria school system, particularly the classes for very young children, should provide some form of gymnastics under the supervision of trained teachers, the school board was told Monday night.

A committee of parents led by Mrs. R. J. Mack, 1437 Clifford, told the board teachers revoked children's gym periods if the children misbehaved, and many teachers did it because they did not want to supervise a gym period.

The group said team sports are emphasized in schools, with only top players consistently participating.

A basic gymnastics program in which every child could participate regardless of ability is a vital part of educational growth, the group said in a brief which was accompanied by 52 signatures.

"We'll do it, in one way or another," curriculum committee chairman Philip Ney told a dozen members of the group.

Trustee Peter Bunn said he would not like to see a gym program become "an empire of over-degreed people."

"It doesn't need five years in university to supervise this sort of thing," he commented.

Most of the trustees said they welcomed the brief.

The district has already retained D. G. Henderson, Hillcrest Elementary School principal, to do a four-month study of physical education in the elementary schools. He told the meeting his study had come down to a straightforward matter of financial priorities.

He said physical education was "at the bottom of the totem pole" in elementary schools "because it was put there."

"A while ago both physical education, music and art were felt to be peripheral subjects. Maybe there's a new set of priorities emerging. If there is, I think the schools are ready to respond."

Henderson will present a report to the board by the end of December. "It looks like money," he predicted.

Meanwhile, in the instruction-administration committee, trustees Bunn and Ney said they could not vote to give the district superintendent sole control over the selection and hiring of school principals.

"Having fought for years to have elected people involved in the selection of principals, this is not funny," Bunn said.

Superintendent Jake Longmore said the administration proposed the revision of procedures because of a recent occasion when the board hired a principalship candidate without first consulting the superintendent as "chief executive officer."

Dr. John Wiens, director of instruction, said he had seen candidates appear before the board and misrepresent themselves both in a good light and a bad light.

Longmore and Wiens said they had professional inside knowledge about candidates which should be taken into account. Bunn agreed, and said the regulations should stipulate consultation between the board and the superintendent.

Trustee Ney said he wanted assignment of the principals to be directed by the board also, and he said vice-principal positions should be advertised province-wide "just to find out who is out there."

Oak Bay Ponders Apartment Clamp

Oak Bay council will consider tighter appartment construction regulations for Beach Drive at a meeting Dec. 18.

A public hearing is expected to be set for January.

First reading of the bylaw was given — governing apartments between Willows Park and the Uplands and Estevan to Beach was given Monday.

The bylaw requires underground parking, lower allowable heights of buildings and increased setbacks.

Ald. Douglas Watts asked municipal engineer-planner Geoffrey White to make a study of high tide levels and basement levels in the area to ensure that underground parking was possible in the bottom lands.

$2,500 Damages

An auto accident on Begbie early Sunday left $2,500 in car damage and 20 feet of smashed fencing in its wake, Victoria police reported Monday.

A car driven by Marko Pavlicic, of 1871 Hillcrest Ave., struck a power pole on the south side of Begbie, crashed into a fence surrounding a home at 1862 Chestnut and then struck a parked car.

The parked car, in turn, was then driven into another vehicle parked behind it.

Damages to this third car are estimated at $500.

Damage to the Pavlicic car was put at $2,000. Mr. Pavlicic and his wife were taken to Royal Jubilee Hospital, the man for with severe facial lacerations and his wife, Mrs. Marica Pavlicic, with minor facial cuts and a fractured wrist

Both Pavlicics were reported in fairly good condition in hospital today, where they have been detained for observation.

Woman Injured

A 62-year-old Saanich woman was reported in fair condition in Victoria General Hospital today, following a Monday afternoon crash in which she suffered massive head injuries.

Ella Florence Rogers, of 5419 Fowler, was travelling north on Douglas around 2:30 Monday when her car swerved into the southbound lane and struck another car driven by Gordon Leslie Hay, 53, of 1073 Cypress. Hay escaped uninjured.

Damage to the Rogers' vehicle was estimated at $1,000. Hay's car's damages amounted to $700, Saanich police said today.

4-Vote Squeaker

PORT ALBERNI (CP) — A check by returning officer George Wyley Monday reversed the result in Saturday's election for one of two seats at stake in the District 70 school board here.

Originally, George Parker was declared the winner, with 1,775 votes to 1,769 votes for A. B. Taylor. But Wyley found 10 votes too many had been credited to Parker, thus the real total was 1,765, giving Taylor the school board seat by a four-vote margin.

Open Study Set

Already considered by city council in committee, the Victoria planning department's James Bay report will be presented formally to council on Thursday.

Mayor Peter Pollen stressed Monday that the report on the future development of James Bay is only a "position paper," and is not at all inflexible.

Pollen said he hopes the days of "ramming things down the throats of our citizens" are over, and that the report will be discussed thoroughly with James Bay residents before any of its new zoning policies are adopted.

Alderman-elect Sam Bawlf, who as president of the James Bay Community Association, has strongly urged council to preserve the residential character of James Bay, said Monday he is particularly keen to study the report.

HIGGETT

INSIGNIA ALMOST SET

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Commissioner W. L. Higgett of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police says the new insignia for the force now in preparation will be a design that he is confident will be pleasing to all Canadians.

The insignia that was attached to RCMP buildings and cruiser cars and caused an uproar particularly in Western Canada because the initials RCMP were dropped and substituted by just the one word Police, is still in use.

"We are carrying on with that insignia on the cruiser cars and buildings until the new design has been produced, and approved," the commissioner said.

"That should be early in the New Year," he said.

It is his understanding that the approval of the new insignia is "high up on the list" of items to be cleared as soon as possible by newly-appointed Solicitor General Warren Allmand.

Commissioner Higgett pointed out that a special committee is preparing the new design.

It has almost completed its job and he expects the new design will arrive on his desk "shortly."

"I am sure that it will be one that everyone will be able to accept," Commissioner Higgett said.

The insignia that is being replaced caused considerable controversy when Western Canadians protested that the identity of the RCMP appeared to be downgraded and replaced by the world Police.

There were suspicions that the Trudeau government had wanted to get rid of the title Royal Canadian Mounted Police because of the world "royal," voiced by John Diegenbaker, former prime minister.

Lot-Freeze Ruling Awaited

County Court Judge M. L. T. Drake has reserved judgment in a case in which Salt Spring Island land developers are appealing a ruling last July by the B.C. superintendent of insurance freezing sale of all lots.

The judge's decision may determine the future sale of lots in a land parcel approved for subdividing in 1891 under the name of Grantsville.

The parcel, located near Walker's Hook about four miles north of Ganges, is divided into 82 quarter-acre lots.

Nothing was done with the land until this year when a group of promoters, including A. S. Bains of Victoria and Terry Dow of Ganges, began trying to sell the lots.

There are no sewage facilities or water supplies and it is not possible to obtain building permits for the lots so in July the superintendent of insurance froze the sale of all lots. The freeze later became permanent.

Chief medical health officer Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread testified the lots were generally too small to contain a proper septic tank and tile field for sewage disposal and a well for water.

A well must be placed at least 100 feet from sewage disposal facilities and often, for safety, they should be placed 300 feet apart, he said.

They could be placed at opposite ends of each lot, but because the lots are so close together, only about one third of the lots could be serviced, said Whitbread.

A piped-in water supply would lessen the sewage problem, he said.

89th YEAR, NO. 156 — VICTORIA, B.C., TUESDAY, DECEMBER 12, 1972 — 10 CENTS DAILY, 20 CENTS SATURDAY

ICY RECOVERY of late-model station wagon near Tacoma, Wash., requires skin diver Roy Durham and towing company workers to saw, chop and hammer their way through a foot of Lake Steilacoom ice. All three occupants of the vehicle, driven onto the ice late Sunday, escaped when the car broke through 200 feet from shore.

B.C. Closing 'Dead Loss' U.S. Offices

The provincial government plans to close down B.C. House operations in both San Francisco and Los Angeles within a month or two, Attorney-General Alex Macdonald said today.

He said he has no comment to make on the possibility of B.C. House in London closing, adding he will be talking to Travel Industry Minister Ernie Hall, who has just visited London, about the operation there.

Macdonald, who also holds the portfolio of trade minister, described the two U.S. establishments as "a dead loss to the taxpayers of B.C." and said the closings will result in a saving of about $75,000 per year.

B.C. House in San Francisco and Los Angeles have been intended to promote trade in B.C. as well as encourage tourists to come to the province. The establishments are shared between the trade department and the department of travel industry.

Macdonald said the lease on B.C. House in San Francisco expires Dec. 31. That operation will close down at that time. He said the Los Angeles establishment will be phased out shortly thereafter.

The attorney-general said there are Canadian consulates already situated in both Los Angeles and San Francisco, with trade commissioners attached, so that B.C. businessmen wanting to export into the large California market will be able to deal through the consulates and commissions.

Four employees will be relocated because of the closings, Macdonald said, and will be given preference for jobs within the civil service.

PENSION WENT UP . . . BY 3 CENTS

TORONTO (CP) — Frank Dewell, a retired carpenter whose monthly Canada Pension cheque was increased by three cents, said Monday the increase is an insult to people who really need the money.

Dewell, who worked for a Toronto borough, retired three years ago "so I don't get a great lot anyway but it's just the fact of the three cents a month . . . why anybody would come up with that amount."

The three cents came as a result of a percentage increase in the cost of living.

Dewell said the government "must have someone from an insane asylum thinking these things up. Nobody in their right mind would bother with three cents."

We'll Fight On—Thieu

Times News Services

While U.S.-Hanoi negotiations proceeded at a stepped-up pace in Paris today, South vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu continued to take an uncompromising stand in his opposition to any settlement of the war not on his terms.

"The Republic of South Vietnam will have to continue the war for peace and this is the only way for survival," he said in his first speech to the National Assembly in more than two years.

Thieu also proposed that North and South Vietnam and the Viet Cong begin separate peace negotiations during the annual Christmas truce.

He said the truce "could be extended for a further duration as agreed by all parties if consultations progress in an encouraging way."

In his speech, he made no direct reference to the Paris talks and his comments were interpreted here by Western diplomats and journalists as an effort too little and too late to "Vietnamese" peace negotiations.

First reaction to Thieu's speech from the Viet Cong delegation to the Paris peace talks called it "obstinate, absurd and arrogant."

His comments "serve only to expose still more his intention to oppose a correct peaceful solution of the Vietnam problem," a delegation statement continued.

The fact remains that "Thieu is a major obstacle on the road to peace, reconciliation and national concord," it added.

Henry Kissinger and Le Duc Tho resumed their secret negotiations at unprecedented triple meetings today.

Two meetings of experts were scheduled before Kissinger and Tho conferred for their eighth secret session since they resumed their search for peace one week ago.

In keeping with the total news blackout observed by both the United States and North Vietnamese delegations, there was no official explanation for the accelerated pace of the meetings.

NFB CHIEF CANS OVERTHROW FILM

MONTREAL (CP) — A National Film Board documentary called Vingt-Quatre Heures ou Plus — Twenty-Four Hours or More — has been cancelled because it "advocates the overthrow of the entire political and economic system as it operates in Canada," Sydney Newman, government film commissioner, said Monday night.

"I maintain that if Vingt-Quatre Heures ou Plus, as it is, was released, the NFB would never be forgiven by the majority of Canadians who uphold the Canadian democratic system," Newman said.

An official of a union representing NFB production personnel disagreed, however, saying the public has a right to see the results of money spent.

The cancellation was announced last Friday by Yvon Leduc, director of French production at the NFB, who said the film, directed by Gilles Groulx, is a documentary depicting events in our society and analysing the "state of the nation."

Newman, chairman of the NFB and the federal government's chief adviser on film, said the NFB was created by Parliament and is paid for by the Canadian taxpayer.

"For these reasons, the filmmaker . . . is limited in his freedom by the terms of the place he works for."

Moonmen's New Target A Mountain

Times News Services

HOUSTON — Apollo 17 explorers Eugene Cernan and Jack Schmitt ended a long, triumphant workday in space early today, capping a near-perfect lunar landing with a more than seven-hour tour of a canyon they dubbed a "geologist's paradise."

Veteran astronaut Cernan stashed their first rock samples, brushed the coal-black dust of Taurus-Littrow valley off his spacesuit and followed geologist Schmitt back into their landing craft Challenger at 2:05 a.m. EST for some much-needed sleep. They had been on the surface a record 7 hours, 12 minutes.

Their plans for today, the second day of a record 75-hour stay on the lunar surface, call for a visit to the mile-high South Massif mountain and a rockslide at its base, beginning about mid-afternoon Victoria time.

During their excursion Monday, they found evidence to suggest the floor of the canyon is one of the moon's youngest features.

Trudeau Buys Barrett Bid For Cash

By IAIN HUNTER
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — B.C. Premier Dave Barrett announced Monday that he has persuaded the federal government to pay a larger share of his province's $200-a-month guaranteed income to its pensioners and handicapped.

He could not say what the change in Ottawa's attitude means for other provinces — "I'm not here to negotiate for the rest of Canada," he said — but called it a major step forward.

Barrett obtained the verbal agreement from Prime Minister Trudeau after a luncheon meeting at the prime minister's residence.

"The prime minister has agreed that the exempted fixed assets level will be increased as was requested by British Columbia," he declared.

When Barrett first proposed that Ottawa share with Victoria, 50-50, the cost of providing the $200-a-month guaranteed income for senior citizens, blind and handicapped, Trudeau retorted that B.C. should use its own tax money to pay for it.

Asked if he found Trudeau more flexible in his attitude after his setback in Western Canada Oct. 30, Barrett would only say that he is "just as new as the government is" and that he's not qualified to say.

Barrett said he is not afraid that the B.C. scheme will result in a heavy influx of old-age pensioners to his province.

It is one of the myths of the welfare field, he stated, that people are "after the welfare buck." He also said that recipients will not be hoarding the money or taking it to Bermuda with them, but will be spending it in B.C., thus helping the economy of the province.

Barrett's second announcement on emerging from his meeting with Trudeau was that the prime minister has agreed to accept a B.C. application to reopen the Columbia River Treaty to provide more

Prices Climb 5.1% in Year

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Although food prices eased downward in November the over-all price index was up for the month, pushing prices 5.1 per cent higher than November last year.

Most economists speak of a three-per-cent annual increase in prices as the most that should be permitted without inflation.

Statistics Canada, surveying more than 300 consumer goods and services, said today its consumer price index rose to 142.3 in November from 142.0 in October. This was a smaller increase than usual between these two months, the bureau said.

Food prices declined in November over a wide selection of commodities, except for vegetables. Both canned and fresh vegetable prices were higher.

The main increases for the month were in rents, the prices of new houses, and in footwear and winter clothing. The latter usually command higher prices as winter approaches.

In dollar terms, the new indexes mean that it cost $14.23 last month to buy the wide variety of consumer goods and services that could be had for $14.20 in October, or $13.54 in November last year. That is based on a parcel of goods and services that would have cost only $10 in 1961.

In the food component of the over-all index, last month's bill was $14.51 for what $14.53 bought in October or $13.30 in November last year.

In percentage terms, the over-all increase last month was two-tenths of one per cent. Food prices were down one-tenth of one per cent.

The change was too small to affect the purchasing power of the consumer dollar to any measurable degree. What $1 bought last month could be had in 1961 for 70 cents, the same as in October. A year ago, $1 bought 74 cents' worth of 1961 goods and services.

Food prices account for 27 per cent of the total price index, and housing 32 per cent. The cost of home ownership, Statistics Canada said, rose 1.2 per cent last month. Other increases were in rents, fuel oil, furniture, floor coverings and textiles.

Clothing prices account for only 11 per cent of the over-all index. The main increases last month were in footwear and men's and women's clothing.

TV Seen As Brain Destroyer

MADRID (Reuter) — Television is damaging the brain cells of millions of children throughout the world, one of Spain's leading pediatricians says.

The sight modulation of most children under the age of five is not equipped to cope with the dazzling brightness and vibrations of a television program, says Dr. Manuel Suarez Perdeguero, president of the Spanish Pediatrics Association.

"Parents who allow their youngsters to sit for long hours in front of the television screen are committing a form of mental aggression," says Dr. Suarez, also dean of medicine at Seville University.

Suarez says that tests in his pediatrics department at Seville have shown that a child's brain cells and vision can be permanently impaired if he is exposed to television at an early age.

"The damage to the cells is both structural and chemical," he says, explaining that the cells undergo a change in their structure and chemical makeup which, though slight, definitely affects the child's normal intellectual development.

SMASHED SCHOOL BUS with "children lying all over the road, bleeding and screaming for help." This is how police at St. Blaise, Que., described the scene after the bus, above, was involved in a mishap with another school bus and a loaded 10-ton gravel truck. Two students were killed and 47 injured, including all three drivers. Eight persons were on the critical list.

Rent Aid for Pensioners Urged

By ROLAND MORGAN
Times Staff

A report by two economists recommended two months ago that the provincial government offer rent supplements to old age pensioners faced with rent increases, instead of introducing rent controls.

Mike Lebowitz, who authored the study with Cliff Andstein at the request of Rehabilitation Minister Norm Levi, confirmed today that the report had been submitted to the government just before the October session of the legislature.

At that session, the new government introduced its "Mincome" plan giving pensioners $200 a month adjustable upwards with the cost of living.

"We wanted a scheme which would insulate pensioners against rent increases which were inevitable following the Mincome plan, and which would insure that the cost of living index supplements would not be abused," said Lebowitz, a Simon Fraser university professor.

"We were critical of rent controls," he said.

"We advised the government that rental supplements would have an extra benefit besides countering rent increases: they would provide the government with information about where senior citizens' housing is needed most."

Lebowitz said he had only seen Levi once since the report was submitted. At that time, Lebowitz said, Levi told the economists the government was "using" the report.

Rental supplements, according to the report, would only be given when actual rent increases occurred.

Cost of administering a rental supplement would be greater than providing a blanket cost of living index increase, the report said, but it would also provide the gov-
